NOVELIST WEDS

REBECCA WEST.
(Mrs. Henry M. Andrews.)

MISS REBECCA WEST, AUTHOR, WEDS BANKER

She Recently Referred to Typical British Husband as "Perfect Nuisance."

By the Associated Press.

ABINGER, Surrey, England, Nov. 1.—Miss Rebecca West, one of England's foremost novelists, was married here this afternoon to Henry Maxwell Andrews, a London banker.

England enjoyed this wedding, recalling that not long ago Rebecca West had referred to the average British husband as "a perfect nuisance," and this, she wrote in a critical article, was an opinion shared by the whole stratum of "domesticated upper and middle class English women."

On the other hand, she wrote, it is eugenically unsound to demand that intellectual women stand aside while their sweet, clinging sisters march to the altar with the flower of British manhood.

"Why," she demanded, "should the nation be denied enrichment of its people through motherhood of its choice stock?"

Rebecca West was a pen name. This bride was born 37 years ago, Cicely Isabel Fairfield, the daughter of Charles Fairfield of County Kerry, Ireland. At 17 she began a brief stage career as "Rebecca West" in Ibsen's "Rosmerholm," and when she turned to writing she had a nom de plume all ready.

It was in 1911 that she began to attract notice as a book reviewer on the staff of the Freewoman; later she was writing politics for the Clarion, and since has contributed to many publications here and in the United States. Some of her novels have attracted wide critical praise.

BECAME A BIGAMIST AT 15

Man, 27, Admits He Has Had Four Wives; Gets 18 Months.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1.—Ralph Meighan, 27 years old, who pleaded guilty of bigamy and admitted he has had four wivess ince he was 15, was sentenced to 18 months in the penitentiary by Judge Stanton yesterday.

The Judge said he had written to authorities in South Carolina, where Meighan admitted he "just walked out" of prison after serving only a small part of a five-year sentence for bigamy. In that case Meighan was sentenced unjustly, he declared, because his first wife died before he married the second. If this is found to be true, the Judge added, Meighan's sentence here may be decreased.

GAMBLING HOUSE CHAUFFEUR SHOT; COMPANION HELD

REFUSES TO TELL ABOUT SHOOTING

Harry T. Davis, Arrested on Call to See Victim, Tells Police Latter Attempted a Holdup.

Timothy P. McCarthy, wounded overseas veteran, recently employed as chauffeur for an East Side gambling house, was shot near the heart and seriously wounded early today under circumstances which have not been explained to the satisfaction of police.

When a night nurse at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, answered the doorbell at 4 a. m., McCarthy staggered in and collapsed on the floor. The nurse saw an automobile pull away from the curb, but McCarthy refused to tell how he was wounded or name his companion.

An hour later, a man, who said he was Harry T. Davis, 24 years old, 4309 West Pine boulevard, St. Louis, called at the hospital to see McCarthy and was arrested. According to police, Davis admitted he took McCarthy to the hospital, and said he had been wounded in attempting a holdup, but refused to answer other questions.

Davis and McCarthy had been seen together in an automobile in a filling station at Ninth street and St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis, at 11 p. m.

McCarthy, who is 30 years old, has served two jail terms at Belleville, one for carrying concealed weapons as the result of a roadhouse brawl, in which he wounded an East Side Constable, and another for bootlegging. Last year he was tried for the murder of Horace Haislip, whom he shot in an East Side hotel, and was acquitted on a plea of self-defense.

Since last being released from jail, about three months ago, McCarthy has worked for a Venice gambling house, driving customers from the St. Louis end of the Eads Bridge. Davis is described as a hanger-on of a cigar store near Third street and Washington avenue.

Connecticut Man Takes Advantage of His Resemblance to Ex-Governor.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GREENWICH, Conn., Nov. 1.—Residents of this town are chuckling today. The name on a large campaign banner hanging over one of the main streets is that of William C. Runge, independent candidate for Judge of Probate, who is bucking the Republican machine, but the portrait on the sign is that of Ex-Governor Smith of New York.

There is a strong facial resemblance between the two men, and Runge supporters admitted that they had made opportune use of a Smith banner left over from the 1928 campaign, merely changing the name underneath.

WALNUT LOGS, UNDER WATER 50 YEARS, TO BE RECLAIMED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BENTON, Ill., Nov. 1.—Preparations are being made by a timber company near Chicago to raise an old raft made of walnut logs which was sunk in the Big Muddy River, a few miles north of Murphysboro, nearly 50 years ago.

Jackson County abounded in fine walnut timber a few years after the close of the Civil War, and it was common in those day to cut these fine trees, bind them together in rafts and float them down the Big Muddy to the Mississippi, and from there to their destination.

The raft which was sunk is claimed by old citizens to contain some 75,000 feet of timber and tests made by purchasing company reveal the logs in a good state of preservation. The sunken raft was the property of some Cairo men and was to have been used for veneering purposes. The logs are now eight feet below low water mark and experts believe that the task of reclaiming the old raft will not be very difficult.

MRS. O'NEILL THREATENED UNLESS SHE QUITS RACE

Illinois G. O. P. Woman Candidate for Senate Expected to Ask for Police Protection.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Members of the staff of Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, independent senatorial candidate in Illinois, say she plans to ask for police protection following receipt of a letter from East St. Louis said to contain a threat to kill her unless she withdrew from the campaign.

Part of the letter which Mrs. O'Neill said she received follows: "It would look as if Senator Lewis would be elected with your name remaining on the ballot. Everyone knows how he stands on the prohibition question and we have decided that he shall not go to the Senate. Take fair warning. You know the road that the following traveled after they were warned: Jake Lingle, John Scalise, Lombardi, Joe Ajello, Jack Zuta, etc."

Police think the letter the work of a crank, but are attempting to trace it.

CHICAGO 'BROKER' GETS TWO YEARS FOR CAFE HOLDUP

Harry C. Graham, ExConvict, Freed Once When Witnesses Refuse to Identify Him.

HEAVY PRESSURE ON PROSECUTOR

Many Business Men Tried to Intercede for Robber—His Companion Also Sent to Penitentiary.

After attempting for more than a year to escape punishment for robbery through intercession of his friends with witnesses and attaches of the Circuit Attorney's office, Harry C. Graham, suave, bespectacled ex-convict who describes himself as a Chicago stock and bond broker, pleaded guilty yesterday of assault with intent to rob and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

William F. Maher, Chicago, a companion, received a like sentence on his plea of guilty, and an additional five years, to run concurrently, for another holdup.

Indicted under the Henry law, which makes robbery with a deadly weapon punishable by a minimum of 10 years in prison and carries a maximum penalty of death, Graham almost went free when witnesses changed their stories and refused to identify him. However, Assistant Circuit Attorney Murphy found another witness who declined to be persuaded or intimidated and it was the existence of this man that prompted Graham to enter a plea.

Robbed Coney Island Cafe.

The robbery with which he was charged was that of the Coney Island Cafe, 110 North Eighth street (rear), on Aug. 11, 1929. One of the customers slipped out during the robbery and called police, who caught Graham and Maher a short distance away.

Graham's first attempt at freedom came a few days later when he exhibited bruises in Judge Weinbrenner's Court of Criminal Correction, saying they were inflicted by the police in a "third degree." Police, however, testified that Graham had struck a woman customer during the holdup and sustained the bruises from one of those robbed, who beat him after the arrest, while the arresting officers were waiting for a patrol wagon.

A warrant charging robbery was issued on testimony of Joe Cusumano and Tom Buffa, proprietors of the cafe, but when the case came up in Judge Weinbrenner's court for preliminary hearing, a week after the "third-degree" allegations, Cusumano and Buffa declined to identify either Graham or Maher. Both defendants were discharged.

Seized on New Warrant.

Before they could leave court, however, Assistant Circuit Attorney Murphy ordered them rearrested and issued a new warrant. He interviewed the persons robbed in the cafe and found Garrett Washington, who could and would identify both men.

Then Graham was released on bond and the Circuit Attorney's office was flooded with letters from persons prominent in Chicago business circles who said Graham was a prominent business man there and asked Circuit Attorney Miller to be lenient. Several lawyers, including a former Chicago Judge, came to St. Louis to see "what could be done" about the case, but Circuit Attorney Miller told them nothing could be done to prevent their friend from going to prison.

Graham jumped his $10,000 bond, was traced to Houston, Tex., rearrested, and brought back to St. Louis. The grand jury then indicted him and his companion under the Henry law.

In the meantime, Maher was identified as the man who single-handed held up and robbed 12 poker party guests at the home of Dr. M. P. Morrell, 4500 McPherson avenue. No effort was made to intercede for him on either charge.

Warrant for Bribery.

Recently Washington complained to Assistant Circuit Attorney Murphy that attempts were being made to persuade him "to go easy" on Graham. Floyd R. Hunter of the Roosevelt Hotel was arrested Oct. 8 in a hotel room which he had engaged to confer with Washington on behalf of Graham, and a warrant charging an attempt to bribe a witness was issued against him.

Before sentence was passed by Circuit Judge Calhoun, Graham told the Court he formerly was president of a Chicago association of radio distributers and had at one time been president of the Federal Radio Corporation, a Chi-

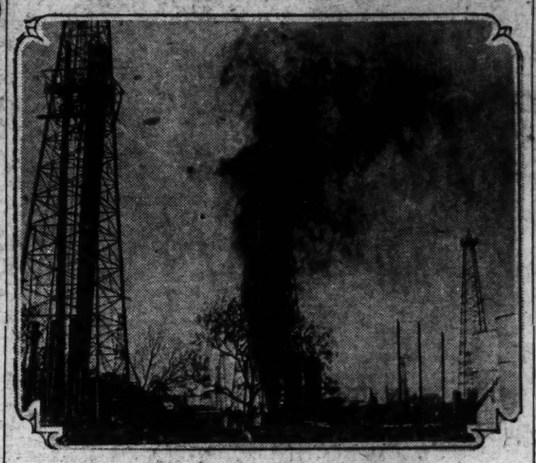
Oklahoma City Alarmed When Fire Breaks Out Mile From Wild Gusher



Danger From Blaze in Oil-Soaked Grass Considered Slight Unless it Reaches Inflammable Film on River.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Nov. 1.—Fire which spread over oil-saturated grass in the Oklahoma City oil field near the wild No. 1 C. E. Stout gusher this afternoon caused reports to spread that the wild gusher itself was on fire and almost caused a panic in the city. The danger was considered slight unless the fire spread to the oil film on the Canadian River on the banks of which the wild gusher is situated.

The rolling clouds of dense, black smoke from the fire were visible from downtown office buildings as was the column of the wild gusher. Although the clouds of smoke appeared very near the gusher, the fire actually was about a mile east of it.

The grass fire was caused, it is reported, by a spark from a switch engine.

The Hall-Briscoe No. 1 Mueller oil gusher was threatening to blow wild this afternoon, shortly after it had been opened in an effort to reduce pressure on the wild No. 1 C. E. Stout.

The wild gusher at the city's edge continued today to shower black clouds of oil on abandoned homes. Workmen hurried to completion the forging of a huge steel bonnet to drop over the mouth of the spouting well. Firemen announced the danger of explosion had lessened somewhat due to dissipation of low hanging clouds of gas. Firemen reduced to an area 36 blocks square the fire zone which has been maintained since the well broke through its mastergate Thursday night.

Nine units of National Guardsmen, together with civilians guarded the city against the outbreak of fire. John Gordon, who conquered the Mary Sudik well after it had run wild 11 days, has been placed in charge of control attempts.

The geyser of oil has caused the abandonment of homes by 300 residents, the closing of six schools and the suspension of all automobile and railroad traffic in the district affected.

The Guardsmen entered the area wearing wartime steel helmets and slickers as protection from the rain of oil. They were ordered out by Adj. Gen. Charles Barrett after an appeal had been made by Sheriff Stanley Rogers for military aid to supplement the efforts of his staff and city fire and police forces.

Since motor trucks were not permitted in the area, household goods of the few who moved from the section were transported in wagons drawn over oil-slimed streets.

Workmen in shifts of 30, wearing helmets and clothed in oilskins, were slowly removing the twisted steel from about the mouth of the well. They were deliberate in their efforts to avoid striking sparks as they handled the broken strips of the mastergate, and other debris.

The well has an estimated daily flow of 60,000 barrels of oil and 100,000,000 feet of gas.

The gusher sent a fine oil spray over homes to its north all night.

Abandonment of the M-K-T Railroad's station was planned by officials when it became evident all trains passing through the zone would have to drop their fire and proceed under accumulated steam pressure. Passengers will be taken by bus to and from trains stopping outside the area.

DETROIT - WINDSOR TUNNEL DEDICATED; COST $25,000,000

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 1.—The Dominion of Canada and the United States today dedicated the $25,000,000 Detroit-Windsor vehicular tunnel which has been more than two years in the making. When formally opened for traffic at 12:05 a. m. tomorrow the tunnel will offer a third means of crossing the border between the two nations. The Ambassador Bridge, completed a year ago, and numerous ferry lines are in use.

Today's ceremonies attracted diplomatic representatives and high officials of both nations. In Washington President Hoover pressed a button setting bells ringing at both ends of the tunnel. Following a series of speeches at both the American and Canadian ends a ribbon in the center of the tube was severed.

MEXICAN WOUNDS 30 WHILE RESISTING ATTACK OF REBELS

By the Associated Press.

TEPIC, Nayarit, Mexico, Nov. 1. After single handed resistance to an assault of 100 rebellious townsmen for 29 hours, Nicolas Bernal, commander of the militia of a neighboring town, was killed at San Pedro yesterday by a bomb which was hurled into the municipal building where he was barricaded.

Prior to his death Bernal wounded 30 of his assailants, 50, including Maj. Jeronimo Salbana, were arrested and brought to Tepic.

The fight occurred as a result of Bernal's order that the townsmen surrender their arms, the order being designed to check local banditry. When the time limit fixed by Bernal expired the townsmen, instead of delivering their weapons, rebelled against him and his brother Francisco. Francisco being killed in the first exchange of shots.

The commander held off the assailants from 7 a. m. Thursday morning until Friday noon, meeting death just before arrival of troops to restore order.

GIBSON SEEKS ITALO-FRENCH NAVAL TRUCE UNTIL 1936

American Ambassador Sees Tardieu and Mussolini in Effort to Arrange Accord Before League Preparatory Arms Session.

PRESSURE PUT ON BOTH DISPUTANTS

U. S., Great Britain and Japan Working Together to Make London Treaty a Five, Not as at Present, a Three-Power Agreement.

GENEVA, Nov. 1.—A naval truce between France and Italy until 1936 is, in substance, the proposal placed before the highest officials of the two Latin Powers by Hugh S. Gibson, United State Ambassador to Belgium, who is now in Rome in his efforts to clear the way for a successful meeting of the preparatory disarmament commission next month.

In informed circles here it is thought that the American diplomat's suggestions for breaking the Franco-Italian deadlock have slightly better than an even chance of being accepted in Paris and Rome.

Ambassador Gibson early last week laid before Prime Minister Andre Tardieu and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand the suggestion that all questions of parity and amour propre, raised during the London naval conference last winter and kept alive in Franco-Italian naval negotiations since then, be forgotten for the time being, and that both Italy and France publicly announce their building programs for the next five years. It is presumed he placed the same thought before Prime Minister Mussolini, whom he saw in Rome.

Declaration of Programs Sought.

Obtaining such declarations from the French and Italians as to what their programs will be is the keystone of the mission intrusted to Gibson by Washington.

Pierre L. Boal, assistant chief of the western European division of the State Department, who carried Japan's ratification of the London treaty to London, also carried details of Gibson's instructions to the British Foreign Office. He is understood to have obtained Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's approval before the American diplomat broached the subject with the Quai d'Orsay.

Japan, Great Britain and the United States are united in putting pressure, or persuasion, upon France and Italy to adjust their differences before the preparatory disarmament commission — on which Gibson is the chief American delegate—convenes in an effort to complete its labors.

Accord Necessary to Progress.

Even in Geneva, where optimism is always to the forefront, it is admitted that unless the French and Italians reach an accord it will be impossible to formulate an acceptable draft treaty on disarmament for submission to the general disarmament conference.

Inasmuch as American suggestions that the troublesome issue of parity be shelved until 1936 are in accordance with the views enunciated by the French in the abortive discussions between Rene Massiglio of France and Agusto Rosso of Italy, during the meeting of the League of Nations Assembly and also envisaged the naval holiday suggested by the Italians at the same time, it is believed that a formula for agreement will be found.

Another powerful factor favoring Italian acceptance of the American suggestions is the desperate economic situation facing the Fascists as a result of the economic depression.

Gibson Apparently Convinced Task Is Colossal.

ROME, Nov. 1.—Forty-eight hours in Rome, during which he has talked with Prime Minister Mussolini, Foreign Minister Dino Grandi and Augusto Rosso, naval expert, appear to have convinced Hugh S. Gibson, United States Ambassador to Belgium, that the task of breaking the Franco-Italian deadlock over naval questions is colossal.

PAIR ARRESTED FOR HELPING HIDE ILLINOIS BANKER

Woman at Whose Home Yocum Was Held Says She Was Afraid to Tell Police.

TWO MEMBERS OF GANG STILL MISSING

Prosecutor Prepares to Seek Indictments Monday and Will Demand the Death Penalty.

By the Associated Press.

KEWANEE, Ill., Nov. 1.—Frank Stockers, 35 years old, and his wife, Leta, 29, of Lacon, are held by Sheriff I. L. Davis of Marshall County on warrants charging implication in the kidnaping of Earl Yocum, Galva banker.

Mrs. Stockers, who was taken at her home one block from Lacon's business district by Henry County Sheriff Nash, State's Attorney Melin and Sergt. Earl Simpson, disclosed that Yocum was held in her home three days by the kidnapers. Lloyd Winslow, one of the two kidnapers yet at large, made all arrangements, she told officers.

Stockers was served with a warrant at a restaurant in Elmwood, 10 miles north of Peoria, by Constable Russell Fuller last night. He was employed with a construction gang.

Mrs. Stockers said that the gang paid her $5 a day for the use of the room for three days, but the authorities assert she received a larger amount. The woman claims, according to officers, that arrangements were made by Winslow, who came to her home while her husband was working at Elmwood. He inquired about chances for keeping a prisoner and returned Saturday night at 10 o'clock, telling Mrs. Stockers to get a room ready. She asked him how many would use it, and it is said he replied: "Myself and two others. We are hijacking a man and want to hide him out several days."

The men came at 10:30 o'clock and took the room, officers said Mrs. Stockers told them, and Winslow was the only one who came out for food.

Stockers came home Sunday and then returned Sunday night to Elmwood. Mrs. Stockers told officers that she had not disclosed the kidnaping plot because she feared harm would come to herself and family.

At 7 o'clock last night the Kewanee Chief of Police was called to Princeville when it was said that a man answering Winslow's description had passed through there in an old truck without license plates. Officers in Peoria were notified to watch the stockyards district for Winslow.

Sheriff Nash also has arrested Eugene Strum and F. E. Liggett for questioning. The Sheriff said Strum attempted to deliver two letters from Lloyd Winslow and Orville Whiskers to Roland Whiskers, brother of Orville, who refused to accept them. Liggett was with Strum at the time, the officer said. Only Strum admitted complicity in the letter deal, the Sheriff said.

Orville Whiskers, another alleged member of the extortionist gang, was being hunted in the vicinity of Watauga, 15 miles from Galva. His brother, Harry Whiskers, and Vernon Ahlgren, in custody and said by officers to have confessed their share in the plot, were held to the grand jury yesterday in bonds of $10,000 each.

"We will ask the death penalty," State's Attorney Carl Melin said. "When a leading citizen is taken from his doorstep and held for ransom under threat of death, the penalty cannot be too severe." He said he would ask for indictments when the grand jury convened Monday.

Girl's Dress Catches Fire From Jack o' Lantern—Galesburg (Ill.) Boy Fatally Shot.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Three fatalities resulted from Halloween celebrations in New England.

Two of the deaths occurred at Fall River, where 12-year-old Irene Levesque was fatally burned when a draft sucked her party dress into another child's jack o'lantern. Miss Lena Paquette, 40, sustained burns which resulted in her death when she went to the child's aid.

Three other persons, who sought to extinguish the flames, sustained severe burns. The tragedy occurred at the home of Norbert H. Berard, where Irene had gone to play with Berard's daughter.

At Westford, Vt., Sidney Peckham, 13, was fatally wounded by his 16-year-old brother, Ellsworth, who playfully pointed a pistol at Sidney and pulled the trigger.

CURTIS AIDED IN MOVE TO CUT OFF SENATORS' LIQUOR

Vice President Says He Helped Place Undercover Agent in Office Building to Enforce Dry Law.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Names of some of the drinking Senators and members of the House are in the hands of prohibition officials as a result of information gathered by agents sent into the Senate Office Building, the Capitol and the House Office Building at the behest of Vice President Curtis and dry Senators in an effort to end the sale of liquor there.

Dr. J. M. Doran, former Commissioner of Prohibition, now chief of the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol, admitted this fact yesterday. He conducted the campaign against bootlegging in the offices occupied by the nation's lawmakers.

Vice President Curtis, reached by the New York Evening World yesterday at his home in Topeka, Kan., where he has returned to spend the closing days of the campaign, said over the long distance telephone:

"It is true that I co-operated with Commissioner Doran and other officials of the Prohibition Bureau in an effort to secure proper observance and enforcement of the prohibition laws in the Senate Office Building.

"I helped to place an agent of the Bureau in the building when it came to my attention that the so-called Man in the Green Hat (George L. Cassidy) was making his headquarters there as a bootlegger. We found he was dealing with a number of Senators and Senate employes and succeeded in putting a stop to his activities inside the building."

One of the agents planted in the Senate Office Building to check up on the liquor purchases of its occupants has been "disclosed" as a pink-cheeked youth of 19, employed at $1800 a year.

Cassidy is the only man thus far arrested as a result of the investigation, although one agent is reported to have obtained possession of a bootlegger's customers list containing the names and office numbers of Senators and Congressmen who have been making purchases of illicit liquor on Capitol Hill.

The agents, planted by the Prohibition Bureau, made daily reports to "higher ups" in the Treasury Department on the liquor purchases of Senators and their staff. These are still in the official files at Washington.

All efforts to convict members of Congress on Volstead law violations have failed. One ex-member, former Congressman Herrick of Oklahoma, was recently convicted in Maryland of running a distillery.

Charges have been made against several members of the House, but all were acquitted.

Although Dr. Doran's agents obtained the names of members of Congress who bought liquor nothing will be done about that as it is not against the law to make purchases.

cago concern. He said he served a prison sentence at Menard, Ill., 16 years ago, "in connection with a confidence game."

Graham, 41 years old, was well dressed and apparently at ease before the Judge. Since his arrest he has been wearing horn-rimmed spectacles.

"We were drinking at the time of the robbery here," he said. "We got some of that high-powered St. Louis gin and we didn't know what we were doing. We didn't even remember what we did."

Maher, informed he would have to take a five-year sentence for the Morrell robbery, said, "What's the idea? Graham's just as guilty as I am. He was waiting for me in the car outside."

It was explained that no one had identified Graham in the poker party holdup and that for that reason there was no charge in that robbery.

THE O'MAHONEY OF KERRY DIES

Head of Branch of Oldest Clan in Ireland.

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, Ireland, Nov. 1.—The O'Mahoney of Kerry, 80 years old, head of the County Kerry branch of the oldest clan in Ireland, died yesterday at his home in County Wicklow.

The original chief of the famous old clan married Sainha, the daughter of Brian Boru, High King of the Irish, who drove the Danes from Erin in a battle near Dublin on Good Friday in 1014. The O'Mahoney, who never forgot the glory of his name, wore the Irish kilt to the end of his days. His full name was Pierce Charles de Lacy O'Mahoney. For many years he was active in politics and only recently had he retired to the peacefulness of his garden.

ATTEMPT TO SHOOT FAVORITE HORSE IN AUSTRALIAN RACE

Rifleman Misses Pharlap, Best Bet for Melbourne Cup—Police Investigating.

By the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 1.—A horse named Pharlap, a favorite for the Melbourne Cup, was being exercised early today by a stable lad who saw an automobile halt and one of the occupants rise and fire a rifle shot at the animal. The boy pulled the horse's head around and no shots hit the animal, but two bullets passed through the lower part of the blanket.

Later Pharlap easily won the Melbourne Stakes at Flemington course to which he was taken in a steel motor van guarded by armed police who accompanied it right up to the starting post.

If Pharlap wins the Melbourne Cup Tuesday, the bookmakers probably will have to pay out a lot of money.

Police are investigating.

structions, talked over the possibility that France might become a party to the section of the London naval treaty specifically limiting naval strength. It is understood the French Premier showed evident willingness to take such a step.

A total naval tonnage for this country of 560,000 tons—about half the British Navy's tonnage—was advanced as a compromise figure on which France now appears likely to act in opening negotiations to make the London agreement a four-Power fact, or a five-Power one, if Italy also comes in.

Tardieu has previously been unable to express any such intention as that at present attributed to him, it is reported, because Jacques Louis Dumesnil, Minister of Marine, has thus far been opposed to reducing France's naval program by so much as a single rivet. But Dumesnil has been won over to a more compromising attitude.

It is increasingly likely, therefore, that after France has ratified its signature to part of the treaty already given at London, she will make an offer in Washington, London and Tokio through diplomatic channels to cut her naval program to approximately half the size of the British fleet.

France is only willing to make this reduction, it is reported, if she is able to maintain a provision permitting her to increase it after due notice in the event any other Power—meaning Italy—should launch a naval program regarded here as menacing France.

Tardieu's position upon the reconvening of Parliament next week will be delicate. If he can go before the Chamber of Deputies with a policy of conciliation toward disarmament without reducing the country's actual security, he will take one weapon away from his political opponents, a fact which could not have escaped his attention in conferring with Gibson. He can also easily obtain a vote in the Chamber for a compromise which would line France up with the biggest three naval Powers.

Details of how this would be done have not yet been worked out, but it would presuppose an understanding between the British and French admiralties on submarine tonnage and other classifications of warships. In other words, if the French and British admiralties can agree on questions which affect the channel, France can agree to limit her tonnage within the life of the London naval treaty.

Paris Press Skeptical of Results of American Mission.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—Some Paris circles are skeptical about the results to be expected from conversations of Hugh S. Gibson, American Ambassador to Belgium, with French and Italian leaders with a view to bringing about a settlement of naval differences.

Pertinax, French editor, in Echo de Paris says that it all seems much ado about very little. Some other commentators share this view.

Pertinax says that Ambassador Gibson thought Italy would be satisfied with theoretic naval parity which would leave France a certain preponderance, but that French experts who had that same view in August and September were undeceived.

Oeuvre, the Left party organ, says Gibson has given the impression in Paris that he has been completely misinformed as to Franco-Italian negotiations.

The newspaper concludes that it would be better for France to study the possibilities of adhering to an Anglo-American-Japanese pact than to delude itself regarding the precarious chances of a Franco-Italian agreement.

FORMER BANK TELLER GETS 3-YEAR TERM

Russell Biederman Sentenced to Federal Reformatory for Embezzlement.

Russell Biederman, former teller at the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney Bank, was sentenced to three years in the Federal reformatory at Chillicothe by Federal Judge Faris today, on his plea of guilt of violating the national banking laws in embezzling $4478 from the bank.

Judge Faris overruled a plea for a parole, presented on the grounds that Biederman, 23 years old, had committed but one crime and would not transgress again.

"I will not consider an application for a parole in this case for the reason that this sort of thing has gone too far in this city," Judge Faris said. "Some steps must be taken to stop it."

Biederman entered his plea Oct. 10, when counsel asked for a parole, arguing that it would be "a club over the boy's head," and that penitentiary acquaintances would have a bad influence over him. The plea was repeated today while Biederman's parents stood before the bench.

Biederman lost the embezzled money in East Side gambling resorts, according to his attorney. He lived with his parents at 6113 Charlotte avenue, Pine Lawn, his father being an employe at Vandervoort's for the last 40 years.

MATRIMONIAL BENEFIT TRUST PROMOTER UNDER ARREST

W. H. Brown, Joplin, Mo., Accused of Keeping $250 Paid for Stock That Was Never Issued.

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Nov. 1.—W. H. Brown, one of a group of Joplin men who planned the organization of the Missouri Matrimonial Benefit Trust here recently, was arrested today on a State warrant charging him with selling $250 worth of stock in the concern and appropriating the money to his own use.

A permit to operate in Missouri was denied the company by the State Securities Department several weeks ago.

Brown's arrest was made on complaint of Minnie Robinson, who charged she gave him a check for $250 for the stock but the stock was not issued. He was released on $1000 bond.

The matrimonial trust proposed to guarantee payment of $1000 to a member upon his marriage, through membership fees and special assessments.

WOMAN IS FOUND SLAIN, DIVORCED HUSBAND WOUNDED

Her Father Says He Had Man Placed Under Peace Bond Last Summer.

By the Associated Press.

GARY, Ind., Nov. 1.—George M. Brown, clerk of the Chicago Board of Works, today identified a woman who was shot to death in an automobile near here early this morning as his daughter, Frances M. Brown. Her former husband, John H. Rork, 32, of Pontiac, Ill., was found in the machine. He had a bullet wound in his chest that authorities said was apparently self-inflicted.

Brown said his daughter, who was 21 years old, was divorced from Rork last April. She had Rork placed under a peace bond of $1000 last July, Brown said, following threats. Hospital attaches said Rork's recovery was doubtful.

NIANGUA, MO., BANK HELD UP

Two Unmasked Robbers Escape With $2500; Posse Pursues.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 1.—Herding the bank cashier and three customers into a corner lobby and forcing them to lie down on the floor, two unmasked men today robbed the Citizens State Bank of Niangua, 30 miles northeast of here, of approximately $2500.

The robbers, both small men between 30 and 35 years old, escaped in a model A Ford coupe, bearing Missouri State license 51782. It is believed they headed north on Highway 66 for five miles before turning west and going through Elkland, toward Buffalo. Sheriff John M. Poyner led a large posse of officers and Niangua citizens in pursuit.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 1.

TOO much emphasis cannot be placed on the constructive efforts our Government is making for international peace. We have not only secured, by two epoch-making treaties, an agreement among the great naval Powers for complete limitation on the building of all kinds of war vessels, but we are taking an active part in the movement to compose the differences between France and Italy so that they may be able to join in a treaty to the same end.

When Europe is financially depressed, when taxation is an almost unbearable burden, her people and Governments will naturally desire to take advantage at once of the savings that can be made in public expenditure by reduced armaments. They could then avoid the new outlays for fortifications and other equipment proposed in the name of national security. Unless the burden is diminished the people involved will reach a point where national security will be of no benefit. They will have nothing to secure.

We should not criticise. We should not underestimate their great difficulties. It is only through true sympathy that we can help. We seek to promote a humanitarian policy of peace and friendship among distressed people.

DOCTOR PERFORMS EMERGENCY OPERATION WITH POCKET KNIFE

By the Associated Press.

ALTUS, Ok., Nov. 1.—An emergency operation performed with a pocket knife sharpened on the sole of the surgeon's shoe was credited today with saving the life of 5-year-old Billy Hinson, ill with laryngeal diphtheria.

Arriving at the home of the child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Hinson, the surgeon found the child near death from suffocation. Artificial respiration had been used unsuccessfully. The surgeon did not have his instruments with him, and considering the emergency acute, he did not even take time to sterilize the knife before laying open the boy's windpipe.

Billy was breathing through a silver tube today and was recovering.

ISSUES APPEAL FOR WORK FOR UNEMPLOYED VETERANS

Commander of Veterans' Organization Asks for Co-operation of Industrial Leaders.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 1.—Paul C. Wolman of Baltimore, Md., commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in a statement given out today by the national headquarters of the organization, appealed for work for unemployed former service men.

Directing his message to business executives, industrial leaders and veteran, civic and patriotic groups, Wolman said it was "neither an appeal for charity nor a request for contributions."

"We merely seek to remind them," he continued, "that their first obligations are to the patriotic men who quit their jobs back in 1917 to protect the peace of the nation.

"The United States Veterans' Bureau has created free employment bureaus for the benefit of unemployed veterans, but the good these offices can accomplish is limited to the jobs that are available."

TWO HOLDUP MEN SHOT

Both Had Been Peoria Mail Carriers for Ten Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 1.—Two men engaged in carrying mails for more than 10 years today confessed to holdups here during the past few weeks. Both were arrested after being shot by Policeman Ed Zerwekh, who opened fire on Robert R. Nash, 33 years old, and Vivian Rouleau, 35, as they were fleeing from a pool hall with $225. The hall was on Rouleau's mail route and he stopped there daily.

Rouleau was shot through the neck while Nash was shot in the hip. Despite their wounds they escaped from Zerwekh but were taken when seeking medical aid.

CELEBRATION IN SOFIA FOR RETURN OF BORIS

Bulgarian King and Bride Mingle Unnoticed With Dancing Crowds.

By the Associated Press.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 1.—Residents danced and made merry all night to celebrate the return of Czar Boris III with his bride, the former Princess Giovanna of Italy.

The royal pair attired themselves in the plain clothes of ordinary Bulgarian citizens and, after midnight, left the palace by the back door to mingle with the merry-makers. They remained outside the palace grounds, dancing and laughing with the crowds for a long time and presumably were not recognized by anyone.

Police measures were so relaxed for the occasion that children and even adults were allowed to climb the grill of the principal palace gate, a thing which old-timers said they had never heard of before.

The Queen spent the forenoon today in the center of one of the most hilarious demonstrations accorded her since her arrival from Italy as the bride of Boris. The young people of her husband's kingdom, from children to university students, romped before her, serenaded her with blaring bands and pelted her with flowers. An enthusiastic admirer flung a bouquet of roses which struck the Queen in the face.

Four hundred prisoners, some political and some criminal, are to be pardoned unconditionally by a special act and the terms and fines of 800 others materially reduced as a sign of favor from the newlywed King.

The only visible police precaution here during the night was the soft-pedaling of such Fascist music as the "Giovenezza" in public resorts. The old Italian favorites, such as "O Sole Mio" and "Santa Lucia" were sung all night long, together with Balkan ballads.

Swedish Firm Cables to U. S. of Successful Work on Picture Found on White Island.

By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 1.—A photostatic film which had lain for 33 years beside the bodies of the ill-fated Andree expedition members on White Island has been developed by a Swedish photographer with successful results, the Eastman Kodak Co. was informed by cable.

The cable, which came from Hasselblads, a photographic firm in Sweden, said: "Andree kodak film developed. Some pictures can be reproduced."

The development of the films may add new information on the expedition to that contained in Andree's diary, which was found beside the bodies.

The cable did not indicate the importance of the developed pictures.

Andree and his companions set out in 1897 by balloon for the North Pole. Their bodies were found last summer by a Swedish expedition which called at the little ice-bound island that had been unvisited for many years.

CHARGES OFFICERS KILLED ALLEGED LIQUOR RUNNER

Father of Floridan Missing Since Seizure of Boat Accuses Three Federal Employes.

By the Associated Press.

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 1.—Warrants have been issued charging two coast guardsmen and a customs agent, with first degree murder in connection with the disappearance of Willie Demeritt, reputed liquor runner, in a pistol fight Wednesday night. Those accused are: Chief Boatswain H. R. Bowery, in command of picket boat 9170; Everett Charlow, engineer of the boat, and Oscar Lounders, customs agent.

The warrants were issued on an affidavit by Clem Demeritt, who said his son had been missing since the Government operatives shot at him as he unloaded contraband liquor from a boat. The younger Demetitt's three companions, charged with importing liquor, pleaded not guilty.

Bowery denied anyone was shot and said young Demeritt had three times previously escaped capture on liquor boats by jumping overboard and swimming ashore.

URGES ELECTION OF EUGENE SARTORIUS AS HARMONY MOVE

ASSERTS THESE TWO POSTS ARE RELATED

Election of Eugene Sartorius, Democratic nominee, as Prosecuting Attorney, instead of Police Judge Rosecan, the Republican candidate, in order to harmonize the activity of this office with that of the city's other prosecutor, the Circuit Attorney, held by Franklin Miller, Democrat, was urged by Owen G. Jackson, a lawyer, addressing a Democratic noonday meeting at 1005 Olive street yesterday.

Jackson charged that the Prosecuting Attorney's office, under the Republicans, is under complete domination of the party machine. He said, in part:

"Partisan politics has become the curse of this city. It is a constant menace to good government, a breeder of vice, graft and corruption. The Republican machine became so brazen in its transactions that the people deposed the Circuit Attorney at the last election with an avalanche of ballots and elected a good Democrat to that office. Immediately on taking charge of this office he drove the professional bondsmen and the 'money changers' from the lobby of the Municipal Courts building and with them the Republican politicians who for eight years prior to his induction into that office had operated a mighty political machine.

"Never before in the history of the city had the control of the Circuit Attorney's office been completely concentrated in the hands of the professional politicians. We saw that office, designed for the legal protection of the people, made profitable to the professional bondsmen. We saw their political agents overrunning that office, prying into its archives, examining confidential papers and invading the private chambers of certain Judges. The dream of the politician had literally come true while the people slept.

"But two years ago there was an awakening and the people arose in their might and with their bare lots of 60,000 majority turned the office over to the Democratic party and back to the people. And what a change has been wrought! By our conduct of this office we have cast into oblivion that ancient slander so often circulated by Republicans, that the Democratic party is incapable of conducting an office free from corruption.

"But the office of Prosecuting Attorney under Republican rule is still under the complete domination of a partisan machine, and the Republicans expect to keep it so.

Says Offices Are Related.

"These offices are so related and associated that if they are to be conducted efficiently and for the greatest protection to the people the occupants thereof must work in harmony and not at cross purposes. This is not possible with the one office being held by a Democrat like Franklin Miller and the other by an ambitious Republican politician.

"We, therefore, call upon the people of this city to elect Eugene Sartorious to the office of Prosecuting Attorney in order that there may in the future be conducted a harmony and in sympathy with the views of our Circuit Attorney. We call upon the people to elect to this office a man in whom the lawyers of this city repose the greatest confidence and one who has been indorsed by an overwhelming vote of the Bar Association. We call upon the people to help us recover the office of Prosecuting Attorney from the political party that desecrated the office of the Circuit Attorney."

Fitzsimmons Defines Good Judge.

Circuit Judge Fitzsimmons, Democratic candidate to succeed himself, with the Bar Association indorsement, told the Seventeenth Ward Democratic Club at the Melbourne Hotel last night that honesty, courtesy and common sense were of more advantage to a Judge than learning. He explained that he meant the intellectual honesty to see the right of every case, the moral honesty to express the right and the courtesy which is a nature of patience, watchfulness against expressing his own opinions to juries and serenity to all the parties in a trial at ease.

George G. Vest, addressing the same gathering, said the custom to levy on city employes for Republican campaign funds might be regarded by them as "a form of unemployment insurance." He added: "This vicious system of the Republican city administration of levying tribute on employes, to be used in buying entertainment and other things in political campaigns, smacks of the feudal system of the dark ages."

URGES ELECTION OF EUGENE SARTORIUS AS HARMONY MOVE

ASSERTS THESE TWO POSTS ARE RELATED

Election of Eugene Sartorius, Democratic nominee, as Prosecuting Attorney, instead of Police Judge Rosecan, the Republican candidate, in order to harmonize the activity of this office with that of the city's other prosecutor, the Circuit Attorney, held by Franklin Miller, Democrat, was urged by Owen G. Jackson, a lawyer, addressing a Democratic noonday meeting at 1005 Olive street yesterday.

Jackson charged that the Prosecuting Attorney's office, under the Republicans, is under complete domination of the party machine. He said, in part:

"Partisan politics has become the curse of this city. It is a constant menace to good government, a breeder of vice, graft and corruption. The Republican machine became so brazen in its transactions that the people deposed the Circuit Attorney at the last election with an avalanche of ballots and elected a good Democrat to that office. Immediately on taking charge of this office he drove the professional bondsmen and the 'money-changers' from the lobby of the Municipal Courts building and with them the Republican politicians who for eight years prior to his induction into that office had operated a mighty political machine.

"Never before in the history of the city had the control of the Circuit Attorney's office been so completely concentrated in the hands of the professional politicians. We saw that office, designed for the legal protection of the people, made profitable to the professional bondsmen. We saw their political agents overrunning that office, prying into its archives, examining confidential papers and invading the private chambers of certain Judges. The dream of the politician had literally come true while the people slept.

"But two years ago there was an awakening and the people arose in their might and with their ballots of 60,000 majority turned this office over to the Democratic party and back to the people. And what a change has been wrought! By our conduct of this office we have cast into oblivion that ancient slander so often circulated by Republicans, that the Democratic party is incapable of conducting an office free from corruption.

"But the office of Prosecuting Attorney under Republican rule is still under the complete domination of a partisan machine, and the Republicans expect to keep it so.

Says Offices Are Related.

"These offices are so related and associated that if they are to be conducted efficiently and for the greatest protection to the people, the occupants thereof must work in harmony and not at cross purposes. This is not possible with the one office being held by a Democrat like Franklin Miller and the other by an ambitious Republican politician.

"We, therefore, call upon the people of this city to elect Eugene Sartorious to the office of Prosecuting Attorney in order that it may in the future be conducted in harmony and in sympathy with the views of our Circuit Attorney. We call upon the people to elect to this office a man in whom the lawyers of this city repose the greatest confidence and one who has been indorsed by an overwhelming vote of the Bar Association. We call upon the people to help us recover the office of Prosecuting Attorney from the political party that desecrated the office of the Circuit Attorney."

Fitzsimmons Defines Good Judge.

Circuit Judge Fitzsimmons, a Democratic candidate to succeed himself, with the Bar Association Indorsement, told the Seventeenth Ward Democratic Club at the Melbourne Hotel last night that honesty, courtesy and common sense were of more advantage to a Judge than learning. He explained that he meant the intellectual honesty to see the right of every case, the moral honesty to express the right, and the courtesy which is a mixture of patience, watchfulness against expressing his own opinions to juries and serenity to put the parties in a trial at ease.

George G. Vest, addressing the same gathering, said the customary levy on city employes for Republican campaign funds might be regarded by them as "a form of unemployment insurance." He added: "This vicious system of the Republican city administration of levying tribute on employes, to be used in buying entertainment and other things in political campaigns, smacks of the feudal system of the dark ages."

Continuing the controversy with city officials over the recent special tax bills in a large district for the Gravois avenue widening, Bernard F. Dickmann, chairman of the Democratic Citizens' Campaign Committee, said at a Twenty-first Ward meeting at the Fairgrounds Hotel last night that his chief complaint was the failure to notify property owners in advance that they were going to be taxed so that they might be heard, something for which the law does not provide. He declared property owners at some distance from the Kingshighway Northwest and proposed Twelfth street improvements did not know they were in the benefit districts, and insisted that regardless of the law the city "in equity and good conscience should give some notice to a property owner whose property may be confiscated, so that at least he may have an opportunity to be heard before judgment is entered against him."

Amplifiers were installed at the Democratic gathering place at 1005 Olive street to accommodate larger audiences at campaign meetings today and Monday. Congressman Cochran spoke there at noon today, as did Lawrence McDaniel, former Circuit Attorney.

REALTY SALESMAN FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL

Autopsy Discloses That Sol Rubenstein, 50, Died of Heart Ailment.

The body of Sol Rubenstein, 50 years old, a real estate salesman, was found at 7:20 a. m. today in a bathroom adjoining his room in the Westgate Hotel, Kingshighway and Delmar boulevards.

An autopsy showed that death was due to chronic myocarditis, a heart ailment for which Rubenstein had been under treatment at various times. A young woman who said she spent the night in Rubenstein's room at the hotel last night told policemen that Rubenstein had complained of a pain in his heart after she had retired shortly before midnight.

She said she fell asleep immediately afterward, however, and did not awake until this morning when the body was found by a hotel employe in the bathroom adjoining.

Rubenstein was a resident of the hotel. Policemen were told by an employe of the hotel that he had said he had suffered heavy losses recently in stock market investments.

On July 19 last Rubenstein was arrested at the request of Chicago police on complaint of Mrs. Bertha Zeilinger of Chicago, who charged he had defrauded her of $9000. Rubenstein denied it, saying the money was lost in a legitimate stock transaction. Later he returned to St. Louis and told policemen the charge had been dropped.

CLEARING PLAZA SITES URGED TO AID JOBLESS

Alderman Waldman's Resolution Asks That City Proceed With Improvement.

A resolution urging the city to proceed immediately with the demolition of buildings involved in the plan for Memorial and Union Station Plazas and the widening of Market street, to provide work for unemployed, was introduced in the Board of Aldermen yesterday by Alderman Waldman of the Twenty-eighth Ward.

The resolution, referred to the Resolutions Committee, asserted that the proposal "would give employment to a great army of unemployed at this time, and the demolition and removal of the old buildings, many of which are unsafe and dangerous by reason of non-occupancy, would be the inauguration of a great step towards the completion of this great project."

The clearing of the plaza sites, said the resolution, would not only provide employment, but "would eliminate these abandoned and unsightly objects from the view of visitors and strangers passing through the city."

Most of the buildings have been acquired by outright purchase and are now vacant, the resolution pointed out, while property in dispute could be taken over by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment by paying into court the amount of damages allowed by the condemnation commissioners.

Comptroller Nolte doubted the value of the suggestion, explaining that he feared if unskilled men were employed for the work, many might be injured, resulting in heavy damage claims against the city. In the past, Nolte said, the city has let such jobs to wrecking firms which use skilled labor and take the salvage for compensation.

TWO NEGROES KILLED, ONE HURT, IN HALLOWEEN FIGHTS

Jealous Woman Stabs Another Who Wore Friend's Suit! Man's Throat Cut at Dance.

Willie Mae McDonald, 24 years old, 710 North Jefferson avenue, a Negro, was fatally stabbed by Dorothy Acholz, 26, Negro, at a Halloween party at 203 South Twenty-second street last night.

The quarrel started when the McDonald woman, impersonating a man, announced that she was wearing a suit belonging to a friend of Miss Acholz, who, in a jealous rage, drew a knife and stabbed her near the heart.

Theodore Franklin, 23, a Negro, was killed, and Raymond Brown, 26, a Negro, 2938 Sheridan avenue, was wounded in a fight at the Negro Knights of Pythias Hall, 3137 Pine boulevard, early today.

Brown and Franklin engaged in an altercation at a Halloween dance at the hall, and Franklin shot Brown in the abdomen. A general affray followed, during which Franklin's throat was cut by an unidentified assailant. He died at City Hospital No. 2 without making a statement. Brown is at the hospital.

WOMAN INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION IN FOREST PARK

Man Suffers Fractured Skull When Hit by Machine at Grand and West Pine.

Miss Juanita Gryder, 25 years old, 4000 Westminster avenue, suffered a fracture of the skull last night when an automobile in which she was riding overturned in a collision on Grand drive near Lindell drive in Forest Park. The drivers, Lloyd McGeever, of the Westminster avenue address, and Claud Wolfe, 1012 Commodore avenue, Richmond Heights, were arrested. McGeever was cut and bruised.

Francis X. McCann, 60, of 12 North Grand boulevard, suffered a fracture of the skull when he was knocked down at Grand and West Pine boulevards by an automobile which did not stop.

ONE-MAN CARS LIKELY ON BROADWAY LINE

Crews Receiving Instruction Both as Motormen and Conductors.

The establishment of one-man street cars on the Broadway line, the city's longest car line, is indicated by a company order directing operating employes to become proficient both as motormen and conductors.

Several hundred motormen and conductors are now "breaking in" at both jobs, and it is reported that more than 50 per cent of the 100 Broadway runs will be one-man operation in about two weeks. A. J. Fink, superintendent of car operation for the Public Service Co., admitted the instruction period for operating employes had started but declined to discuss plans for one-man operation on Broadway. "There has been no definite decision in the matter," Fink said.

One-man cars are now operated on the Southampton line in the city, and on the Kirkwood-Ferguson and Creve Coeur lines in St. Louis County. The Street Car Men's Union has protested against one-man cars, and a committee representing the union called on Mayor Miller recently and informed him that the practice would increase unemployment. On the Southampton line 25 regular employes were placed on the reserve list, and may eventually lose their jobs because of the one-man operation, the union men said. A larger number will be affected on the Broadway line.

There is now pending between the Public Service Co. and the union a proposed co-operative agreement, which was suggested in an effort to bring about a better understanding between the employes and the company. One purpose of the agreement, which would grant the union a closed shop and a share in any profits of the company, is to prevent the discharge of additional men through one-man car operation.

ANSWERING HOLDUP CALL, POLICE FIND BEER SUPPLY

456 Quarts Destroyed in Room Above Grocery; Woman Arrested.

An anonymous telephone call that two drunken holdup men were in the rooms above Mrs. Anna Mehroff's grocery at 2048A John street sent a squad of policemen to the place yesterday afternoon. They destroyed 456 quarts of beer and arrested Mrs. Mehroff, who was alone in the apartment.

A back room in the saloon of Walter Burke, 2870 Missouri avenue, yielded 912 bottles of beer, 104 gallons of beer mash and quantities of alcohol, whisky and gin, when police raided the place.

Liquor was seized in three other saloons and a restaurant. Thirty-six Negroes were arrested in two policy games.

GLASS-SMASHING HALLOWEEN MERRYMAKERS ARRESTED

Policeman Wounded Taking Pistol From Youth—11 False Alarms of Fire Turned In.

Firemen responded to 11 false alarms sent in by Halloween celebrators last night, and police arrested several youthful merrymakers on charges of breaking windows and street light globes.

Patrolman Joseph Reed was wounded in the hand when a blank cartridge pistol he took away from an 18-year-old youth at Lillian and Alcott avenues was accidentally discharged.

Arthur Dwyer, a hardware merchant, turned over to police a 15-year-old boy whom he caught, after a show window in Dwyer's store, 5023 Emerson avenue, was broken by B. B. shot.

An electric sign at Grace Methodist Church, 61999 Waterman avenue, was damaged by stones thrown by celebrators. Street light globes in the 6000 block of McPherson avenue, at Iowa avenue and Wyoming street, and Arlington and Thekla avenues were smashed. Windows in an apartment house at 5323 Pershing avenue wereb roken by stones.

TWO ADMIT FORGING CHECKS FOR $800

Woman With Them Is Cleared in Statements, but Is Held for Inquiry.

With the return yesterday from Dayton, O., of two men and a woman arrested at the request of St. Louis authorities, police announced they had obtained confessions to check forgeries amounting to more than $800, and are searching for two other men named in their statements.

The prisoners said they are John B. Maddox, a roofer; Edward Corey, a chauffeur, and Florence Evans, a waitress. They were arrested after police had learned of their whereabouts through letters written to former employers asking for references and through inquiry by an automobile dealer from whom Maddox had bought a machine on the installment plan.

Police also questioned John B. Holloman, a printer, 3930 Page boulevard, who said that he printed payroll checks bearing the name of the International Shoe Co. for Maddox last June. Four hundred blank checks were printed and police have found that 23, made out in varying amounts, had been cashed. The woman was cleared in the statements of Maddox and Corey, but she is being held pending inquiry.

MRS. THOMASSON'S $5500 AUTO SEIZED ON REPLEVIN SUIT

Taken From Garage in Home of Capitalist's Bride; Default in Payment Alleged.

Deputies yesterday seized the $5500 Pierce-Arrow sedan purchased by Hugh W. Thomasson, 73-year-old capitalist, when he and his bride, Mrs. Grace Thomasson, 27, now a defendant in his suit for annulment of their marriage, were on their honeymoon in Chicago on Aug. 20.

The car was taken from Mrs. Thomasson's home at 56 Broadview drive, Clayton, also a wedding present, on a replevin suit filed by the Chicago Pierce-Arrow Sales Co. In the suit it was alleged the Thomassons, both signers of a $3496 mortgage on the car, had defaulted on a payment of $1165 due Oct. 20.

No one was at home when deputies went to the Broadview drive house, but the car was found in the basement garage and taken to the courthouse, where it was turned over to a representative of the Chicago company.

Thomasson is asking for an annulment on the ground he was tricked into marriage by Mrs. Thomasson.

Missouri Doctor Honored At Quinine Tercentenary

Relics of John Sappington, Who Combatted Malaria Among Pioneers, on Display at Shaw's Garden.

The backwoods radical in medicine whose unorthodox common sense vanquished a chief obstacle to settlement of the Mississippi Valley was assigned a place in the history of human welfare at the opening of the international Quinine Tercentenary celebration at Shaw's Garden yesterday.

Dr. John Sappington, who sent his "anti-fever pills" throughout the Valley from his farmhouse and office near Arrow Rock, Mo., was the man who overturned orthodoxy with experience. His saddlebags and medicine case, including a bottle of the disagreeable stuff that is the only known specific for malaria, were conspicuously displayed in the Henry Shaw Museum, and his romantic story was related to scientists participating in the Tercentenary observance by Dr. Robert J. Terry, professor of anatomy in Washington University School of Medicine.

A hundred years ago, explained Dr. Terry, fever was a worse enemy of the pioneer than famine or the savages. Parties from the East rached the Mississippi so reduced in numbers that they turned back home. Cinchona bark and quinine were known but not respected. Purges, emetics and blood-lettings comprised the orthodox treatment, and to its obvious unfitness might be added the fact that the fever itself depleted the red blood corpuscles.

Attended Pennsylvania U.

On May 5, 1776, John Sappington was born in Maryland. He removed to Nashville with his doctor father, who was his preceptor, and practiced in malarious territory until, at the age of 38, he went to the University of Pennsylvania for medical courses.

There, Dr. Terry summarized from Sappington's own writings, he saw a fever patient treated in the accepted way. The instructor who administering the treatment—or mistreatment—lamented that the patient failed to recover. Sappington suggested that he could banish that fever in 48 hours, and, with quinine, did exactly that.

As a practitioner at Arrow Rock his success with fever became famous. Stowing pills and quinine in his saddle bags, he rode on a routine practice that covered four counties. He was called into Arkansas and occasionally Tennessee, and his consultations took him east through Illinois and as far as Indiana.

In 1832 he retired to his farm, sold his antifever pills by the hundred and completed a book telling laymen how to treat malaria and even giving up the secret of the pills—quinine with licorice, myrrh and sassafras to mitigate its taste and give it an attractive odor.

Evidently, said Dr. Terry, this frontier physician knew the preventive use of quinine as well as its use in treatment. And, he concluded, Dr. Sappington's work spread the use of quinine and made it possible for pioneers, without fear of fever, to make their homes in the West.

Discovery of Magenta.

Further notes on the history of quinine were presented in addresses at the Henry Shaw dinner last night at Hotel Jefferson. Dean Caspari of St. Louis College of Pharmacy related that an attempt to make it synthetically in 1852 actually produced magenta, the first of the long and quite prosperous line of modern synthetic dyes.

Botanical gardens had considerable part in preserving the priceless specific to the world, pointed out W. D. Besant, director of parks and botanical gardens of Glasgow, Scotland. Besant conveyed the good wishes of the city corporation of Glasgow and of the staff of the Royal Botanical Gardens at Kew, the greatest in the world.

Such public gardens, he remarked, had done "much in the hybridizing and grafting of cinchona trees, source of quinine, the dissemination of seeds and the sponsoring of expeditions to obtain the plant in its native South America and establish it elsewhere in cultivation. Kew Gardens, particularly, in 1859, had established it in India. Since 1860 quinine has been available at every Postoffice in India and since that year the price has been reduced to one-twentieth the original.

"The chemist today is a sort of alchemist," remarked George D. Rosengarten of Philadelphia, past president of the American Chemical Society, referring to the discovery of chemical dye in the search for synthetic quinine. "It transforms ill-smelling wastes into exquisite perfumes, deadly poisons into medicines that save life, airy nothings into utilitarian matter. At every turn in modern life, chemistry stares you in the face. You can't get away from it."

Bootlegger in Science.

The chief chemical manufacturer in the world entered that field "through a bootlegging business," Dr. A. R. Van Linge of Maarssden, president of the Nederlandsche Kininefabriek, remarked in a whimsical autobiography. In university days, he related, he learned much of quinine from a great chemist who always came into Delft "bootlegging" a gallon of pure grain alcohol, since he refused to pay duty on it for laboratory use.

Seriously, he said, his interest in the industry dated from a professor's remark, "It's a shame that Holland, which produces cinchona bark for the world, has nothing whatever to say about the manufacture and sale of quinine." So, when he graduated as an engineer and doctor of chemistry, he took a job at $60 a month, married and started the manufacture of quinine in the mountains of Java. And, he added wryly, "in three years we succeded in manufacturing more than we could sell."

"Those three years," remarked George C. Hitchcock, president of the garden trustees, who presided, "began an industry that now manufactures 90 per cent of the world's quinine."

Today the delegates, each invited for pre-eminence in a definite field related to preparation or use of quinine, inspected the 1600-acre extension of Shaw's Garden at Gray Summit.

The Quinine Tercentenary will close with a reception at 8 p. m. at the residence of Dr. Moore at the garden in town.

ROBBED TO REMARRY, THEN WIFE WAS KILLED

Chauffeur Arrested on Tip Three Years After $1031 Holdup.

The need for money to remarry his divorced wife and set up in housekeeping led William C. Martin, chauffeur, into a holdup three years ago, he told detectives yesterday after he and an accomplice in the robbery had been arrested on a belated tip from a police informant.

Less than nine weeks later Martin's wife, whom he remarried after the holdup, was killed by an automobile as she waited for a street car on South Jefferson avenue.

Martin's arrest yesterday followed the arrest of Fred Jeademann, 23-year-old freight trucker, who gave his address as 2622 Lafayette avenue. An informant had named Jeademann as one of the men who held up Alfred Money, American Railway Express Co. collector, at Warne and Lee avenues, on June 14, 1927, and robbed him of $769 in cash and $261 in checks and money orders.

Policemen quoted Jeademann as admitting he had held up Money while Martin waited across the street in an automobile and drove him away after the robbery. He said they split the proceeds and participated in no further crimes. On information furnished by him detectives arrested Martin, who says he resides at 2842 Lafayette avenue.

Martin corroborated the statement of Jeademann and added the information that he needed money to set up in housekeeping and resorted to robbery as the best way to raise it. Both men were identified as the robbers by Money.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy, or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Zionist Case Against the British Labor Government.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE irony of fate willed it so that those elements in Zionism who so highly exalted Ramsay MacDonald and his chief lieutenant, Lord Passfield, two years ago, shall now join world Jewry in its spontaneous and vigorous protest against the treachery, effrontery and cynical breach of faith of the British Labor Government.

In a statement that he issued on Jan. 3, 1922, while touring Palestine, J. Ramsay MacDonald stated: "You may be assured (addressing a Jewish audience) that the Labor party will support the National Home policy. I am deeply interested in the activities of the Jews to establish their National Home in Palestine."

Today MacDonald's Government is charged by Mr. Warburg, chairman of the Administrative Committee of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, with a cruel betrayal of trusteeship; and is denounced by Lord Melchett, England's foremost industrialist, as the Government which committed an almost unparalleled act of ingratitude and treachery toward a credulous and harassed people who believed they had found a haven under the broad aegis of the British flag and the guaranteed word of British statesmen.

No matter how far opinions may differ on the Simpson report and the Passfield policy, the ugly fact cannot be brushed aside that Lord Passfield, the present British Colonial Secretary, misled the Jewish Agency, a body created under the mandate for the express purpose of co-operating with the British Government in the development of the Jewish National Homeland.

The Jewish people throughout the world hailed the Balfour declaration as a Magna Charta because it was prepared after much consideration by representatives of all the allies and associated countries, including America. Great Britain was intrusted to rule Palestine under a mandate from the League of Nations. At the crisis in 1917 the loyal Jewish support stood Great Britain and her allies in good stead. Thousands of Jewish volunteers came forward to fight with the British forces at the critical moment in the Palestine campaign. Thousands of Jews have given up their lives for the genuine effort to establish the Jewish Home for the wandering Jewish soul. They have helped every people under the sun but their own to stand on their own feet, and finally 52 nations of the League and the United States have expressed their gratitude to the Jews by granting them their historic right to build up the land of their fathers and thus made a solemn pledge to world Jewry through the issuance of the Balfour declaration.

Sir John Hope Simpson's report on Palestine and the Labor Government's statement of the future policy in that country have ruthlessly stripped the Balfour declaration of its meaning for the Jewish people. The British proposal to stop immigration and to forbid the sale of land to Jews is undoubtedly calculated to end the building up of the Jewish National Home and is no more than a cruel jest and political hypocrisy.

But let it be known that the Balfour declaration did not give the Jews Palestine and the present white paper will not take it away from them. The newly created Lord Passfield may paralyze Jewish immigration and land purchase temporarily, but he will not paralyze even temporarily the Jewish will to live and to create. He is powerless to go upstream against the workings of the ancient social law, survival of the fittest. The Jews have outlived Assyria, which destroyed Israel; Babylon, which ruined Judea; Hellenistic Greece, which exploited them culturally; the mighty Rome which burned the second temple, and certainly will they outlive the Labor Government.

Despite the betrayal of the champion of liberalism—MacDonald—the Jews have not lost their faith in the liberally minded public opinion the world over. Their appeal for social justice and historic right is now directed to the entire civilized world. The world is not void of clear consciousness. The Jews are confident that their cry will be echoed everywhere. Neither have they lost their confidence in the British people as a whole, whose will the present Labor Government does not express. The current public repudiations of the Government's latest Palestine policy by the leader of the Liberal party, David Lloyd George, and the bitter denunciation by such leaders of the Tories as Baldwin, Chamberlain and Amery, are ipso facto evidences that Lord Passfield does not voice the sentiment of the vast majority of the English people. CHARLES PRINCE.

Needs Only a Majority.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR fine editorial in last Thursday's Post-Dispatch, "An Important Amendment"—referring to Proposition No. 6, the excess of marginal condemnation proposal to be voted upon Tuesday—lacks just one step of perfection. It expresses the hope this measure will receive a vote "in excess of the necessary three-fifths." As a matter of fact this amendment does not require three-fifths, but only a bare majority of those voting upon the proposition. LUTHER ELY SMITH.

VOTE THE BAR ASSOCIATION'S TICKET

It is to be hoped that the complete success of the Bar Association's ticket in 1928 can be repeated at the election next Tuesday. Voters are urged to take with them to the polls the list of judicial candidates approved in the Bar Association's referendum, and refer to it when they are marking their ballots. This list has been printed frequently in the Post-Dispatch, but its success is so important that we reproduce it again on this page.

The great confidence reposed in the Bar Association in 1928 has been borne out. It recommended Franklin Miller for Circuit Attorney against Howard Sidener, and Franklin Miller, though a Democrat, was swept into office by a majority of nearly 60,000. The result is that the office of Circuit Attorney has been conducted with great vigor and efficiency. In the last two years no drunkard has escaped scot free after killing a Pullman conductor; no Arkansas roue has paid a $500 fine for murdering a bellboy; there has been no parallel to the weakly handled Ferguson case.

As candidates for Prosecuting Attorney this year, we have Police Judge Harry P. Rosecan and Eugene Sartorius. Judge Rosecan disqualified himself when, while sitting on traffic cases, he accepted free rides from Dinty Colbeck's Canary Taxicab Co., as shown by that company's books after it went into the hands of receivers. This highly improper behavior on the part of a Judge should be enough to insure his defeat. It is fatal for the voters to temporize or sentimentalize over such men. What the Bar Association members thought of it is reflected in the referendum, which indorsed Sartorius, Rosecan's opponent, by a wide margin. The Bar Association's refusal to indorse Rosecan for the Circuit bench defeated him in 1928, and its refusal to indorse him for Prosecuting Attorney should defeat him now.

There can be no greater evil in a democracy than a corrupt or inept judiciary. Unless the courts retain the respect and the confidence of the people, democracy must languish. The scandals in New York, where judgeships have been sold to the highest bidder, and justice dispensed like merchandise for cash in hand, are a modern illustration of what happens when the people are indifferent to public affairs. The pages of history are soiled with the blood of those condemned unjustly by men of the stamp of Lord Jeffreys, and likewise they are full of accounts of rascals who went unwhipped of justice because of venal or timid magistrates.

Ever since the war we have had an appalling orgy of crime. Many reasons are urged for this condition, but certainly it can never be rooted out if the bench is not honest, upright and beyond suspicion. England has escaped such a crime wave as ours partly because its Judges are traditionally men of the highest integrity and sternly insistent upon upholding the majesty of the law. Eternal vigilance is not only the price of liberty; it is also the price of justice.

St. Louis can safeguard its own judiciary by voting for the Bar Association candidates.

FRACTIONS.

A school news item that fractions are being simplified means arithmetic is taking a step in the right direction. We presume the initial move must be made cautiously but our earnest hope is that the enlightened educators will grow more bold as time goes on. Now that they have started let them keep on until fractions have been banished from the earth. There is no good in fractions. There never has been and never will be. Fractions sui generis are bad eggs. They are the despair of mankind from the school age on. They lose vacant lot football games. They waste precious time and good paper. They make heavier the cross of the teacher. They come between sweethearts and they part wives and husbands. They worry the pie cutter. They are a thorn in the side of the typesetter. Their very terminology is loaded with viplations of the truth. Some of them are called "simple" and "proper," as if any fraction could be simple or proper, and there is talk about "reducing them to their lowest terme" when everyone knows it is impossible to be denunciatory enough to reduce a fraction to its lowest terms. Will anyone speak a good word for fractions? Not even a whisper. Then away with them! Checking the evil will do for a starter, but it can be only that. Extinction is the goal. When dealing with fractions we cannot do things by halves.

ADD FEEDERS AT THE PUBLIC CRIB.

Albert J. Galen, Associate Justice of the Montana Supreme Court and Republican nominee for the Senate, is described as "a huge, hearty, two-fisted, red-faced, lusty-voiced ex-cowboy, with the reputation of being the prince of good fellows and an unexcelled 'mixer'". Yet, pleading a heart affection as a result of service in the army as a Judge-Advocate, Galen receives $218 a month from the Government as compensation. This supplements his $7500 a year salary from the State of Montana. It also appears that this sick man, now carrying on a strenuous campaign against Senator Walsh, is the author of a decision which deprived Montana war veterans of a $200 bonus.

NOT FOR SALE.

Reports of campaign expenditures by 30 candidates for the United States Senate are a heartening piece of news. The largest expenditure is $18,000, reported by Sedgwick Kistler, Democratic candidate in Pennsylvania. In Idaho Senator Borah has spent $333. James Hamilton Lewis, in the extraordinary Illinois contest which has commanded national attention, has expended $13,877, of which $3500 was a contribution to the Democratic State Committee.

States of every character, in all sections of the country, appear in those returns. Some of the candidates, like Mr. Morrow of New Jersey, Mr. Gerry of Rhode Island, Mr. Butler of Massachusetts, are men of great wealth, but they have kept scrupulously within the proprieties. And Senator Cousens of Michigan, richest of them all, has established the impossible precedent of no expenses, not even the traditional postage stamp.

Chastened by the public's stony reaction to her $300,000 primary budget, Mrs. McCormick of Illinois lists her campaign expenses at $10,842. This sum, she explains, does not include the costs of sleuthing the members of the Nye committee by private detectives.

So the method introduced by Commodore Newberry, since the popular election of Senators, and shockingly expanded by Col. Smith in Illinois, and eclipsed by Vare and Pepper in Pennsylvania's "golden primary," has apparently been abandoned. For this correct and admirable attitude the country is indebted to the action of the Senate in exposing these palpable attempts to buy elections and in declining to accept such tainted credentials.

It may safely be written that seats in the United States Senate are not for sale.

GOVERNMENT BY DEFAULT.

It is not a hopeful sign that the three candidates for Congress from St. Louis districts are all unopposed. Niedringhaus, Tenth District Republican; Cochran, Eleventh District Democrat, and Dyer, Twelfth District Republican, are all certain of office because the opposing party was willing to let the election go by default. Such a situation is lamentable, especially in such a year as this when the air is full of political problems of great importance and significance.

Voters in the three districts, no matter how intensely they may be opposed to the incumbents, are deprived of the chance to register their opinions at the polls. Many voters in the Tenth and Twelfth districts, for example, disagree with Niedringhaus and Dyer on the tariff and would like to say so in terms of votes. Both those gentlemen voted to fasten the outrageous schedules of the Hawley-Smoot bill on the taxpayers' backs, and instead of being compelled to face some well deserved music, they are assured of their jobs for two more years without even a struggle. Cochran's record in Congress is a good one. He is usually to be found on the liberal side of public questions. Even so, no man under our form of government is so good that strenuous opposition would not improve him.

We are not living under a dictatorship, or a monarchy, or an oligarchy, but under a two-party system of government. If that system is to endure, strong, intelligent opposition must be furnished to check and supervise the behavior of the party and officers in power. The function of the opposition is just as important as the function of the "ins." In England this fact is so well recognized that the "outs" are referred to as "His Majesty's opposition," and thus assigned as conspicuous a role as "His Majesty's Government."

The three vacancies on the congressional ticket in St. Louis are indicative of our lack of real political leadership both in the Republican and Democratic parties.

COCK-A-DOODLE-DOO!

Throughout the barnyards of the land, the silver lacing shone less brightly on the humbled Wyandottes. Gone was the proud strut of the Rhode Island Reds and drooping low trailed their regal tail feathers. Ashamed to face the world, the Black Minorcas sought solitude behind the henhouse, where the ordinarily jovial Orpingtons were already in hiding. No one would have guessed the downcast Faverolles once belonged to the truly swank pens of France, or that the Plymouth Rocks, of the averted eyes, had come over on the Mayflower. And they weren't the only ones in retirement. Depressed spirits extended far and wide in the world of cackles, oyster shell and eggs. Brahmas, Game, Cochins, Dorkings, Andalusians—in fact, every family except one wore sackcloth and ashes. But that one, the White Leghorns, rejoiced as no poultry had done since the days of their jungle origin. And no wonder. From far-off Vancouver had come word that White Leghorn Hen No. 6, of the famous University of British Columbia stock, had turned in a perfect score. Three hundred and fifty-three eggs in 353 days! As the neighborhood's White Leghorn rooster boasted from the highest fence post, after crowing until he almost broke a hamstring, "There's a mark they all can lay at."

A BEAUTIFUL SYMBOL.

As an evergrowing memorial to the century of peace between the United States and Canada it is proposed by the Association of Gardeners that an "international peace garden" be established somewhere along the boundary line. In the preserve's 1000 acres, 500 on each side, would be planted all the flowers and shrubs native in the neighbor countries, those plants which would not thrive in the border's rigorous winter being grown under glass. The plan is on the way to realization, as many organizations have joined in the movement. Prominent citizens of both countries, including Senator Walsh of Montana, Owen D. Young and former Gov. Smith, are on the committee. It is estimated that an endowment of $5,000,000 will be needed for purchase of the land, planting and upkeep, the project insofar as possible to be financed by public support. As the committee suggests, the garden to have true significance must be built by men, women and children of all classes in both countries. A more beautiful symbol of the good will which the United States and Canada hold for each other would be hard to find. Widespreading acres of leaves and blossoms are especially fitted for keeping green the consciousness of our friendly relations. Generations ago this amity was begun by the Canadian thistle and the golden rod, whose purplish pink heads and brilliant yellow spikes create international peace gardens far and wide over the continent in the early weeks of every autumn.

"YOUNG BOB" CARRIES ON.

One of the best things about the 1930 campaign is the fact that Senator La Follette of Wisconsin went over to Montana to help Senator Walsh. La Follette is a Republican and Walsh is a Democrat, but, despite their different party labels, their political philosophy is much the same. Both believe in equal opportunity for all, special privilege to none, and both believe that dishonesty in a public servant is the unpardonable sin. On prohibition, though, they are supposedly as far apart as Kipling's West and East. La Follette is wet and Walsh is dry, and never the twain shall meet. But they have met, and the meeting does no violence to the Kipling flat, which conceded that

> There is neither East nor West, Border, nor Breed nor Birth
> When two strong men stand face to face, though they come from the ends of the earth!

Politics and poetry—perhaps there is a kinship between those arts. Somebody has defined a poet as "an eagle with the rainbow in his talons." And every now and then a politician appears who resembles that kind of a bird. Anyhow, it is heartening to see partisanship shoved aside for the public welfare. In bespeaking the election of Senator Walsh in Montana, "Young Bob" La Follette is carrying on his family tradition.

Curtain is rung on the Brothers Young.

Ill Effects of the Monroe Doctrine

Writer thinks U. S. did a disservice to South America by Monroe Doctrine; gave stability to group of "tinpot Republics" not yet ready for self-rule; action kept out influx of European blood, needed for continent's progress; believes World War might have been postponed 100 years had Germany had population outlet there.

William McFee in the Thinker.

THE people of the United States, as a nation, neither know nor care very much about what has happened in the last 100 years below the Rio Grande. The cultural, ethical and national ideals of the United States leave the inhabitants entirely unequipped to appreciate or comprehend the Spanish-American genius. The only reason ever accepted for going to Latin American countries, apart from junketing in the bars of Havana, is business.

It is a common feature of any discussion of Latin America to argue that the difference in language accounts for the lack of interest in and knowledge of those countries. When it is pointed out that the number of Americans who can read Russian is negligible, yet millions of Americans are interested in Russian art, music, drama, politics and literature, there is no answer.

It is instructive to consider why, with republican institutions and an enormously rich and fertile territory, Latin America in general and the Caribbean countries in particular, have remained what is called "backward." Is it by any chance due to those same republican institutions?

Some ascribe the reluctance to accept modern educational standards to the Catholic church, which is accused of keeping the population illiterate, as though Protestant populations were invariably highly cultured. Some blame the politicians, an argument which, if accepted, would make New York and Washington the two most illiterate cities on earth.

It is a common error of our radicals to ascribe any rascality in Latin America to North American "interests." If there is one thing we need not export to the Latin American Republics, it is rascality, which is a native product. In most cases the big North American concern, which is accused of it, is merely paying the local graft for permission to exist. In any event, the procedure followed by the United States in the virtual partition of Colombia and the recognition of the puppet Republic of Panama was a brilliant example which private corporations may strive to follow without any hope of surpassing it.

In general, however, the policy of the United States in Latin America has not been predatory. It has been, on the other hand, stupid. The source of this peculiar attitude is to be found in the doctrine promulgated by President Monroe in 1823. With the most lofty intentions and the purest motives on record the statesmen of the United States of North America managed to place a dead hand upon the rest of the two continents, condemning them to a century of intellectual stagnation and political corruption.

In 1815 it seemed likely that the Holy Alliance would proceed to South America, to stamp out what were known as free institutions, although an examination of the histories of the time does not reveal very much freedom save for the politicians. There seems to be something in the Latin American air which stimulates unstable political conditions and a peculiarly ferocious party feeling.

George Canning, seeing England's immense foreign trade with South America in jeopardy, suggested to the Government at Washington a joint declaration of the doctrine which now bears Monroe's name. Monroe, Jefferson and Madison were in cordial agreement; but John Quincy Adams, Secretary of State, interpreted the British proposals as designed to restrict the expansion of the United States into Spanish-American territory. At that time the United States was a small country. To agree to Canning's plan would have automatically prevented forever "the winning of the West." Mexico would have remained as large as the United States, and the colossal mineral wealth of California, Arizona, Oklahoma and Texas would have remained in Latin hands.

Monroe had "recognized" the various Spanish colonies which had declared themselves republics. The British suggestion was rejected, and when Russia claimed the Northwestern coast as far as Oregon, Monroe announced the new policy which bears his name and which became petrified into a dogma, until Roosevelt gave it an entirely new interpretation.

The original Monroe Doctrine crystallized American foreign policy in the Western Hemisphere. The general mass of people lived and died without being aware that their Government by "recognizing" the various tinpot "Republics" which happened to be in precarious existence at the time, had condemned Latin America to a century of sterile struggle. Out of most wars comes a new order, a readjustment of minds, a realignment of forces. The Monroe Doctrine, by isolating Latin America from the fertilizing world currents, perpetuated what was in the beginning an artificial situation.

In the course of a century the North American policy which was designed to protect infant liberties against reactionary despotism has become virtually a universal charter for military dictatorships disguised as Republics. By hastily recognizing the Republics of Latin America, under the idealistic illusion that each of them was a new cradle of liberty as understood by Anglo-Saxon races, the United States unconsciously precluded all future development.

The everlasting see-saw of church-conservative and radical-revolutionary has gradually rendered the entire structure of Latin American politics so brittle that only military dictatorships prevent complete disintegration. The reason is that Latin America had vital need, during the formative years, of the influx of hordes of Europeans, so that a genuine fermentation of the human ingredients might take place. Latin American states are largely synthetic. They are inverted pyramids supported in their unnatural pose by the Monroe Doctrine.

It is not extravagant to suggest that the backwardness of which progressive North Americans complain is the result of their own policy. And without bearing down too heavily upon the point, it may be suggested to the idealists who dream of "world peace," that if the Monroe Doctrine had not precluded Germany from expanding into the millions of empty square miles of South America, Armageddon might have been postponed another century.

Norris of Nebraska

From Time.

GEORGE WILLIAM NORRIS was born on a farm in Sandusky County, O., July 11, 1861.

As an itinerant schoolteacher he roved for two years, finally settled as a lawyer at McCook, Neb. He was appointed County Prosecutor (1887), elected District Judge (1895, 1899). In 1902, as a regular Republican, he was elected to Congress from the Fifth Nebraska District. Galled by the legislative dictatorship of Speaker Cannon, he helped organize and lead a revolt against him which resulted in drastic changes in the House rules. In 1912 he was elected as a Republican to the Senate, where he has since served continuously.

In Congress: He is a front-rank independent who considers partisanship the curse of politics and legislative government. No man in the Senate fights harder for his honest convictions. For 10 years he has kept Muscle Shoals out of private hands. His opposition to Illinois' Frank Leslie Smith, Pennsylvania's William Scott Vare, was a prime reason why they were denied Senate seats. President Coolidge never forgave him for his part in barring Charles Beecher Warren from the Cabinet as Attorney-General. Starting from scratch, he mustered the 26 votes against Charles Evans Hughes as Chief Justice, assisted in blocking the advancement of John Johnston Parker to the Supreme Court. Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, he appointed the subcommittee to investigate lobbying.

He voted for soldier bonus, restrictive immigration, tax reduction (1924), farm relief (1927, 1928, 1929), Boulder Dam (1927), reapportionment, the Jones law (1929).

He voted against war with Germany (1917), the draft act (1917), Michigan's Truman H. Newberry (1923), tax reduction (1926, 1929), the navy's 15-cruiser bill (1929), the tariff (1930).

A passionate anti-militarist, he opposed the Versailles treaty, the League of Nations, favored the World Court with reservations, the Kellogg-Briand treaty, the London pact.

He votes and drinks dry.

Legislative hobbies: Abolition of the "lame duck" session of Congress, public operation of public utilities, heavy taxation on the rich, farm relief by an equalization fee or export debenture.

In appearance he is short, well built, with a square jaw, a high forehead below a shock of gray hair. In his eyes is a droopy, woebegone expression. His smile is wry, tired. He dresses in dark unfashionable clothes. He is an easy, clear, impressive, frequent speaker, handling himself well in debate. Without oratorical tricks, his attack is sometimes brutal, sometimes adroitly sarcastic.

Outside Congress: He lives at the Alban Towers apartments when in Washington, works long hours at his office, where he likes to put his feet on his desk, drawl out his political discouragement at men and affairs. Driving his motor car is a diversion. Not interested in society, he goes to bed regularly at 10 p. m. He sees his principal friends mostly at the Capitol.

Impartial Senate observers rate him thus: A sincere, hard-working, intellectually honest legislator whose conscientious insurgency against cut-and-dried party government has won him the respectful enmity of the Republican Old Guard; a political emotionalist whose heart is instinctively warm for the "plain people"; an able opposition leader more concerned with his own convictions than with his following.

An Authentic Portrait

SIMON BOLIVAR. By Hildegarde Angell. (W. W. Norton & Co., Chicago, New York, $3.)

GOVERNMENT upheavals in South America this year give special point to this centenary biography of its greatest hero in the long fight for independence from Spain. When Bolivar died the nations for which he fought were free but making a tumultous mess of self-government. Embittered at the strife and chaos that had come with freedom, he said shortly before his death what is bound to be recalled now, 100 years later, whether deservedly or not: "America is ungovernable. Those who have served the revolution have ploughed the sea."

This new biography is perhaps the best account of the life of the Liberator, for the average reader, that exists in English. It gives a remarkably complete and, one feels authentic portrait of this Latin firebrand of superlative patriotism and complex personality: a man who shared the almost incredible hardships of his troops in the field, and ran up a bill of $8000 for toilet water while tasting the joys of victory in Peru; who carried on a war of extermination with iron ruthlessness, and halted a voyage for the deliverance of Venezuela for three days to let the lady who temporarily engaged his affections catch up with him; who refused a crown but could not resist the slightest opportunity to issue a bombastic proclamation.

There seems to be little if any new material offered here—the author admits she couldn't get a peep inside the trunk supposed to contain 2000 letters written to Bolivar by women—but a judicious and scholarly selection of the available data is apparent. The chief events of Bolivar's 20-year service in the cause of South American independence are told without cumbersome detail, although sufficient attention is paid to setting to give a picture of the times as well as add vividness to the narrative. A sense of proportion is maintained throughout, no undue emphasis being given such matters as the Liberator's open affair with the wife of the Englishman, Dr. Thorne—although an illuminating letter from the lady to her patient husband is included.

The characterization of Bolivar is not utter eulogy. Simon was no saint, and the author does not try to make him out one. But she leaves the reader with the inescapable conviction that he was a brave and skillful soldier, an able administrator, a sincere patriot and a great man.

The book is written in an easy, informal style; it is very readable despite occasional instances of bad sentence structure. It is excellently documented, having a chronological table, a list of primary sources and bibliography of secondary works, and an index.

RENEGADE. By Andre Armandy. (Brentano's, New York. $2.)

The writer of an adventure yarn who cuts loose from reality and even dispenses with probability has things pretty much his own way. There is ready made a not inconsiderable audience that revels in extravagant and fantastic fiction. If it is something about the French Foreign Legion so much the better. There is a fixed conviction that all legionnaires are heroes and that their daily lives are just one hair-raising exploit after another. Andre Armandy's renegade is of course a legionnaire. He was a renegade before he became a legionnaire. That was why he joined the legion. He hadn't really intended to be a renegade. But there was a woman, a very fascinating creature, and it turned out, after he had told her about everything that he knew about French plans in the world war, that she was a spy. The next thing would have been the firing squad, but he ran away and lost himself in the legion. Afterward he became a renegade to the legion, setting himself up as leader of desert tribes against the legion. It is all very tense and highly melodramatic. There are a lot of readers of books who like that sort of thing and such will find it just the sort of thing that they like. The translating was done by Frederic LeClercq.

PRIZES FOR AUTHOR, DRAMATIST, COMPOSER

To Be Awarded Annually From Trusts Founded by Wealthy Gas Victim.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Foundations to "reward and encourage young and new playwrights, authors and composers who are American citizens," are provided for in the will of Roy Lyndon Danks, wealthy 36-year-old retired merchant, who was found dead of gas poisoning Oct. 26, in his apartment. Under the will, filed for probate in Surrogate's Court yesterday, the foundations are to be established from the residuary estate on the death of Mrs. Doreen Danks, the widow, who receives the income from the estate during her life. Following her death, the residue will be divided in three trust funds, the interest from which will be used for yearly prizes for the American author, dramatist and composer chosen as most deserving by a committee of critics from five New York City newspapers.

The three funds collectively will be known as the "Benjamin Hadley Danks Foundation," in memory of the descendant's father. Individually they will be known as the "Benjamin H. Danks Foundation for the Drama," the "Benjamin H. Danks Foundation for Music," and the "Benjamin H. Danks Foundation for Literature."

The awards are to be made "on the basis of intelligence and artistic merit," the will provides, declaring that "morality shall not be used as a basis under any circumstances." The literary, dramatic and music editors of the New York World, Times, Herald Tribune, Sun and American will form the three committees to make the selections in their respective fields. They are to meet Dec. 15 of each year, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences acting as convenor, and make the award for the previous 12 months.

The testament further provides that in each case the prize-winning work must be the first professional effort of the author. Except for plays produced by amateurs, the playwright must not have had any of his work performed. Musical compositions, which under the will include symphonies, symphonic suites, symphonic poems and concertos for violin or piano, must not have been played at public concerts. Literary works, to be eligible, must be the first published work of the author, the prize to be divided where there has been collaboration.

Although the estate is estimated at "more than $10,000" in the petition which accompanied the will, it is expected that the total will be exceedingly high, since the testator inherited a large fortune from his father, Benjamin Hadley Danks, who was one of the chief executives of the Woolworth company. He had returned from Europe, where he spent the summer, only a few days before his death.

Southern Railway Protests to I. C. C. Against New Waterway Project.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—A protest against extension of Government waterway operations was filed by the Southern Railway today with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The complaint was aimed directly at a project of the Inland Waterways Corporation, which operates Government-owned barge lines, to open a water service on the Illinois River and require railroads to make rail and water rates on a basis lower than all-rail charges in co-operation with the river line.

The Southern Railway argued that "the present difficulties under which rail carriers labor have to do with lack of traffic," and that if a new rail line were to be projected in the same territory the Government would disallow its construction and would treat it as a waste of capital.

The complaint said the water line would ask permission to make rates on the basis of 80 per cent of all-rail charges for like distances and that such a preferential was not justified by the water operating costs.

The Inland Waterways Corporation proposed that joint rates be offered the water line over a large portion of Southern, Eastern and Western territory. The object was to allow the Illinois barges to take care of traffic for a part of its haul distance wherever this was possible.

"The proposed water line would open up no new territory," the Southern Railway protest continued. "It would create no additional traffic, but would depend upon tonnage which it would take away from the rail carriers. These lines are not only handling promptly all traffic now being offered, but they need greatly increased tonnage which they could move without placing any burden upon existing facilities.

"It is impossible for the rail carriers to successfully compete with the Government-owned and subsidized barge line for traffic which the barge line desires and has the facilities to handle. The rail carriers must maintain at great expense their roadbeds and pay thereon enormous Federal and local taxes, while the Federal-owned and operated barge line pays no taxes and the waterways on which it operates are dredged and maintained without any expense whatever to the barge line."

In view of public policy designed to prevent the duplication of transportation facilities, the protest said there was not the "slightest doubt that this commission would promptly deny an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity to construct a new all-rail line designed to reach the territory which the Inland Waterways Corporation now proposes to invade."

Ethiopian Ruler Fires Negro Flyer for Crash

Ras Tafari Orders Harlem Pilot Out of Country—Had Hoped to Exhibit Plane at Coronation.

ADIS ABEBA, Abyssinia, Nov. 1.—The Emperor of Ethopia, Ras Tafari, who will be crowned tomorrow, has ordered the one-time Harlem Negro, "Col." Herbert Julian, out of the country in disgrace.

The Emperor's wrath was aroused because Julian took the royal airplane into the air against orders and descended suddenly and unintentionally in a mass almost at the potentate's feet. Julian was not hurt, but the plane was a wreck; it was a plane of which Ras Tafari was particularly proud.

Ras Tafari had obtained the plane from the daughter of Gordon Selfridge, London department store owner, to demonstrate to foreigners at the coronation that in Ethiopian could fly as well as anyone else.

Julian, well-known among American Negroes for his parachute jumps and his ill-fated flights "around the world" and "from Harlem to Liberia," attributed his accident to jealousy on the part of a French airman.

The Frenchman, a Captain, until recently was head of the Ethiopian air forces. Julian said the officer did not want him to become the "ace of Ethiopia."

Up to the very day of the crackup in the royal airplane, Julian was a dazzling figure here. The Abyssinians, to whom flying still is an amazing accomplishment, were greatly thrilled by his parachute jumps and flying feats.

On one occasion Julian parachuted from a height of 5000 feet, landing almost at the feet of the astonished Ras Tafari. The Emperor was so pleased he presented him with $300 and decorated him with the Star of Ethiopia. The Emperor subsequently gave Julian an additional $1500 to send to his family in New York.

After the smash-up of the plane, Ras Tafari conferred at length with his Foreign Minister. The advisability of putting Julian in jail received earnest consideration. The idea was abandoned only after the Emperor decided it would be too expensive for the Government to feed the prisoner.

The Foreign Minister appealed to the American Consul-General. A temporary visitor's visa was sought, so Julian might return to the United States. Such action was deemed advisable inasmuch as Julian had changed his nationality from British West Indian to Ethiopian.

The request for the visa was granted, but the Harlem "Colonel" was in a bad state of finances. Americans here, however, came forward with loans of a sufficient total to pay his railroad fare to Djibuti.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA OPENS NEW SEASON

Arbos Directs With Usual Clarity as Musicians Respond Perfectly.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

THE St. Louis Symphony Orchestra began its season yesterday afternoon with a program that glorified the great art of Music and its own lengthening tradition. E. Fernandez Arbos, returning to St. Louis for his third visit, directed the concert with his usual ardor and clarity and the musicians affirmed the quality of their training by the perfected nature of their response.

Once again were the thoughtful members of the audience made to realize that intelligent interpretation is more highly to be prized than any other feature of a musical performance. For with that a complete revelation of a masterpiece is always possible even when the tone quality of an instrumental ensemble is something short of ideal.

Arbos' program turned on a contrast between the subjective elegance of Mozart and the objectively descriptive musical language of Maurice Ravel.

The Mozart number was the E-Flat Symphony, one of the three major symphonic works that this knightly composer put on paper in the course of six weeks. Like all of Mozart's music, it has the freshness of content that makes every measure sound as if it were being produced spontaneously. At the same time, it achieves a sort of formal finish and a completeness of articulation. Yet Mozart is never a popular composer to the extent that many of his lesser brethren are. The refinements of his style do not permit the sort of dynamite that blasts an audience out of their seats. Such, at least, was the lesson this reviewer abstracted from the reaction to yesterday's performance. For, while the symphony was rendered with all the light and heat that it demanded, the audience was merely polite in its approval.

The second half of the program was made up of Ravel's "Mother Goose" Suite and Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition" as orchestrated by Ravel. Both were revelations of the French master at the top of his bent in the masterly use of orchestral color.

The Moussorgsky-Ravel numbers were descriptively specific without sacrificing any of the suggestive power of music as an abstract art. Time after time one was startled by the aptness with which a purely musical medium paralleled the idiom of the painter. But even if one did not follow the program the force of the music was virtually undiminished.

"Pictures at an Exhibition" was played here for the first time. Arbos gave it a just and vivid treatment. One hopes that it will have a permanent place in the repertoire.

The afternoon's program was begun with Beethoven's "Egmont" overture.

MERGER PROPONENTS REPLY TO WILLIAMS

Say Ex-Senator Opposes Proposition 5 Because Water Firm Isn't Protected.

The refusal to adopt as a part of Proposition No. 5, a provision protecting the St. Louis County Water Co. from competition for 15 years, was declared to be the principal reason for opposition by former United State Senator George H. Williams to the amendment permitting consolidation of St. Louis and St. Louis County under certain stated conditions, in a statement issued today by the Citizens' Metropolitan Committee.

The statement issued through Mayor Ruth of University City, chairman of the County Unit of the Citizens' Metropolitan Committee, stated that Williams, as a member of the Public Utilities Committee of the Council on Metropolitan Government, insisted on the 15-year clause. "From the moment the committee stood up for the rights of the people," the statement added, "Williams has been very luke warm on the metropolitan plan."

Text of the Statement.

The text of the committee's statement follows:

"The greatest single advantage to St. Louis County made possible by the adoption of Proposition No. 5 is a metropolitan water system. It is proposed to embody in the charter through which the amendment will be put into effect power on the part of the Greater City to acquire the St. Louis and other public and private plants and provide a unified water supply for the whole area.

"There are no physical obstacles to such an undertaking. The St. Louis plant on the Missouri is large enough to supply all the water needed by both sections. A connection with the county system can be made for a few thousand dollars. The only question is, can the County Water Co.'s plant and distribution system be acquired for a reasonable price? It most certainly can be, and by agreement between the Greater City and the water company, too—because the Greater City will have the right to compete with the company in supplying water. This does not mean duplicating all its lines but merely tapping certain districts. The fact that this can be done will make it unnecessary to do it. The company will come to an agreement to sell at a reasonable price.

Spokesman for Company.

"We were confirmed in this belief by the very earnest insistence of the water company and its spokesman, ex-Senator George H. Williams, in the Committee on Public Utilities and the Subcommittee on Water Supply of the Council on Metropolitan Government, that there should be included in the amendment a provision preventing all competition with the water company for a period of 15 years. Ex-Senator Williams was a member of the committee and the subcommittee. The latter held most of its meetings in his office. Ex-Senator Williams argued persistently in the subcommittee for the 15-year clause, and at his suggestion the committee included it among its recommendations. The City and County Metropolitan Development Committee repudiated this recommendation, refusing to sell out the rights of the people to the water company. The right of competition is preserved by the amendment and is an assurance against too high a price for the water company's property.

"From the moment when the committee thus stood up for the rights of the people, ex-Senator Williams has been very lukewarm on the metropolitan plan, and it is for the citizens to judge whether his statements about it are the result of logical reasoning or the product of pique at the defeat of his strategy.

"A metropolitan water service can materially reduce the price of water, now from 50 to 100 per cent higher in the county than in the city. In the more populous sections, there should be no difficulty in approximating the present St. Louis rates. A saving of $10 a year on a water bill is the equivalent of a 40-cent tax rate on a home assessed at $2500. This one saving is ample reason for voting yes on Proposition 5."

Mayor Ruth, in advocating passage of Proposition No. 5, does not speak the mind of his fellow townsmen, Mrs. Mellcene Thurman Smith, former member of the Legislature, said last night in a radio address over station KWK. "We cherish the right of local self-government," Mrs. Smith said. "We are proud of our neighboring metropolis. We respect it as a neighbor but we do not wish it as a parent."

NEWTON, IN RADIO TALK, DEFENDS HOOVER

Also Says Democrats Try to Appear Wet in St. Louis, Dry Out-State.

Former Congressman Cleveland A. Newton, speaking last night over radio station KWK, defended the Hoover administration, attributed the economic depression to conditions abroad, and contradicted the statement of Democratic speakers in St. Louis that the Democratic party is wet.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "neither the Democrats nor the Republicans have any monopoly on the wet or dry issue. There are wets and drys in both parties."

He charged that the Democratic party is trying to appear wet in St. Louis and dry out-State, adding that the part of former United States Senator James A. Reed's address Thursday night dealing with prohibition was not broadcast from the South St. Louis hall where he addressed a mass meeting.

Republican workers held meetings in each of the 28 yards last night and announced meetings in each of the city's 670 precincts for tomorrow. A system of cards certifying attendance at political meetings of employes of the Republican city administration, numbering about 6000, is in use so department heads may be charged with responsibility for a full quota of workers.

WATSON SAYS ALL THE BREAKS HAVE BEEN AGAINST HOOVER

Declares President Has Done as Well as Any One Could, Warns Against Democrats.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, Republican floor leader in the Senate, told a nation-wide radio audience last night that "no man could even begin to describe the appalling conditions that inevitably would come to pass," if a Democratic Congress was elected next Tuesday.

He quoted from a recent radio speech of former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio in which the latter said "if the House and Senate are Democratic, the existing tariff law will be repealed without hearings or any other ceremony." Immediate repeal of the existing tariff law, Senator Watson said, would leave the country without any tariff law whatever and throw the entire business of the nation into "utter chaos."

"We started out to accomplish a great purpose in 1928," he continued, "and have but begun the task. We shall never be able to complete it if voted out of power in Congress next Tuesday, but we shall finish it to the satisfaction of the people if given authority to do so.

"The breaks have all been against Herbert Hoover. No peacetime President has ever confronted such uncertain, such tumultuous conditions, and yet I submit in all candor and good faith that he has dealt just as speedily and just as wisely with each one of them as was possible for any man to do under the circumstances."

GOV. ROOSEVELT DENOUNCES CHARGES MADE BY STIMSON

Assails G. O. P. Campaign Tactics as Bombastic, Slanderous and Defamatory.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Gov. Roosevelt, addressing a Democratic rally in Brooklyn last night, assailed Republican campaign tactics which he characterized as bombastic, slanderous, defamatory and untruthful.

In particular, he criticised allegations made against him in a radio talk by Secretary of State Stimson. He said the Secretary had joined in a campaign of falsification concerning his integrity and motives.

Speaking from the same platform, Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith ridiculed the Republican stand on prohibition as an attempt to straddle the issue and declared the party in this State had opposed practically every progressive issue in the years he had been in politics.

He referred to a speech made by Calvin Coolidge Thursday night, in which the former President said he would not talk about issues and that "issues have a way of disappearing after the election."

"If I were to cite any less Republican authority than that you might question it," Smith said, "but he knows, and I daresay he knows what is the matter with his party in this State."

Reviewing the Republican party's record, he said that for the past 12 years it had been "on the wrong side—deliberately, willingly and knowingly on the wrong side—of every big question."

CLAIMS $10,000,000 ESTATE OF DEPOSED SHAH OF PERSIA

Seattle Artist, Russian Refugee, Hopes to Prove Identity Through Passports.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 1.—Riza Kuli Mirza, asserting he is a Prince and the rightful heir to the Persian throne, yesterday said he had asked the courts to sustain his claim to the $10,000,000 estate left by Sultan Ahmad, deposed hah of Persia. His attorneys said litigation was being started in New York and Paris.

Riza Kuli Mirza, a Russian refugee, now a Seattle artist, said he had no hope of establishing his claim to the Persian throne, but hoped to be recognized as the late Shah's personal heir. Basing hopes primarily on two certificates from the old Imperial Government of Russia, the attorneys think the Prince is entitled to the Persian crown jewsis and royal estates.

The attorneys said Mirza's passport identified him as the man referred to in the two certificates.

But Changes Only Slowed the Craft Down, So He Sold It.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The story of how Henry Ford paid $500,000 for a yacht, spent $1,600,000 to increase its speed, and succeeded finally in making it go only about a fourth as fast as one of the four-cylinder motor cars he makes, was related today by Capt. Walter McLean, skipper of the yacht Sialia.

The Sialia is now owned by A. M. Andrews, New York financier, who bought it from Ford several years ago after the latter had abandoned his effort to speed it up.

Ford put the yacht in the hands of Detroit shipbuilders in 1925, Capt. McLean said, and they cut it in two, inserted a 21-foot bay, removed the steam turbines and inserted Ethyl motors. But the Sialia, after all her fixing, made a test run down the Detroit River at a speed slightly slower than her original pace of 16 knots.

The Sialia was built at Wilmington, Del., for Ford in 1913. The Government used it in coast patrol duty during the war.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Saturday sessions in the sugar market were resumed today, but uncertainty over developments in Cuba seemed to restrict operations and trading was light in all departments. In the spot market no sales were reported and prices were nominally unchanged at 3.42c for spots, duty paid. It was believed refiners would pay this price in certain positions, with holders generally asking 1.32c more.

Changes in futures were narrow and unimportant. The market opened 1 point lower to 1 point higher, and showed little variation throughout the session. Final prices were net unchanged to 1 point lower. There was a little covering and trade buying, which was supplied through liquidation and local selling. Operators were inclined to await the outcome of the elections in Cuba, and the ratification of the recent proposals of the committee for the stabilization of sugar. Sales were only 2450 tons. Closing prices: Dec., 1.43c; Jan., 1.45c; March, 1.52c; May, 1.58c; July, 1.64c; Sept., 1.71c. No. 2 contracts were unchanged at 3.25c for December, with no sales.

Refined was quiet at 4.75c for fine granulated. Second hands were available below this level.

Sugar futures closed quiet; approximated sales 2450 tons. December 1.43; January 1.45; March 1.52; May 1.58; July 1.64; September 1.71.

Dropping Out of "Blue Chip" Class

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Of a dozen blue chip issues—shares selling above $200—trade on the New York Stock Exchange earlier in the year, only two remained among active issues at the close of yesterday's session. They were Norfolk & Western, closing $214.75, and Peoples Gas at $231. Both Allied Chemical and Atchison dropped out of the $200 class, closing at $196.75 and $195.75, respectively.

Allied Chemical, together with Case and New York & Harlem, have sold earlier in the year above $300, but have all declined more than 100 points. Other issues having passed out of the blue chip class included American Telephone, Eastman, Auburn, Union Pacific, Westinghouse Electric and Western Union.

Sugar Production Estimate.

HONOLULU, Nov. 1.—Hawaii's raw sugar production for the current year was estimated by Sugar Factors, Ltd., to total 927,252 tons, largest in the history of the territory. Next largest yields were 913,070 tons in 1919 and 904,040 in 1918.

G. M. C. EARNINGS DROP TO 53 CENTS A SHARE

Profit Was $1.58 in Third Quarter of 1929, Report Shows.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—General Motors Corporation yesterday reported net earnings for the third quarter of $25,470,697, equal to 53 cents a common share, against $70,988,025 or $1.58 a share in the corresponding period of 1929. In the June quarter the corporation earned $53,386,768, equal to $1.17 a share.

The September earnings brought the total for the nine months to $131,403,125, equal to $2.85 a share of common after deducting preferred dividends, against $226,648,335 or $4.96 a share in the comparable period of 1929.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the corporation, said "while earnings have declined due to perfectly evident and fully appreciated reasons, I believe the General Motors organization has established an operating record equal to and perhaps more outstanding than in previous years.

"I feel that as an organization, we have a thorough appreciation of the necessity of continuing and completing the efforts we have put forth during this period. Any organization which will recognize this job and accomplish it is bound to enter the next general forward movement with an attitude of mind and an intensity of purpose and effectiveness that will enable it in every sense to justify its existence."

Sloan said the progress of the corporation could not be measured by the earnings for the nine months, saying there were two factors of greater relative importance this year than last. He cited that the General Motors Corporation obtained a larger percentage of the total automobile business in the United States as measured by new car registrations than in 1929, and in August obtained in excess of 36 per cent of the domestic business. Secondly, he said that inventories of raw materials and finished products and dealers' stocks of cars and trucks on hand were reduced, while cash and net working capital were substantially increased.

Directors will meet for dividend action Thursday. Although the earnings of 53 cents were less than the quarterly dividend requirement of 75 cents a share, Wall Street rumors of a possible reduction were recently discredited by the management. Earnings for the first half exceeded dividend requirements, so that the total for the first nine months of $2.85 a share comes within 15 cents of the entire year's dividend requirement of $3 a common share.

Cash, United States Governments and other marketable securities on hand Sept. 20, 1930, total $220,064,960, an increase from $127,351,530 on Dec. 31, 1929.

Net operating earnings for the first nine months, including equities in undivided profits of subsidiary and affiliated companies not consolidated, amounted to $123,826,052, against $222,848,335 in the corresponding period a year ago. To the net earnings of the second quarter, however, was added non-operating and non-recurring profit of $9,517,943, realized from the sale of common stock in the General Motors Management Corporation. With that included, the earnings for the nine months were $2.85 a share. Net operating earnings alone amounted to $2.63 a share.

CORN FUTURES CLOSE LOWER, WHEAT MIXED

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Nov. 1.—Corn futures closed ½c to ⅝c lower at the week end session. Wheat finished unchanged to ⅝c better. The wheat market for time was influenced downward by more favorable tone of Argentine weather and rust comment but late comment was of less bearish nature.

Corn was unchanged to a fraction higher early.

December wheat opened at 76½, May wheat 81½. December corn 73⅞, May corn 79⅝.

WHEAT IS UNCHANGED AND CORN LOWER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Influenced by late comment on Argentine rust led to a quick rally in wheat prices today at the last. Buying on the part of a leading speculator accompanied the upturn of the market which earlier had declined on account of reassuring news about rust.

Wheat closed nervous, at the same as yesterday's finish. Corn ⅛@⅝c off; oats ⅝@1⅛c down, and provisions varying from a shade decline to a rise of 20.

Fresh early downturns in grain values followed reports that rust danger to wheat in Argentina was decreasing.

Advices were at hand that with a fortnight of favorable weather in Argentina the damage from rust would be negligible. On today's setbacks in prices, oats reached a new bottom record for the season. Starting unchanged to ⅝c off, wheat underwent an all around decline, but afterward rallied. Corn opened unchanged to ½c down, then showed a general drop, and subsequently advanced.

News from Argentina was to the effect that seasonable weather for the growing wheat crop prevailed, and that the harvest outlook was satisfactory, meanwhile, world shipments of wheat were reported as smaller than a week ago, and in some quarters this was construed as bearish, implying a poor demand. Talk also was heard that recent breaks in corn prices would bring about lessening of demand for wheat to be used as feed.

On the other hand, it was pointed out that even with large shipments of wheat from Russia, Europe has been receiving less wheat this season than was the case last year when Argentina was shipping huge quantities of wheat weekly on top of heavy stocks already in Europe. Some here said, however, that granting the Southern Hemisphere crops come through as at present promised, competition could be looked for from January on. Some late advices, though, were apprehensive about Argentine predictions of rain over the week-end and of unwelcome higher temperatures. Corn and oats followed wheat.

Provisions declined with hogs.

STOCK LIST REGAINS ITS BALANCE AS WEEK CLOSES

Rally Sets in During Last Half Hour of Session and Most of Day's Declines of 1 to 5 Points Are Recovered.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The stock market regained its balance at the close of the week today, after slipping and sliding for three successive days.

The list sagged 1 to 5 points or more in the first hour, but a rally set in during the last half hour which canceled most of the day's losses, and carried several pivotal shares a little above yesterday's final levels. The closing tone was firm. Transfers approximated 1,100,000 shares.

Trading was sluggish, however, and the late rally appeared to be largely the result of short covering. It was notable, nevertheless, that the unremitting selling pressure of the preceding three days was lifted. The support accorded pivotal shares around their low levels of the year, together with the slackening of selling, apparently discouraged the bear element.

U. S. Steel Is Higher.

U. S. Steel was well supported from the first and rose to close with a gain of 1¾ points. American Can, American Telephone, Union Carbide and Eastman closed ½ to ¾ higher, selling off 2 points or more. Such shares as Standard of New Jersey, Bethlehem Steel, General Electric, Radio, Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse Electric and Air Reduction gained 1 to 1½.

Coca Cola, a recent weak spot, rallied 5 points in short covering. Allied Chemical dropped 4, then rallied 7½ from the bottom. Ingersoll Rand dropped 9 and rallied 6. American Waterworks declined 4½ and recovered only 2. Gillette was a weak future, dropping 5 to a new low at 26 and recovering only a point.

The outstanding item of corporate news, General Motors September quarter earnings appeared to be a little better than Wall street had generally expected, for the stock firmed up at the start of trading and closed up ½. Although net of only 53 cents a share failed to cover the quarterly dividend of 75 cents, the dividend requirements had been exceeded in the first half, and the company will only have to earn 15 cents a share in the current quarter to cover dividends for the entire year.

Selling of Specialties.

It was notable that several of the prominent shares met good support from the first. The motion picture stocks generally sold off a point or so, but rallied before the close. Most of the day's selling was in specialties and a few of the utilities.

The fact that the market failed as a whole to break into new low ground on the recent decline was generally regarded in speculative quarters as encouraging, although the trading had been rather too sluggish to give the recent resistance levels much of a test.

Today's quietness was not surprising in view of the fact that there is but one more market session before election day.

The market is apt to grow hesitant just before election.

The weekend business and trade reports brought further indications that retail trade was being well maintained, although some reports indicated a quieting down of wholesale buying.

Commodities About Steady.

The commodity markets closed about steady. Wheat was virtually unchanged, while corn and cotton eased slightly.

Foreign exchanges were in the main slightly firmer. Sterling cables at $4.85 27-32 were up 1-32. The Canadian dollar, which recently reacted on movement of gold to Montreal, again turned upward, reaching a premium of ⅛ of a cent.

DUN'S WEEKLY REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Dun's review today says:

The fall season has developed some encouraging signs in business, although caution still governs many operations and the scope of the improvement remains restricted. Another month's movements have reflected a continuance of the changes which have been in process for more than a year and trade has so many ramifications and has become so diversified in character that the transition is attended by numerous complexities. Conditions which in some respects have had no precedent require time for their adjustment and the fact that the present unusual phases are practically world-wide not unnaturally lengthens the period of recuperation. Fluctuation in the weekly rate of activity in any given line is of less importance than underlying forces which determine basic trends, strengthening of the fundamental situation being regarded as essential to ultimate general revival. Progress in the latter connection does not yet show in the principal statistical barometers but the closer balancing of production with consumption, the working off of some surplus stocks of goods, the naming of more attractive prices and the efforts to mitigate unemployment are among the hopeful auguries.

Weekly bank clearings $7,996,946,000, a decrease of 61.8 per cent from a year ago.

CURB CLOSE IS FIRM ON SHORT COVERING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The Curb market closed firm today, thanks to a flurry of covering in the last quarter hour. The earlier part of the short session witnessed a continuation of the dragging decline, which sent some of the leaders to prices that approximated their year's lows, but the small losses were recovered when shorts covered for the weekend.

Electric Bond & Share dropped to within half a point of the 1930 low, 50, but was only ¼ off at the final quotation of 51¼. Middle West Utilities, Brazilian Traction, American Cyanamid "B", and the dated Gas of Baltimore finished slightly higher. American Gas & Electric and United Light "A" were slightly lower, making up most of their moderate losses.

Firm specialties and industrials included Aviation Corporation of the Americas, Walgreen, Niles Bement Pond, Crocker-Wheeler, out in the Petroleum group, rallying Ford stocks.

Standard Oil of Indiana stood out in the Petroleum group, rallying more than half a point. Cosden, Cities Service, Saxet, Humble and Gulf steadied after encountering some further selling in the first hour.

Investment trusts were firm and dull.

COTTON CLOSE LOWER ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 1 to 6 points in response to rather easier Liverpool cables and further week-end realizing.

There was also some southern selling, but offerings were fairly well taken by trade buying and covering at the decline, and after selling off to 11.00c for new December and 11.65c for May, or about 8 to 11 points net lower, the market held fairly steady before the session had advanced far. The trade seemed to pay very little attention to the cold weather reported in the South, or weekend reviews of the domestic goods markets confirming earlier reports of a good business during the period. Liverpool cable said that hedge selling and local liquidation had been taken by trade calling on the decline in that market.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 207,000 bales, against 225,000 last year and 149,000 two years ago.

Futures closed steady, 2 to 3 points lower. December, 11.10c; January, 11.20c; New contracts—December, 11.11@14c; January, 11.25c; March, 11.50@52c; May, 11.71c; July, 11.91@92c. Spot quiet; middling, 11.15c.

CHARGED WITH SCUTTLING SHIP FOR INSURANCE

By the Associated Press.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 1.—The death of Orice C. Roddy, which occurred aboard the American steamer West Cobalt and whose body was brought here by the coast guard cutter Mendota, probably was due to poisoning, Coroner C. D. MacDonald announced today following an autopsy. The Mendota had been sent out to intercept the West Cobalt, on which Roddy was an engineer, to bring him ashore for questioning in connection with the alleged scuttling of another ship, but he had died of a sudden illness before the cutter reached the West Cobalt.

Advices received here quoted relatives of Roddy in New Orleans as saying he was in good health when he left that port.

By the Associated Press.

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 1.—A wealthy Mobile ship owner is under bond here today and the body of another suspect, who died before he could be questioned, is being taken to Norfolk, Va., as a consequence of a Government charge that an American steamship was scuttled in a conspiracy to collect insurance. Other persons are reported to be sought by authorities.

Capt. J. G. Murphy of Mobile posted $15,000 bond upon his surrender yesterday to answer an indictment accusing him of assisting in scuttling the freighter Rose Murphy off the Florida coast in 1927. Murphy said he would plead not guilty. One of his attorneys said Murphy received settlement of marine insurance of approximately $75,000 on the hull of the sunken ship, but litigation was still pending over liability insurance on the cargo.

A coast guard cutter which set out Thursday to intercept a steamer off Norfolk on which Orice C. Roddy was on his way to a British port found him dead and took aboard the body. Roddy was said to have been the engineer of the Rose Murphy.

The Rose Murphy sank while carrying a cargo of phosphate from Boca Grande, Fla., to Norfolk, Va., for the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. The crew escaped in life boats.

In hearing damage suits brought by crew members and others in Federal Court here an effort was made to show that the removal of a valve caused the vessel to fill and sink. However, Judge Robert T. Ervin held in July, 1928, that no intentional negligence had been shown on the part of the crew.

DO-X SCHEDULED TO LEAVE FOR AMSTERDAM TOMORROW

First Leg of Giant German Aircraft's Flight to the United States.

By the Associated Press.

ALTENRHEIN, Switzerland. Nov. 1.—The biggest airplane in the world, the Dornier DO-X, was groomed today for a start tomorrow on the first leg of a trans-Atlantic trip to New York.

The huge craft, which can carry more than 100 passengers, will have about 4400 gallons of fuel in its tanks, enough to keep its 12 engines delivering their 7200 horsepower for 18 hours.

Tomorrow at 8 a. m., weather permitting, the plane will leave the placid waters of Lake Constance for Amsterdam. The cruise will be of about six hours length along the route of the Rhine and thence across Holland to its chief city. The ship's longest flight until now has been of 5½ hours and did not take the craft away from its home lake. It is possible that the ship, leaving here, will descend first at Friedrichshafen, just across the lake, in order to make its official hop-off from a German port.

ACQUITTED OF MURDER WHILE EXPERT WORKS TO CONVICT HIM

H. M. Campbell Freed So Uncompleted Test to Prove His Pistol Was Used Is Dropped.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Calvin Goddard, Chicago ballistics expert, lost his chance to prove that a pistol belonging to Herbert M. Campbell—who was acquitted of the murder—fired the bullets which were found in the body of Mary Baker last April.

Assistant United States Attorney Collins today refused to let Goddard complete tests he had been making to identify 10 bullets fired from five pistols in the presence of the Campbell jury. One of the pistols belonged to Campbell. Goddard testified for the prosecution that the bullets were fired from the pistol. He offered to prove, by a test, that he could correctly match the pistols and the slugs. He had not completed his studies when Campbell was acquitted yesterday.

OFFICIAL QUESTIONED ABOUT VICE EXTORTION

Police Inspector Called in New York Inquiry—Wealthy Girl Says She Was Framed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Police Inspector Patrick McCormack, third inspection district commander, two of whose men have been questioned for a week about vice squad operations, appeared yesterday as a witness in the appellate division's investigation of the magistrates' courts. He is the first high police officer to be called.

The investigators are running down reports of a $5,000,000-a-year extortion ring alleged to have worked with police and informers in having women arrested and extracting large sums for bail and getting the cases "fixed."

The third district comprises the theater, night club and dance hall zone, and the vice squad of McCormack's command has been active in making arrests under the immorality laws.

Patrolmen Daniel Sullivan and Leigh Halpern of his staff were subpenaed by Isidore J. Kresel, special counsel in the inquiry, after being released in $1000 bail by Chief Magistrate Corrigan on a charge of having given false testimony against two night club hostesses. The young women said they were taken to a midtown hotel by two informers and "framed."

Inspector McCormack was questioned about the workings of the vice squad in the presence of Patrolman Sullivan at a private hearing before Kresel and Referee Samuel Seabury, presiding over the investigation. The interrogators declined to comment on his testimony.

Testimony was given yesterday by a girl, said to have been "framed" by an informer after he tired of her. This informer is the young man whose good looks and cream colored roadster are alleged to have been effective in decoying several other women into blackmail traps.

The girl, whose wealthy parents live on Riverside Drive, is understood to have testified that she fell in love with the informer after once accepting a ride in his roadster. Soon afterward he took her to a furnished room and had police raid the place and arrest her, it was reported. As is the custom, he was allowed to escape. Then, according to the girl's story, he tried to make a cash profit out of the incident and went to see her father, saying that for several hundred dollars the case could be "fixed." Infuriated, her father kicked him out of his office and when the girl was tried she was found guilty. She received a suspended sentence and was put on probation for six months.

HUSBAND AND WIFE KILLED

Both Are Shot During Quarrel; Another Man Wounded.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 1.—A man and his wife were killed and another man was wounded last night in what police reported to be a double slaying and attempted suicide. The dead are Alex Yannetto, 33, and Mrs. Carrie Yannetto, and the wounded man is Patrick Cochia, 31, a taxi driver.

According to the story told police the shooting occurred in a rooming house. As the three were leaving, a quarrel ensued, and when Yannetto threw a bottle at Cochia, Cochia fired four shots at him. Yannetto died instantly. When Mrs. Yannetto screamed, police were told, Cochia fired at her and then turned the revolver on himself.

UTAH U. PAINTING STOLEN

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Nov. 1.—The theft from the art gallery of the University of Utah of a Signoremi water color, valued 30 years ago at $1500, became known yesterday.

Prof. J. T. Harwood missed the picture two months ago on his return from Europe, but supposed it had been misplaced. Later he found the broken frame from which the picture had been cut. It is an oriental study.

SHARP DECLINE SHOWN IN BROKERS' LOANS

New York Federal Reserve Report Also Tells of Increase in Savings Deposits.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1. — The New York Federal Reserve Bank, in its monthly review of credit and business conditions finds the position of the New York City banks exceptionally strong and states "they are in a position to meet any demand for funds which may arise."

While indicating that there has been a part substitution of bank loans against securities for brokers' loans from non-banking sources during the past year, the review states:

"The New York banks are now in a much more comfortable position with respect to security loans than they were a year ago. In October of last year these banks had a potential liability of more than $5,200,000,000 on brokers' loans placed for correspondent banks and for customers, a considerable part of which they might at any time be called upon to take over. On Oct. 22, 1930, this potential claim upon bank resources had been reduced to a little over $1,000,000,000."

The principle tendency toward expansion of member bank credit in October continued in investments, all reporting banks showing a gain of about $300,000,000 in the four weeks ended Oct. 22, bringing the total increase from the low point a year ago to more than 51,250,000,000. The October gain was about evenly divided between investments in United States Government securities and other securities, and more than half was in New York City banks.

The review also stated there had been an unusually large gain in deposits of savings banks in recent months, bringing the total close to where it would have been had the rate of growth of the years 1914-28 continued through last year. The deposits of 30 representative savings banks in the second Federal Reserve District on Oct. 10 showed an increase over a year previously of 6.4 per cent, against a gain of only 2.7 per cent in the preceding year, and an average increase of 5.5 per cent in the four years of 1924-28.

Part of the increase in savings bank deposits has been attributed the review explains, to deposits by corporations and wealthy individuals, rather than the general public, in order to take advantage of the relatively high rates of interest, as compared to those obtainable on other types of short term investment. In this connection, it was noted that the deposits in the New York City savings banks alone gained 7.3 per cent, while those in 15 banks in the district outside of New York gained only 3 per cent.

Regarding business activity, the review said: "Available data indicate that the distribution of goods and the activity of business generally continued at a relatively low level both in September and October, with the weight of the evidence on the side of a further decline."

LOSES $16,000 IN RACE FRAUD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—James Kennedy, Elizabeth, N. J., related to detectives yesterday how he met two strangers in a midtown hotel who were on the "inside" of a big horse racing coup. He listened to Mr. Blackburn and Mr. Hilton, as they called themselves, and decided to make a plunge.

Kennedy drew $16,000 from the Central National Bank of Elizabeth and met the two men in another hotel. Hilton stayed with Kennedy while Blackburn took the money "to place the bets." Then Hilton left to telephone and never came back.

CUBA HOLDING ELECTION AFTER BITTER CAMPAIGN

Troops Held in Readiness, but President Receives "All Quiet" Reports.

HAVANA, Nov. 1.—Cuba went to the polls today to elect 58 Congressmen and 18 members of the Electoral College, climaxing a political campaign of bitterness unequalled in the short history of the island republic.

Although three parties were represented in the race, Populars, Conservatives and Liberals, only one, the Liberals, was expected to make any real showing to gain an overwhelming majority.

Soldiers have been stationed at strategic places throughout the island: President Machado received reports that calm prevailed.

SENTENCED TO HANG FOR STRANGLING GIRL

Insanity Plea of Slayer of Young Woman in Kansas City Fails.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 1.—Paul Kauffman was sentenced late yesterday to be hanged for the slaying of Avis Woolery, 17-year-old Webb City, Mo., girl whom he lured to Kansas City, attacked, and choked to death.

A Criminal Court jury cast aside the 31-year-old former convict's contention of insanity and found him guilty of murder in the first degree.

Kauffman, who sobbed earlier in the afternoon when the defense introduced evidence in its effort to show he was insane last August when he killed Miss Woolery and cast her body into a tree pit in Swope Park here, sat stolidly, his eyes downcast, as the verdict was read.

State witnesses testified Kauffman possessed no infection that might have interferred with his mental processes. The only witness introduced by the defense, Dr. E. H. Bullock, former City Health Commissioner here, dissipated efforts to show the slayer acted while insane. In cross-examination, Dr. Bullock, answering a hypothetical question, said "Kauffman knew at least right from wrong."

Depositions obtained by defense attorneys from Kauffman's parents in Columbia, Pa., said the slayer "acted strangely" and at times suffered mental lapses since his return from the World War.

Thursday was designated the last day Kauffman could file a motion for new trial.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m., in Kincaid, Kan., the Woolerys' home, where Avis Woolery was born.

The Magazine Building, tower-like structure built by E. G. Lewis as a publishing plant and administration building in 1905, will be dedicated as University City's city hall at 8 o'clock tonight.

Gov. Caulfield will deliver the principal address. Other speakers will be Mayor Ruth, Circuit Judge Nolte, Walter B. Weisenburger, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, and Rabbi Julius Gordon of Temple Shaare Emeth.

The 2,500,000-watt searchlight on top of the building will be switched on to start the exercises. Following the addresses, the building will be open for public inspection.

VOTE YES ... Help St. Louis Carry Out Its Great River Front Development Program!

ST. LOUIS wants to improve and beautify its Central river front, by widening and double-decking Third Street, which will convert a blighted district, now an eyesore, into a beauty spot of which all Missouri will be proud.

Proposition No. 6 is Necessary for the Early and Successful Completion of the Program

Proposition No. 6 is a Constitutional Amendment permitting marginal condemnation. It does not permit the indiscriminate condemnation of property, but only that bordering the improvement. Its principal purpose is to rid the improvement of unsightly fragments of bordering land, by giving the municipality authority to replot the property, and to control its use, so that it will be in keeping with the general improvement.

Only an Enabling Act

Louis P. Aloe, Thomas J. Dalton, Edward Flad, Frederick D. Gardner, Charles Hertenstein, Frederick N. Judson, Charles Langeman, Jesse McDonald, Samuel Rosenfeld, Thomas J. Rowe, Charles W. Rutledge, Selden P. Spencer, Clinton E. Udell, Wilbur B. Jones, Sec.

Henry S. Caulfield, Counsel was adopted in 1914 by the voters, and provides for marginal condemnation, but the City cannot even consider the advisability of exercising this authority unless the enabling Constitutional Amendment is voted by the state at large.

Other Progressive States Have It

New York, Massachusetts, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin and California possess similar Constitutional provisions.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 1.—Missouri University lost its first Big Six Conference game this afternoon when it met defeat at the hands of the Kansas Aggies.

The score was 20 to 13.

FIRST QUARTER.

The Aggies won the toss and elected to kick off, defending the south goal. Following an exchange of punts, Auker intercepted a forward pass, flipped by Doarn, on the Missouri 42-yard line, and two plays later Nigro passed to Auker, who ran to Missouri's 20-yard streak. A Missouri penalty and plunges by Nigro and Swartz carried the ball to the five-yard line for a first down and two plays later Nigro crossed the goal line but an Aggie offside penalty nullified the score. Two passes failed and Missouri took the ball on its 20-yard line.

For the third time in the period, a Missouri pass was intercepted, this time by Capt. Nigro in midfield. Hadley Kimes replaced Doan in the Missouri backfield. The Aggies had the ball on Missouri's 30-yard line as the period ended.

Score: Missouri, 0; Kansas Aggies, 7.

Missouri's first offensive thrust after the Aggies failed to score were successful passes from Doarn to Van Dyne for a first down but another pass attempt from Doarn found Auker in the way again and the Aggies began another drive on Missouri's 42-yard line. An Aggie first down on the Missouri 31-yard line was soon made. Nigro eluded Missouri tacklers for a six-yard gain, being forced out of bounds. McMillin gained eight yards through the line, Nigro plowed through to the five-yard line, and McMillin went through the left side of the line for the last five yards and a touchdown. Auker kicked the extra point.

Score: Missouri 0, Kansas Aggies 7.

SECOND PERIOD.

Armstrong recovered Swartz's fumble on the Missouri 37-yard line and stopped an Aggie drive. Eaves replaced Kimes in the Missouri backfield. His first pass attempt was incomplete but his second found the arms of Van Dyne on the Missouri 42-yard line. The Tiger end held the ball although he fell down catching it. Eaves then hurled the ball far and wide, Van Dyne grabbed it and ran out of bounds on the Aggie 20-yard marker. Missouri was resorting almost entirely to the air as efforts to break the Aggie line had proved futile. Another pass to Van Dyne and the veteran end fell over the line for a touchdown. Bittner added the extra point by a place kick. Score: Missouri 7, Kansas Aggies 7.

Harsh replaced Capt. Nigro for the Aggies. Missouri kicked off. On the first play Harsh took the ball, fumbled it, and Capt. McGirl of Missouri scooped it up and ran 35 yards for a touchdown. Bittner's goal attempt was wide.

Score: Missouri 13, Kansas Aggies 7.

The play was questioned by the Aggies because of the rule which makes a fumble dead at the point of recovery but officials ruled the ball never had touched the ground.

Harsh, trying to redeem himself, crashed through for a first down. A five-yard offside penalty on Missouri and Swartz' line plunge put the ball on the 50-yard line. Punts were exchanged. Aggie plays failed.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 1.—Northwestern defeated Minnesota U. here today before a crowd of 50,000. The score was 27—6.

Captain Brockmeyer kicked off to Rentner who was stopped on the Northwestern 34-yard line. Neither team could gain consistently and both were kicking often. The Northwestern running attack was smothered and wild-cat passes were not connecting. Minnesota had no success advancing the ball. The quarter ended with the ball in Northwestern's hands on the 26-yard line. Score: Northwestern 0, Minnesota 0.

An exchange of kicks and a five-yard penalty gave the Wildcats the ball on Minnesota's 47-yard streak. Hanley made nine yards through left tackle. Leach made it first down. Rentner passed to Baker and he dove across the line for a score from the two-yard mark as he was tackled. Bruder's attempted place kick was low but Minnesota was offside and the point awarded. Score: Northwestern 7, Minnesota 0.

They exchanged several punts. Rentner tossed a short pass to Baker, who heaved to Hanley in the clear. With one Gopher before him and a touchdown he waited for his interference to catch up and take out that man, then outraced four Gopher players across the goal line. Engebritzen place kicked the extra point. Score: Northwestern 14, Minnesota 0.

Minnesota's line was beginning to weaken under the consistent pounding. A 15-yard penalty for holding forced Northwestern to kick. A few plays later Baker broke through and blocked Munn's kick, the ball going out of bounds on Minnesota's 22-yard line where Northwestern was given the oval. The period ended a moment later with Minnesota in possession of the ball. Score: Northwestern 14, Minnesota 0.

Bruder, Northwestern's "jinxed" halfback, carried the kickoff back 23 yards to open the third period for the longest run of his Big Ten season. Minnesota stiffened and Northwestern kicked. Rentner was hurt on a Gopher rush, but stayed in the game. Moore intercepted a pass from Brockmeyer in midfield.

Russell replaced Rentner and made a first down on tries through the line and picked up eight more on the next play. He made it first down on Minnesota's 27-yard line. With the aid of Leach he made another first down on the 15-yard streak. Leach hit left guard for three more and Russell just missed a first down on the next play. The Gopher line perked up momentarily but with a first down on the five-yard mark when Wentworth took the ball from Russell on a double pass and went outside right tackle for the Wildcats' third score. Bruder converted. Score: Northwestern, 21; Minnesota, 0.

NOTRE DAME STADIUM, SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 1.—Stopped by a scoreless tie at the end of the first half, Notre Dame came back with another irresistible rush in the last two periods today to swap Indiana, 27 to 0, before a throng of 20,000 spectators. Savoldi, Brill and Schwartz accounted for Notre Dame's touchdowns, all of them resulting from long runs.

FIRST PERIOD.

After two fairly even exchanges, Notre Dame got the first break of the game when Ross of the Hoosiers booted a poor punt that traveled only from his 25-yard line to midfield. With the advantage, the "shock troops" started what looked like a touchdown march, only to be halted on the Indiana 23-yard line after two bad passes. Larry Mullins, Irish fullback, juggled and muffed one toss right on the Hoosier goal line.

Ross sailed a beautiful 50 yard punt out of danger. Notre Dame failed to get pas midfield on another march and Jaskwich punted. Brubaker expected the ball to go over the goal line but when it stopped two yards short of the goal, he tried to run with it, only to be down on his five-yard line as the period ended. Score: Indiana 0, Notre Dame 0.

SECOND PERIOD.

Ross booted back on the first play to Jaskwhich on Indiana's own 35-yard line. Jaskwhich fumbled but Koken recovered for Notre Dame. From that point the "fighting Irish" started another march but the Hoosiers fought them down after they had but seven yards to travel for a score. On the fourth down from that point, Dickey broke through and spilled Host for a four-yard loss. Ross again punted to his own 25-yard line.

Rockne injected his first string but after they failed to gain, Carideo kicked to Brubaker, who returned the ball 20 yards to Indiana's 45-yard line. Three tries netted only two more yards and Dauer replaced Brubaker at quarter and attempted a field goal. The FRANKLIN FIELD, PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 1.—Pennsylvania fought off a second half rally by Kansas today to down the Westerners, 21 to 6, in a thrilling intersectional duel before a crowd of 62,000. Two long passes and a 49-yard run back of a kick by Bill Graupner led to Pennsylvania's three touchdowns.

Jarring Jim Bausch, Kansas backfield ace and Big Six ineligible, failed to star in his Eastern debut.

FIRST PERIOD.

Pennsylvania, hitting hard and fast, ripped over a touchdown in the first few minutes to take a lead of 7 to 0. After Bausch, a 200-pound, speedy back, jarred the Pennsylvania line for 10-yard gain just after the kickoff, Kansas lost the ball and Greene passed to Gentle on the Kansas three-yard line. Greene smashed over for the score and Gentle drop-kicked the extra point.

The Kansas line, playing brilliantly, rose to shatter a Pennsylvania bid for a touchdown after Bausch had kicked poorly to his own 44-yard line. Gentle carried a lateral to the Kansas 30-yard line and the plunging of Graupner and Greene reached the 12-yard mark before the Jayhawkers started and drove Pennsylvania back to 17-yard stripe. Kansas took the ball and kicked to Pennsylvania at midfield.

Pennsylvania, concentrating on an open game of forwards and lateral passes, threatened to score again, but the end of the period stopped the attack for the moment. Bausch kicked to Gentle at midfield and the Pennsylvania captain raced 12 yards through tackle on the next play. He was knocked out by a rough tackle, continued to play, and was flattened again when he tried to make a pass. Masters replaced him. Graupner went out of the Pennsylvania backfield a moment earlier in a hard tackle and the Kansas quarterback,

BOOTH GOES OVER, BUT PLAY IS CALLED BACK; 66,000 ATTEND GAME

By the Associated Press.

YALE BOWL, NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—Yale, led throughout by Albie Booth outplayed Dartmouth but was held to a scoreless deadlock in today's game played before a crowd of 62,000. Booth crossed the green goal on a 32-yard end dash, but was called back, due to an Eli penalty for holding. Dartmouth reached Yale's four-yard line, due to a long pass, but lost the ball on downs.

FIRST PERIOD.

Booth took Crehan's opening off behind the Eli goal and raced it out to his 20-yard line. The Elis made a first down in two line plays. The Green held, but after an exchange of kicks Booth led a sharp drive to his 45-yard line before being forced to punt again. A penalty for holding shoved Dartmouth back to her 11-yard mark.

Booth ran back Morton's punt 22 yards to the Dartmouth 38-yard line. The Elis, on a neat lateral, from Booth to Crowley, made first down on the 24-yard mark. The Green braced, however, and took the ball on downs after two of Booth's passes were incomplete. Booth returned Morton's punt to midfield and the Elis again launched a hard drive into opposing territory, quickly reaching the Green 33-yard line.

Again the Eli attack failed and Dartmouth took the ball on downs on her 19-yard line. On Morton's long punt, Booth was forced out of bounds on his own 40-yard line. Then Booth was thrown for a loss on an attempted end run. Dartmouth's substitute end, Mackey, then broke through to block Albie's punt and Capt. Andres recovered for the Green on Yale's 26-yard line, just before the period ended. Score: Yale, 0; Dartmouth, 0.

SECOND PERIOD.

Dartmouth, despite its "break," failed to penetrate the Eli defense, lost the ball on downs and was quickly put back to its own goal by Booth's long punt. The ball rolled over Morton's head to the Green's three-yard line, covering a total distance of 72 yards. Morton was tackled in his tracks. Morton punted out of bounds on his 32-yard line and on the first play Booth raced around his right end, scampering across the goal, only to have the play nullified by a penalty against Yale for holding.

Booth's passing aim was none too good and the Eli ace once more was forced to kick. On his next run back, Albie galloped to Dartmouth's 30-yard line as the Blue kept the play deep in Green territory. Booth threw wild on an attempted lateral pass to Crowley and in the scramble Wolff recovered for Dartmouth near midfield.

Dartmouth seized this "break" and Wolff hurled a long pass to Porter for a 42-yard gain, putting the ball on Eli's seven-yard line. Porter had nearly a clear field until he was forced out of bounds. The Blue defense rose to the occasion, however, and took the ball on downs on its four-yard line after blocking Morton's final desperate pass.

Dartmouth was penalized 15 yards for roughing Booth as the latter was punting. This gave the Elis first down on their 35-yard line and Albie's next boot was downed on Dartmouth's 34-yard mark. The Green tried long range passing without effect. So did the Elis and the half ended, scoreless, after three wild heaves by Booth.

THIRD PERIOD.

Dartmouth kicked off. Booth, from his 27-yard line, raced 13 yards for a first down. He gambled on another first down, however, with a yard to go on fourth down and was tackled for a loss, Dartmouth taking the ball on her 46-yard stripe. Bill Morton then launched the Green's first sustained running attack, registering two first downs as he whirled to Yale's 33-yard mark.

Yale's defense stiffened and the Elis, by a margin of inches, took the ball on downs on their 19-yard line after Dartmouth had advanced 36 yards. Morton returned Booth's punt to midfield. The Green's passing was a boomerang and Yale recovered on her 47-yard line. Booth then scampered around his

WEST POINT, Nov. 1. — The Army's alert eleven overwhelmed the husky University of North Dakota team by a score of 33 to 6, before a crowd of 15,000 at Michie Stadium today. The visitors escaped a shutout by working a neat double pass for a touchdown in the final period.

The Army scored a touchdown before the first period was half over. Little Wendell Bowman, quarterback, carried the ball across the line a moment after he had gone into the game in the place of Carver.

The Army scored a second touchdown when Malloy, sub end, gathered in a forward pass from Frentzel, half back, and galloped over the line standing up. The play covered 27 yards and climaxed a drive from the Army's 43-yard mark. Frentzel's placement kick for the extra score failed. Score: Army, 13; North Dakota, 0.

Stecker, one of the Army's many backfield subs, intercepted a forward pass and ran nearly 50 yards to the visitors' 11-yard line. Frentzel swept around left end to the two-yard mark and Kilday smashed over for the Army's third touchdown. Broshous, goal kicking specialist, went in and dropkicked the extra point which made the score 20 to 0.

The first half ended without further scoring.

Army Pass Scores.

A forward pass from Carver to Sebastian over the goal line and a successful placement kick for the extra point by Herb piled the Army score to 28 to 0 before the second half was five minutes old. The scoring play came on fourth down after the North Dakotans had stopped the Army attack dead on their four-yard line. The pass fooled them completely.

The Army's fifth touchdown followed close on the heels of the fourth, sending the score to 33-0. Carver intercepted a forward pass by Schave in midfield and ran to the visitors 32-yard line. A long pass from Fields to Carver ate up 25 yards and Herb then smashed through center on fourth down for the tally. His placement kick for the extra point was wide.

STRIBLING GAINS TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT IN CONTEST WITH CHRISTNER

REFEREE STOPS BOUT IN THIRD; GRIFFITHS WINS FROM NEWCOMER

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—William L. Stribling Jr., Georgia's boxing pride, strengthened his championship contender claim here last night when he battered rugged K. O. Christner of Akron, O., for a three-round technical knockout verdict.

The cool-headed Southerner fought in impressive fashion and had a wide lead on his veteran opponent when he split the latter's nose with a barrage of heavy left and right hooks half way through the third session. Christner was courageous and aggressive but Stribling's sharp-shooting left spoiled most of his attempts to crowd inside to land body punches.

The blow that damaged Christner's nose landed with the same terrific force as the one that knocked out Otto von Porat and Phil Scott, Stribling's last two victims. The Georgian was spattered with his rival's blood when his left hook struck its mark.

Referee Johnny Brasil quickly decided that Christner, who has given warm arguments to most of the top-ranked heavyweights, was in no shape to continue.

Arthur Dekuh, New York Italian giant, who has been signed as Stribling's next opponent, at Atlanta, on Nov. 11, won a decision over Big Bill Hartwell of Kansas City, in an eight-round semifinal.

Griffiths Makes Punching Bag Out of Greek Heavy.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—But for an amazing capacity for absorbing punishment on the part of one George Neron, a Greek heavyweight, Tuffy Griffiths of Sioux City, Ia., and Chicago, today probably would have had another knockout to his credit.

Griffiths punched Neron almost without interruption for eight rounds in the final bout at the Coliseum last night, but could not upset him.

Larry Johnson, Negro heavyweight and stablemate of Griffiths, also turned in a decision victory, gaining the nod from the judges and referee, over Natie Brown of San Francisco, in another eight-rounder. Charley Retzlaff, stiff-punching heavy from Duluth, Minn., accounted for Andy Shanks of Grand Rapids, Mich., in a hurry, winning by a knockout in the first round.

Rockhurst 26, Wentworth 19.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 1.—Wentworth made a gallant last half bid against Rockhurst here last night, but at the whistle found itself at the small end of a 26 to 19 count. Rockhurst scored twice in the first period and once in the third and fourth quarters. Wentworth got two of its tallies in the third and its last in the fourth. The visitors intercepted passes to make two of their scores.

right end to Dartmouth's 33-yard line.

Dartmouth took a turn at making a defensive stand, stopped Booth and took the ball on downs on its 25-yard mark. Yale lost ground in the kicking duel between Booth and Morton and the Blue was set back to its 21-yard line on a penalty for holding. This helped the Green to open a fresh drive from Yale's 47-yard line, with Morton doing most of the ball toting. The third period ended with Dartmouth on the Eli 33-yard mark.

FOURTH PERIOD.

Dartmouth's passes were broken up and Morton punted over the goal line on the Eli 40-yard line. Morton and Wilkin reeled off two first downs, reaching the 15-yard stripe. Three more line plays yielded only five yards and McCall was sent in for Morton. Instead of trying a field goal, the Green elected a trickly lateral, but McCall was forced out of bounds without a gain, Yale taking the ball on downs.

With McCall leading the next attack, Dartmouth advanced to Yale's 39-yard line. McCall then was thrown for a nine-yard loss and Parker, Eli halfback, intercepted a forward pass on his 21-yard line. Yale was forced to punt after a short gain and McCall returned Booth's punt 15 yards to his 43-yard line. A fumble broke up McCall's terrific plunges and the Green kicked.

On a 34-yard pass, McCall to Wolff, Dartmouth advanced to Yale's 24-yard line, with the end of the game in sight. A lateral was good for only a yard and the next heave failed because the receiver, Wilkin, took the ball a few feet out of bounds on the 10-yard line. McCall grabbed a pass from Wolff, reaching Yale's 13-yard mark. McCall then narrowly missed an attempted drop kick from the 21-yard line, just before the final whistle blew.

The Old Army Game.

THE boy stood on the quarterback.
The other ten had fled;
At him they all had had a crack,
So on their way they sped.

And when that quarter failed to rise
That muchly startled youth,
Discovered to his great surprise
That it was Albie Booth.

Then Albie speaking up, said he,
"It seems they knocked me flat;
But when the Army fell on me,
Where was the Navy at?

"How come no lumbering tank machines
To get in on the play,
And the United States Marines—
Oh, tell me where were they?

"But to the very day I die
And to my grave am hauled,
'Twill always be a mystery why
The Home Guard wasn't called."

The Morning After.

Through its nose and eyes is seen,
And the gate is off its hinges,
Then you know it's Halloween.

And you find your house "for sale"
Your belief in signs and omens
Will pretty apt to fail.

kick was wide and low and Notre Dame took the ball on its 20-yard line. The half ended with Notre Dame charging forward in midfield. Score: Indiana 0, Notre Dame 0.

THIRD PERIOD.

Notre Dame started right back at the Hoosiers with its first team and finally broke through for a touchdown after 10 more minutes of furious fighting. After keeping play in Indiana territory, the "Fighting Irish" started a rally from the Hoosier 39-yard line. Savoldi hammered through for four yards and then broke off tackle for 35 yards and the first touchdown of the game. Caridco place-kicked the extra point. Score: Indiana, 0; Notre Dame, 7.

Notre Dame kicked off to Indiana, but the Hoosiers could not gain a yard. Ross booted to Caridco on the Notre Dame's 44-yard line as the third period ended, the Irish were pushing forward on Indiana's 40-yard line. Score: Indiana, 0; Notre Dame, 14.

The touchdown set the Notre Dame offensive aflame again and two minutes later they took Indiana's kickoff from their own 35-yard line and smashed to Indiana's 26-yard line, from which point Schwartz galloped off his right tackle for another touchdown. Caridco's place kick for the extra point split the upright perfectly. Score: Indiana 0, Notre Dame 14.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Notre Dame rushed to Indiana's 33-yard line, despite a penalty of 15 yards for roughness. Then Marty Brill circled his left end for a touchdown. It was a beautiful run, spectacularly blocked and it was Brill's first touchdown for Notre Dame in his two years of play. Caridco's place kick for an extra point was low. Score: Indiana, 0; Notre Dame, 20.

Indiana kicked off again and on the first play, Schwartz broke for a run of 78 yards that put the ball on Indiana's two-yard line. A penalty on Notre Dame for offside put the ball on the seven-yard line but Brill smashed over for a touchdown on the first play. Caridco placekicked the extra point and the first Notre Dame team was sent home for supper. Score: Indiana 0, Notre Dame 27. There was no further scoring.

M'BRIDE STAYS IN PREP RACE BY 12-0 VICTORY

By Robert W. Herr.

St. Louis U. High, with a revamped lineup, yesterday afternoon showed a team that was as good as any that has worn the Blue and White in some time but not quite good enough to turn back the repeated assaults of the heavier McBride High eleven, and as a result the Colonnaders came out on the long end of a 12-0 score. The contest, a Prep League affair, was played at the St. Louis U. High field and marked the first victory in the league for the winners, who new have won one and lost one in conference play. St. Louis U. High was playing its first league game. McBride still has a chance to tie for the championship, provided the Junior Billikens defeat C. B. C., league leader, next week.

Seven times the McBride backs shoved and plunged their way from midfield to the vicinity of the St. Louis goal line, and five times they were repulsed. Twice, however, the losers' defense failed to click and the Colonnaders pushed over their two touchdowns.

Great Defense.

Early in the opening period the Junior Billikens put on the best demonstration of defensive football that has been seen in the league this season. After an exchange of punts, McBride's powerful attack carried the ball deep into St. Louis territory, and the Colonaders won a first down on the three-yard line. The Blue and White braced and in four downs the winners advanced two yards. St. Louis kicked out of danger after taking the ball and McBride started on its way back.

At the start of the second quarter the Orange and Green crew went to the 11-yard mark. Again the Junior Billikens braced and took the ball on downs. A fumble ruined their chances, however, and McBride recovered on the 20-yard line. With Ralph Kaveney doing most of the carrying, the winners took another first down on the one-yard strip. Three tries failed to dent the St. Louis forward wall, and then on the fourth down Conlon went over for the score. The try for extra point was unsuccessful.

In the third period, McBride again spent most of its time in St. Louis territory. As the period drew to a close, the winners started another determined drive for a score which carried them to the one-foot line, as the quarter ended.

Conlon Fumbles.

Capt. Conlon fumbled to start the fourth quarter, however, and Townsend fell on the ball for St. Louis. The Blue and White kicked, and McBride marched to the 18-yard mark this time before being held for downs. St. Louis fumbled also, and McBride recovered to advance to the nine-yard line. St. Louis held and kicked, but on getting the ball Conlon broke off tackle for 30 yards and a first down on the one-yard mark, and plunged through for the second score on the next play.

The losers, on the defense most of the afternoon, showed considerable ability in this branch of play. Their only spurt, offensively, was a short one at the end of the second period, and was led by a new man, Carl Feilhauer. Starting his first game, Feilhauer, a fullback, showed more, both on attack and defense, than has been evidenced by any St. Louis back this season. Capt. Conlon, Ralph Kaveney and Lou Drone were the highlights of the strong McBride attack.

ARMY DEFEATS NORTH DAKOTA U. BY 33 TO 6 SCORE

the game, North Dakota scored a touchdown midway in the fourth period. Felber, Nedak end, took a forward pass from Schave and was about to be tackled after a short gain when he flipped a lateral directly into the arms of Sarrett, who galloped across the line standing up. The play covered 37 yards. Richmond missed a placement kick for the extra point and the score now stood: Army 33, North Dakota 6.

Numerous forward passes and interceptions marked the fourth period with North Dakota holding its own as the Army coach sent in his second and third string substitutes.

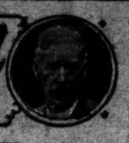
My 50 Years in Baseball



by CONNIE MACK Manager of the Philadelphia Athletics

Philadelphia's 1927 Outfield Group Was Composed of Cobb, Simmons, Lamar, Zack Wheat and French.

IN the season of 1927 we started with an outfield composed of Lamar, Simmons and Cobb, with Wheat and French in reserve. Bayley was at short with Eddie Collins at second, Hale at third and Branom at first.

Branom was a newcomer from the American Association but did not last long, and Poole, Dykes and Foxx were at first before the season ended.

I had signed during the winter another famous batting veteran in Zach Wheat, many years the batting mainstay of the Brooklyn team, and we also had this experiencer player as extra outfielder and pinch hitter.

We started on the wrong foot that season, dropping three straight to New York and tying one at the Yankee stadium and then went to Washington and won three out of four games.

Our work in the first half of the season was poor. On July 4, we were in fifth place and then began to improve. Before the half way mark ended, I made some changes.

Eddie Collins had trouble with his legs and I decided to restore Bishop to second base and keep Collins as my field lieutenant and reservist.

I also dropped Branom as my first sacker and used Poole and Dykes there. Hale was sometimes out of the line up in which case Dykes, who can play any position on the team, was used at third.

Foxx at First.

BY the time the season was ending Jimmy Foxx, whom I thought ought to be in the game regularly, was having his first trial at first base.

Up to that time Foxx had the rating of a catcher but had seen little service behind the bat because Cochrane was used virtually every day.

Yet when Foxx would get his infrequent chance to catch, he looked so powerful at the bat that it gave me a problem. Here I had two remarkable hitting catchers and yet could use only one.

I was thinking of the future when I decided that the most important problem I had to solve was to make some switch where both Foxx and Cochrane could be in the game every day.

After sizing up their respective ability, I decided that Foxx and not Cochrane was the man to be shifted. I thought it would be foolish to try to let Cochrane do anything but catch, for by this time he was the sparkplug of our ball club.

So it was up to me to find a place for Foxx. I had in mind two positions for him, third or first. I decided to start with him at first base and he was stationed there at the end of the season.

Late that season I released Outfielder Lamar to Washington but he did not report and the next season found him in the minors.

As I said before, we did not find our true stride until the last half of the season and then we began to win games and advance in the standing, but it was hopeless for us to try to overtake the Yanks.

The Yanks fairly murdered all opposition in 1927 and while we managed to finish well ahead of Washington for second honors, we were 20 games behind New York.

Yanks' Easiest Flag.

THIS was the easiest pennant triumph ever scored by the Yanks, and the sports writers who described the 1927 race as consisting of one pennant winner and seven tailenders was not far from the truth.

As the season closed I realized that I was no nearer a pennant than I had been in 1925. I knew there was nothing for me to do but to keep on trying.

After our bad start that season, I had instructed my scouts to be unduly vigilant and bring in all the players they could. We scoured the minor leagues and had quite a number of new players purchased for 1928 delivery.

Foxx, at First, Solves Mack's Great Problem

CONNIE MACK'S greatest managerial problem during the season of 1927 was an arrangement of his team so that Mickey Cochrane and Jimmy Foxx could both play in every game. Both were listed as catchers. Cochrane was such a master-workman behind the bat that the tall pilot finally decided that if one of the two had to be shifted, it would have to be Foxx.

So Foxx was stationed at first permanently - after a trial at third. Right from the jump, Jimmy was a slugger at bat and Mack never had any reason to regret his decision.

MISSOURI SCORES AGAINST KANSAS ON FORWARD PASS

Play was near midfield or in Missouri territory most of the rest of the period. Score end of the half was: Missouri 13, Kansas Aggies 7.

THIRD QUARTER.

Receiving the Missouri kickoff on his six-yard line, Harsh returned about 20, Nigro did a beautiful bit of broken field running, carrying the ball past midfield, and a pass, Nigro to Auker, brought the ball to the Missouri 26-yard line. Another Nigro pass went into the arms of Christy Turner, Missouri back, who was downed on his 14-yard line, abruptly ending an Aggie thrust which seemed destined to bring the tying score. Missouri punted to past midfield.

Capt. Nigro led another Aggie drive, featured by a long pass from Nigro to Auker, and a well-placed short one from Nigro to Harsh. The drive ended with Nigro failing over the line for a touchdown on a final six-yard line plunge. Auker put the Aggies ahead with a place kick for the extra point.

Missouri, 13; Kansas Aggies, 14.

A long pass from Van Dyne to Boeckmeier, sub for Campbell, started Missouri's offensive after the Aggie touchdown. The pass gained more than 30 yards. Fisher stopped this Missouri threat, however, by intercepting another Van Dyne flip on the Aggies' 35-yard mark.

Swartz broke through the line, dodged, twisted and finally was down on Missouri's 23-yard line after a 40-yard run. Nigro passed to Cronkite over the goal line, the big tackle being eligible for the flip on the formation used, but the ball was fumbled and Missouri was given the ball on its 20-yard line because of the incomplete flip. A pass was completed from Doarn to Boeckmeier, giving Missouri the ball on its own 40-yard line as the period ended. Score: Missouri 13, Kansas Aggies 14.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Auker got in the way of a Missouri pass the first play of the period and the Aggies started another offensive 33 yards from the Missouri goal line. This attack sputtered and went out and the Aggies lost the ball on downs to Missouri on the Tigers' 41-yard line. Turner soon was forced to punt, and Auker, signaling for a fair catch, took the ball on the Aggies' 10-yard line.

Surrounded by tacklers, W. Asbury signaled for fair catch of Auker's punt on the Aggies' 45-yard marker, Auker kicking high and straight from his goal line. A penalty set Missouri back 15 yards, with a clear field ahead, Boeckmeier just missed nabbing Doarn's pass. Turner punted over the Aggie goal line. Auker returned the punt after two line plays failed, Turner catching the ball on his 38-yard streak and being unable to return it.

PENNSYLVANIA SCORES TWO TOUCHDOWNS AGAINST KANSAS

SECOND PERIOD.

A brilliant forward pass from Masters to Greene carried the ball 41 yards to the one-yard line as the Pennsylvania fullback, after grabbing the ball out of a group of Kansans, fought his way six yards forward. Gette, sub for Perina, hammered over for the touchdown and Masters kicked the extra point to give Pennsylvania a 14-to-0 lead.

Pennsylvania missed another score of moment later when Riblett an end, grabbed a Kansas lateral out of the air at midfield and raced 50 yards to the goal line. Pennsylvania was offside on the play and the ball was called back.

The Jayhawker offense couldn't get started despite Bausch's bullet line driving and the Kansas ace kicked from midfield over the Pennsylvania goal line. Masters quick kick to the Kansas 20-yard mark and when Bausch booted back Pennsylvania had the ball on her own 37-yard line for a net gain in the kicking duel.

In the midst of the kicking duel throughout the rest of the first half, Kansas gained a real opportunity to score, but four successive passes by Bausch from Pennsylvania's 32-yard line were incomplete. There were many penalties in the rough milling on the field and twice long Penn gains were offset by holding in the line. The Pennsylvania advantage was still 14 to 0 at the half.

The beef and power in the Kansas drive made itself felt again as Penn tired and the Jayhawkers, with substitutes starring in the line plunging attack, pounded from their own 36-yard line almost to mid-field. Pennsylvania had trouble solving the trick double passing attack which Kansas seemed to have developed in between the halves.

Bausch, the Kansas terror, was hero and goat in two opportunities the Jayhawkers had to score early in the third quarter. With help from Page and Cox, Bausch led a drive from his own 46-yard line to Pennsylvania's 7-yard stripe, but the rugged Pennsylvania line held for downs. Masters was thrown back to his 3-yard line on an attempted run. His kick was partly blocked and lofted to Bausch on the Pennsylvania 18-yard line, but the Kansas cyclone fumbled, Pennsylvania smothered the ball, and Masters kicked out of temporary danger to his own 34-yard mark.

Kansas broke the ice with a touchdown on the next drive from Pennsylvania's 44-yard line, Madison, a sub-back, ripped 14 yards through Pennsylvania's center for the score after a pass. Madison to Cox gained 15 to start the drive. The try for point failed and Pennsylvania led, 14 to 6.

The drive faltered around midfield as the quarter ended and the stands rolled grimly for the Pennsylvania defense to tighten. The play was hard and rough and injuries on the field were frequent.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 1.—That Drake's football team doesn't function without its captain and quarterback, Lynn King, was demonstrated here last night. The locals defeated Washington University of St. Louis 12 to 0, but scored only during the second half when the Drake attack was under the direction of King. Van Koten, functioning under King, made sensational gains against the Bears.

King entered the game in the second half despite a broken left hand, a memento of the game with Missouri last week. His arrival, apparently, was well timed for it was only by a sudden change of playing style that Drake managed to stop a third-quarter drive in which Washington, led by Sauselle, threatened to score in a single drive from the kickoff.

Washington received the kickoff on its 22-yard line and marched down the field to the Drake 32-yard line before Hornsby was forced to punt.

King Goes Into Action.

King took charge of the Drake offensive on his own 14-yard line. A fumbled pass gave the ball to Washington on its 39-yard line, but the visitors couldn't gain and Drake began its second drive from its 39-yard line.

Van Koten plowed through left guard for three yards. Van Koten ran out of bounds on the Drake 42-yard line. A pass, Van Koten to Brewer, was good for 41 yards, putting the ball on the Washington 17-yard line. The ball traveled about 20 yards in the air and Brewer made a fine leaping catch and then raced 21 yards before Sauselle stopped him.

On a triple lateral pass, King to Brewer to Van Koten, the latter made eight yards, placing the ball on the Bear's 9-yard line. Hornsby was injured on the play, but remained in the game. Van Koten drove off right guard for a first down on the Washington 4-yard line. Van Koten bucked his way to the 2-foot line. On this play, Tyrell was hurt, but remained in the game. Van Koten was two inches short of a touchdown on his next plunge. He then went off left guard for a touchdown. His attempted placekick for the extra point was blocked by Capt. Coover.

In the fourth quarter after a bit of seesawing Don Carlos broke up a Washington advance in the center of the field by intercepting one of Sauselle's passes and went 15 yards to the Washington 30-yard line. Van Koten picked up two yards at center.

The Blond smasher added seven more yards to his collection. He made a first down on Washington's 19-yard line by hitting right guard. Van Koten went around left end. Fumbled and recovered for a two-yard gain. Van Koten rammed between tackle and guard to the Washington 10-yard line. The Dutch boy made a first down on the Washington 9-yard line. He then carried two Washington men on his back to the Bear's 2-yard line. On the next play, Van Koten went off right tackle for a touchdown.

Penn led 14 to 6 as the period ended.

Fourth Period.

Putting up a desperate battle to score again, Kansas drove from the Pennsylvania 41-yard line to the 24-yard mark before the attack bogged down. Passes failed, and Pennsylvania took the ball on downs. Masters promptly shot through tackle to his own 32-yard line to pull Pennsylvania again out of danger.

The tables turned as Pennsylvania rallied and pushed to the Kansas 43-yard line. Masters kicked to the Jayhawker's 19-yard line. Kansas stuck to a plunging game, finally kicked, and Penn took up the drive on the Kansas 36-yard line.

A combination forward pass winding up in a lateral gave Shaake, sub for Bausch, a chance to run from mid-field to Penn's 22-yard line but he fumbled when tackled. Penn recovered, and Masters kicked to Kansas' 43-yard line. The same play brought Kansas to Pennsylvania's 42-yard line and Beach smashed 21 yards through center to Pennsylvania's 18-yard marker. Beach pounded to the six-yard line but the final whistle stopped them there.

Thrills enough to fill an entire football season were crowded into 60 minutes of play at Walsh Memorial Stadium last night and Mr. John Public went home, at about 11:20 p. m., satisfied at least that he had had his dollar's worth.

Rich Chile Walsh and his St. Louis University football players were not at all satisfied with the result, but the Rolla School of Mines delegation was hilariously happy at having tied the Billikens at 33-33. A fine crowd of 11,000 witnessed the thriller.

The night's entertainment was unique in several respects. To begin with, the air was so filled with smoke-laden fog that spectators in the west half of the stadium could not see the east stand. The players were only clearly distinguishable when they were immediately at hand. The picture was extremely drab, for all colors took on a mud-like hue, and bright flood lights were only dull reds. The score was probably the most remarkable feature of the affair for teams will rarely tie at a total above 30.

Clever Attacks.

Both elevens were astonishingly clever in attacking, and both likewise seemed weak on defense. The line, on both sides, was shot full of holes all evening, not so much because the linemen were playing poor football, but because the opposing backs were uncanny in picking holes, adept in open field running, cool and accurate in throwing passes, and almost unfailing in receiving. There was not a single scrimmage fumble in the game, a circumstance which in itself testifies to the unusual skill of the backs on both sides.

St. Louis U. players and partisans will always feel that they should have won the game. In the final quarter, with but four minutes left to play, Halfback Joe Stephan received the Rolla kickoff on his own goal line and ran the ball back 40 yards behind a spectacular and effective "flying wedge." On several line smashes and a 30-yard forward pass, Stephan to McIntosh, the Bills put the ball on Rolla's eight-yard line. But the minute hand was flying around. Bill Salinski was thrown for a loss, the drive through the line started again, but the field judge's gun barked and the game was over. St. Louis had advanced the ball 85 yards in about four minutes and seemed certain to push over the wining touchdown. It was a happy Rolla team that trooped into the dressing room to receive the congratulations of Coach Grant.

Referee Archie Klein's whistle played a prominent part in interrupting the final Billiken drive. When McIntosh caught Stephan's long pass, he was momentarily stopped by a Rolla tackler but spun out of his arms and continued, being forced out on the one-yard line. But Klein's whistle sounded when the first tackler hit the receiver, on the eight-yard line, and so the ball was put in play there. Thus St. Louis fans thought the referee had taken seven yards away from them. Again, on the next play, Salinski, apparently thrown for a 10-yard loss, wriggled loose from a tackler and slipped through to the four-yard line, but Klein's hair-trigger whistle had stopped the play where Salinski had first been tackled. Once more the ball was taken back about eight yards. There was a roar of disapproval from the stands on each decision. Quarterback Charley McKinney said after the game that he was under the impression he had about four minutes of play when he was startled by the sound of the final gun. It is customary for the officials to warn the quarterback of the team in possession of the ball when the two-minute mark is reached but McKinney says he received no such warning.

Rolla, in the words of Coach Walsh, "showed by far the strongest attack of any team St. Louis U. has faced this season." Those backs played like old heads, he thought. "They knew what to do and how to do it. Our own backs played fine football, too, on the attack, but our defense was unquestionably weak. Rolla, I think, has a fine team," said Walsh.

St. Louis, opening with Carl Pike at quarterback, scored its first touchdown in less than five minutes of play and scored again a few minutes later to get a lead of 13 to 0. It looked like a rout and the spectators began to wonder whether all the advance dope on Rolla was blah. Then, suddenly, Rolla got the ball in midfield and on two plays, both typical Rolla "spinners' the Miners scored a touchdown. The ball was kicked off and almost immediately Rolla had another touchdown and when the quarter ended, Rolla was in front, 14 to 13.

That beginning was startling enough, but what followed made the fans giddy. The Billikens marched through to two touchdowns in the second quarter, scoring one on straight line plays and the other via a forward pass, McCoole to Taylor, again taking a commanding lead of 27 to 14. By this time it was evident that attack was going to dominate the game throughout and there were some wild guesses made as to the final score.

In the third quarter, Rolla scored one touchdown, but the Billikens counted early in the fourth period to bring the score up to 33—20. That looked like a safe lead, but a young man named Hylan, who is said to be a better football player than scholar, came into the game for the injured Capt. Schofield, and he went straight to the heart of the business by scoring two touchdowns, one on a long forward pass and the other on a beautifully executed lateral pass. Fritz Hassler's forward pass to Malik, in the end zone, gave Rolla the point after touchdown which tied the score at 33-all and thus ended the scoring.

The game proved costly in that three Billiken regulars were badly battered. Fred Joseph, tackle, went out with a torn shoulder ligament; Center Muellerielle had his right elbow mashed up so that he couldn't pass the ball, and Fullback LaPresta couldn't go back in the second half because of a hip injury.

Two Great Quarters.

The judgment and all around play of the rival quarterbacks, Thornton of Rolla and McKinney of St. Louis, constituted one of the bright features of the game.

In mid-field, Rolla seemed able to smash the line for gains whenever they chose. The Billikens held them in spite of all their pounding in the closing minutes of the second quarter. The Miners were held for downs on the one-foot line.

TUNNEY'S TRIAL TO BE RESUMED NEXT MONDAY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The half million dollar battle between Gene Tunney and Timothy J. Mara, sports promoter, was ordered into a larger courtroom for resumption of the trial Monday to accommodate the crowds eager to hear how heavyweight champions are made.

Mara, who alleges Tunney broke a contract to pay him 10 per cent of his purse for the first Dempsey right and 25 per cent of subsequent earnings, began the story yesterday. He was under cross-examination when court adjourned.

A number of telegrams and letters passing between Mara and Tunney were introduced. One communication introduced by Emory R. Buckner, defense counsel, written by Mara to Tunney on March 4, 1926, when the latter was at Miami Beach, Fla., read:

"If you can get around to being on the level with yourself and others who have your interests at heart, you can still fight Berlenbach in June and Dempsey on Labor day.

"I know if I were you, I would run away from social engagements, lay aside the typewriter and golf sticks, sell the dress suit and get back into the game you have picked to follow. If you think you can make any money playing around in a social way, you got another guess coming. Up here is where you belong if you are anxious to amount to anything in the fight game, not pounding out a lot of gaff in a country where a man is bound to become sluggish and stale off. Think this over."

In a postscript he added: "By the way, who have you fought that justifies Dempsey match?"

Substitutes on Bench Give Plenty of Moral Support to Billikens

By James M. Gould.

An entirely different angle to a football game—a sort of "worm's-eye view"—is obtained watching a struggle from the bench of one of the contending teams. Here's how the St. Louis U.-Rolla battle looked from the Billiken bench.

FIRST QUARTER—Head Coach Walsh, his assistant, Elmer Wynne, and Quarterback Charley McKinney kneeling in front of one end of the bench. Joe Maxwell, the line coach, down at the other end. Walsh, smoking a cigarette and Maxwell a big cigar. Not a word from the substitutes as the Billikens kick off. Bombs sound. Short runback and next Rolla play is smeared. The subs begin to mutter. La Presta makes first request to go in. Gazelle makes two good gains. "Why not try that left end?" says O'Brien and, as if Pike heard it on the field, he calls the play and McCoole tears off fine gain. "See that end, La Presta?" says Walsh, not turning around. Walsh lights his fourth cigarette and McKinney peers into the smoke. Walsh, Wynne and McKinney confer as Rolla takes time out. Gazelle and McCoole cut through and Gazelle goes over. The bench rises as one man. They begin to talk now.

"Where's that offense we heard so much about?" asks one. He is to learn later, but Rolla hardly has had ball. Rolla kicks and again the Billiken offense gets going. On to the Rolla 25-yard line. Then, stopped, and Pike calls "Time out." "What for?" Walsh wants to know. It isn't the proper time, he thinks. Play resumed. "Try No. 42," says a sub and, again mental telepathy works. That play is called and McCoole runs for second touchdown. The bench relaxes. After all the talk, the Miners are to be easy.

Walsh Talks to Himself.

But, now it's Rolla's turn. They receive a kick and in two plays, score and kick goal. Walsh gets up and walks up and down, saying hard things under his breath. "It's that old 'spinner-play,'" he says to the subs, "25 years old and they can't stop it." Rolla kicks but St. Louis can make little advance. "They're loafing," yells Walsh as Rolla gets the ball and, in a shake, is over for a second touchdown. The goal is kicked and the Miners lead, 14—13. The quarter ends.

SECOND QUARTER — McKinney is in at quarter now with La Presta in Salinsky's place. La Presta gets off a beautiful 50-yard kick and the subs applaud, rather decorously, one thinks. Joseph comes out crying mad. Walsh talks to him a second. La Presta kicks cleverly out of bounds on Rolla's one-yard line and Rolla soon returns the kick. Two line plays and La Presta cross-bucks 20 yards for a score and kicks goal. The Billikens are ahead again. Walsh relaxes a bit. "Wake up, Muellerielle," he yells as a Rolla play goes through center. The coach doesn't know the center is hurt. A long pass, McKinney to Taylor, scores and La Presta adds point to make score 27—14, Billikens up, at the half.

Billiken Center May Be Out for Rest of Season

WHEN Cecil Muellerielle, St. Louis U. center, was hurt in last night's game, the injury may have marked the end of his play this season. An examination showed that the ligaments of his right arm were badly torn. This kind of injury sometimes, doctors say, results in stiffening of the hurt member which lasts indeterminately.

It is certain that Muellerielle will not play against Loyola of Chicago next Friday night, and physicians say his chance of playing against either Loyola of New Orleans or Washington are extremely slim.

Why Don't They Use Hands.

THIRD QUARTER—McLeod is in at center for St. Louis. Muellerielle is badly hurt. Billiken plays stopped. "See," says Wynne, "Kimmel isn't following interference." "Let me in there," asks Capt. Gazelle. McKinney, not yet in this half, cries, "Why don't they use their hands?" as St. Louis line gives way. McGowan goes in at end to relieve Taylor. A long Rolla pass succeeds, and then the old "spinner," and Thornton scores to make the tally 27—20. "That's enough," says Walsh, and in goes McKinney. Pike is out and comes off full of criticism of himself. Bockrath gets a chance at tackle. No further scoring in the quarter. Walsh tells Joe Stephan, "When we get the ball, you go in."

FOURTH QUARTER—Stephan is in. Salinski tears off a fine gain and Schofield, Rolla star, is hurt and out of game. A great back. McKinney hurls a pass to Stephan almost on the goal line, and on next play Stephan is over. The try-for-point kick is blocked. St. Louis leads, 33—20. It was the end of the St. Louis scoring. Rolla gets possession of the ball and on a backward-lateral pass and a following long forward scores a touchdown, but fails to add extra point. The Miners need a touchdown and extra point to tie, and proceed to get it on passes through the smoke of the night. More drama. "Block that kick," the subs on the bench yell. But Rolla gambles. It isn't a kick; it's a pass, and it succeeds. The score is tied, 33—33. With only a few minutes left, the Billikens rally. A long pass, Stephan to McIntosh, puts the ball on Rolla's one-yard line, but the referee's whistle has sounded and valuable ground is lost. Walsh rails at Fate. Again Salinski's dash is stopped by the whistle. The gun barks the end of a dramatic contest.

KANSAS FANS ASKED TO BE COURTEOUS TO MISSOURI FRESHMEN

The officials asked that feelings aroused by Missouri's prosecution of the University of Kansas on the question of the latter school's eligibility relations be restrained.

Silvers Outpoints Fargione.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Pal Silvers, middleweight, outpointed Vincent Fargione, of Philadelphia, in the main bout at St. Nicholas Arena last night. It was a close contest and a rally staged by Silvers in the closing rounds gained him the verdict. Silvers weighed 160 pounds, Fargione 165. In the semifinal of eight rounds, Emil Rossi, 144, outpointed Johnny O'Keefe, of Garfield, N. J., 147. It was a hard fought bout throughout.

HORSESHOE BRINGS BACK IOWA'S GREAT TRACK DAY

WATERLOO, Ia., Nov. 1.—A horseshoe that once clad the flying foot of Axtel, fastest horse of his time, is in the possession of J. H. Fitzgerald here and recalls the racing days of the 90's when Independence, Ia., was among the horse racing centers of America.

The shoe came to Fitzgerald indirectly from C. W. Williams, owner of Axtel, holder of many records, and Allerton, another famous horse of the 90's. Crowds of 40,000 to 50,000 often came to see the Independence racing programs in those days.

When horse racing waned in this section Williams sold his stable and became an evangelist. He is now raising purebred cattle near Galesburg, Ill. When he sold his horses Axtel brought a price of $150,000 and Allerton $100,000.

DAYTONA BEACH SPEED CLASSIC DRAWS 3 CARS

By the Associated Press.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—Another battle of iron steeds for world land speed honors is to be fought over crystal sands of the ocean course here in January by drivers of three of the fastest automobiles ever created.

At that time a triple assault with powerful, streamlined juggernauts is to be made upon the automobile straightaway speed record of 231 miles an hour, established here two years ago by the late Sir Henry Segrave of Great Britain.

Definite announcement that Capt. Malcolm Campbell, another Britisher and former record holder, plans to return for trials after an absence of two years, promises to make the classic more colorful than at any time in the history of the meet.

Kaye Don, who came here from England last year only to have his attempts at a new record end in failure, expects to bring his huge Silver Bullet racer back for the coming event, with minor alterations.

Announcement by Harry Miller, veteran Los Angeles race car builder, that he will enter a 48-cylinder machine in the meet, has been hailed as indicative of an aroused interest of American designers to get back into a competition that foreign entrants have ruled for a number of years.

Possibility that another American builder may enter the meet is seen in the report that Fred Duesenberg of Auburn, Ind., already has constructed a power plant for a high speed car.

Whether he plans to work out a suitable body design and enter the machine has not yet been publicly announced.

Webster Eleven Defeats Wellston

A strong Webster eleven easily defeated Wellston, 24 to 0, yesterday. The score was held down only because Coach Roberts gave his substitutes a chance to gain experience for next year. Wellston held Webster until the second quarter when Roberts' men used a trick play, with Stork carrying the ball to gain 15 yards and a touchdown. Freschi missed the extra point.

Wellston resorted to a passing attack in an attempt to gain ground, but Harkey, alert Webster end, intercepted one on his own 20-yard line and raced 80 yards for a touchdown. This was not the only time that Harkey starred, for he intercepted another pass and stopped all plays attempted around his end. Webster scored again in the second quarter on a 55-yard run by Hall and a 10-yard off-tackle thrust by Freschi. A string of substitutes came in and the scoring ceased until the fourth quarter, when the regulars again returned. Harkey intercepted a pass on Wellston's 35-yard line from where Nisbet passed to Freschi for another touchdown.

Harkey and Nisbet were the defensive stars for Webster, while Hall and Freschi carried the main portion of the attack. C. Houston broke into the game for the first time for Wellston this year.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Nov. 1.—Unable to stop the onslaughts of their heavier opponents, Graceland College of Lamoni, Ia., was beaten by Chillicothe Business College, 13 to 0, yesterday afternoon. An exchange of punts gave Chillicothe the ball on Graceland's 40-yard line in the third quarter and two passes netted the first counter. The second touchdown came in the last minute of play on side line pass from the 30-yard line.

ALLEN DEFEATS THOMPSON AND QUALIFIES FOR POCKET TOURNEY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 1.—Benny Allen of Kansas City, former world's pocket billiard champion, last night acquired the Southern title by defeating James Thompson of Tampa, Fla., in the last block of a 300-point match at the Recreation Billiard Rooms. The veteran barely managed to beat the Tampa star by a 300 to 295 score.

At the opening of the match final block Allen was leading by 207 to 183. Thompson immediately started some brilliant play, running 55 and then 37 and at the end of the fifteenth inning was leading Allen. He needed only 100 points to win, while Allen needed 103.

The former champion crept ahead and never relinquished his lead. Thompson grew nervous in the latter part of the match, missing shots that he made easily earlier in the game.

With the match standing at 299 to 295 in favor of Allen, the Kansas City player was forced to make a spectacular table length angle shot to win. The angle necessitated breaking to rack and a miss might have won for Thompson, who needed but five.

Thompson's run of 55 was the best of the match. Allen's high run was 30. His best of the match was 42. The entire match required 61 innings.

Allen's victory qualified him for the national tournament which will be held in New York City, beginning Dec. 6, in which Ralph Greenleaf, world's champion, will participate. Thompson won his way into the final of the Southern tournament by winning the South division of the Southern elimination tournament held here, defeating five opponents. Allen was winner of the Southern division of the tournament which was played in St. Louis.

RAILROAD JOB COMES AHEAD OF BASEBALL WITH CUB ROOKIE

FORT WORTH, Tex.—The Chicago Cubs may have to do some dickering with railroad officials if they want Dick Whitworth, Texas League pitcher, to hurl for them next year.

Whitworth, drafted by the Cubs for $4000 at the close of this season, is a railroader first and a baseball man afterward. The pitcher declares that he will give up baseball any time that it endangers his seniority with the Southern Pacific, with which he has been connected for many years.

Twice during the 1930 campaign Whitworth was on the verge of quitting the Fort Worth club to go back to the railroad, but President Ted Robinson induced the rail officials to extend his star's leave of absence.

Whitworth, who won more games than any other Texas League hurler, was the main factor in winning the pennant for Fort Worth, and he defeated Memphis twice in the Dixie classic.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 1.—Max Carey, former major league baseball player, is no longer a member of the coaching staff of the Pittsburg Pirates, having been given his unconditional release yesterday.

No reason was given for the release of the coach, but it was made plain that no friction existed anywhere.

Carey is now in St. Louis, where he has business interests.

ASSAIL GOVERNMENT COMPETITION IN TRADE

Speakers Before Business Group Condemn the Federal Farm Board Act.

Government activities which encroach upon private business were opposed by speakers last night at a meeting at the Annex Hotel of a newly organized group known as the National Association Against Government Competittion in Business. About 300 men, representing 27 lines of business, attended.

The speakers were F. Dumont Smith of Kansas, chairman of the American Bar Association's Committee on Citizenship; M. W. Borders of Kansas City, an attorney, and Henry Swift Ives, formerly of St. Louis, special counsel for the Association of Casualty and Surety Executives of New York.

The meeting approved resolutions pledging support to the insurance companies in their fight against Proposition No. 4 on the State ballot, which, if passed, would require employers in Missouri not qualified as self-insurers to carry their compensation insurance in the State fund and to a number of East St. Louis livestock commission men, who have been cited for alleged violation of the Federal act regulating packers and stockyards.

Attacks Farm Board Act.

Smith, formerly a State Senator in Kansas, attacked the Federal Farm Board act particularly as a form of Government competition in business. He said the sweeping powers conferred on the Farm Board, if sustained by the Supreme Court, would enable it to set up slaughter houses, packing plants, canneries, flour mills, chain stores and other agencies for the processing and distribution of food. He said if a similar measure of relief were given to other industries many crying for it we would have oil boards and coal boards and lumber boards, among others, to purchase and store surplus stocks.

"When we get through," he said, "we will be in the condition of that community where all the members made their living by doing one another's washing."

He was confident the Farm Board act would be declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court if the question were properly brought before that tribunal.

Livestock Men Fight Control.

Borders said that the life of the independent livestock commission industry is involved in the fight of his clients against the Government's attempted control. He said the Farm Board is attempting to exterminate all commission men who refuse to join the co-operatives approved by the board.

Ives asserted business men are themselves largely responsible for the tendency toward Government interference in business. Too many, he said, have given aid and comfort to socialistic doctrines where the property of others is involved, although ardently opposing any restriction or regulation of their own business.

BRUSH FIRE NEAR LOS ANGELES

8000 Acres and Two $15,000 Homes Swept by Flames.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 1.—A brush fire threatening estates and beach property ran over the Malibu Mountains last night and today was attacking the Santa Monica range.

The blaze started in Ventura County Thursday, burned into rough country ahead of a stiff northwest wind and last night rolled over the Los Angeles county line. It blackened 8000 acres of valuable watershed, burned two $15,000 homes, 40 head of cattle and 20 small summer homes and continued to force back 3000 men fighting the fire. At midnight it crept across Los Alisos Canyon despite efforts to check it, and raged southward, threatening to break into a section covered with Manzanita and Buckthorn 20 feet high, in which no fire had burned for 60 years.

'IT HAPPENS ALL THE TIME,' TAKOGUWA'S VIEW OF TROUBLE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Prince Iyesato Takoguwa, head of the Japanese House of Peers, arrived yesterday aboard the Cunard liner Mauretania on his way home from the London meetings of the Interparliamentary Congress.

Before traveling across the continent to board the steamer that will carry him to Yokohama, he will first visit his son, now the Japanese Minister at Ottawa. Another call will be made on President Hoover.

The Japanese statesman regards affairs of the world and its people with the reserve and stoicism always associated with his people.

"Earthquakes happen all the time. That's nothing," was his answer to the question of what relief measures had been discussed at the international meeting of the Red Cross, which he attended.

"That's right," he said on the next topic which suggested that the world might be suffering from much unemployment. "It happens all the time."

On the somewhat diversified thoughts of bread lines, and the reports of atrocities committed by head-hunters in Formosa, the Prince conveniently grouped both trends by stating "that's nothing. It happens all the time."

RAILWAY CLERKS URGE UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Also Favor Old Age Pensions and Federal Compensation Legislation.

The annual convention of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, composed of delegates representing 150,000 railway workers throughout the country, which has been in session in St. Louis four days, will end today with regional conferences of the delegates.

The convention has adopted a program of social and industrial policies, which include old age pensions, compulsory State and Federal unemployment insurance, Federal compensation legislation for railway workers and support of the policies of the American Federation of Labor and railway labor organizations.

Nonpartisan political groups within the ranks of organized labor, to be directed or guided by organized labor and the needs of workers, were advocated for a proper influence upon political parties in primary elections.

The convention also advocated greater national and state regulation of motor trucks and coaches and the placing of freight forwarding and car loading companies under jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Board of Mediation through amendment of the interstate commerce and railway labor acts.

ACQUITTED OF PLANE THEFT

Capt. Donaldson, War Ace, Accused Since Last July.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Capt. John Donaldson, war ace, was exonerated yesterday before Magistrate Thomas F. Downs in Flushing court of a charge of stealing an airplane. The case had been postponed many times since last July, when the charge was preferred by Charles Ford, Bay Shore, L. I.

Donaldson was arrested July 20 when directing an endurance flight at Roosevelt Field. Ford said Donaldson had stolen Ford's plane from Grand Central Airport in Jackson Heights. The arrest was made as Donaldson was about to take off on a refueling flight late at night. Supreme Court Justice Humphrey arose from bed and approved bail for the Captain's release so he could refuel his plane and keep it aloft.

MAYOR THOMPSON'S CONDITION FAVORABLE

Reaction From Operation for Appendicitis Gives Hope for Recovery.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—The condition of Mayor William Hale Thompson, who underwent an operation for appendicitis yesterday, is regarded for the present as favorable, a statement from the hospital today said. He awoke after 11 hours sleep feeling comfortable and in a jovial mood.

Possible symptoms of peritonitis, a dread aftermath of appendicitis operations, had been reported.

Courage, however, is with the Mayor, and this, with his favorable reaction from the shock of the operation, performed at 2 p. m. yesterday, gave his friends hope that he would recover. His wife and a few friends were permitted in his room at the Passavant Hospital following the operation.

The presence of free fluid in the abdomen gave rise to the fear of peritonitis, but this is not always a certain symptom of this complication, Dr. Milton M. Portis, one of three surgeons who attended the Mayor, reported. During the night Thompson got several hours' sleep.

The appendicitis attack caught the Mayor in the midst of a stormy political campaign in which he, although a Republican, had come out in opposition to the party's nominee for United States Senator, Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick, and at a time when there has been talk that he would seek a fourth term at the mayoralty primary next spring.

The Mayor was to have addressed a political gathering at a theater yesterday morning and he reluctantly consented to abandon the effort and go to the hospital for the operation only after he had been assured that the speech would be read by Richard W. Wolfe, Commissioner of Public Works.

DISMISSES SUIT FOR RECEIVER FOR KAEMMERER MUSIC SHOP

Judge Nolte at Clayton Finds There Is Insufficient Ground for Action.

A suit for receivership filed on June 24 against Matthew F. Kaemmerer, president of the Kaemmerer Music Shop, 6217 Delmar boulevard, by M. A. Block, a stockholder, was dismissed by Circuit Judge Nolte in Clayton yesterday on the finding there was insufficient ground for a receivership.

A temporary receiver was appointed by the Court at the time the petition was filed, but was withdrawn on Sept. 19 and Kaemmerer was permitted to resume business.

Sentenced for German Bombings.

By the Associated Press.

ALTONA, Germany, Nov. 1.—Sentences ranging from four months to seven years were pronounced yesterday at the conclusion of the protracted trial of 21 persons accused in connection with the bomb explosions of 1928 and 1929 in the provinces of Schleswig-Holstein, Hanover and Oldenburg. Three of the 21 were acquitted. At the time of the bombings the urban populations of the three provinces were kept in a state of terror, as bombs were placed on the steps of postoffices, tax bureaus and other public buildings. The bombings were the outcome of discontent among farming elements over high taxation.

By the Associated Press.

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa, Nov. 1.—A study of details found in spectrographs obtained by the United States Naval Observatory eclipse expedition at Niuafou Island will give important information on the motions in the sun's inner corona, Dr. S. A. Mitchell, head of the expedition, said here today.

The expedition arrived here 18 hours late aboard the U. S. S. Tanager from Niuafou, where eclipse observations were made on Oct. 22. A strong gale between Niuafou and Pago Pago delayed the vessel.

Dr. Mitchell made the statement after detailing the history of eclipse observations since the spectroscope was first used in 1868.

"This latest eclipse brings the discovery of a new line in the far red of the spectrum, a wave length which showed itself at 6770 angstrom units," he said. An angstrom unit is one one hundred millionth of a centimeter.

"The new wave length is visible on two separate photographs fairly strong and appears as a complete ring in no manner resembling the lines of high level chromosphere," he continued. "The chromosphere is the sun's atmosphere.

"The emission of bright lines in the corona are visible in a shallow layer of the inner corona, never exceeding five minutes of arc from the sun's surface," he added. "These lines are said to be due to a hypothetical element called coronium, but what coronium is we do not know. Presumably it is one of the lighter and well known bases which has lost one or more external electrons. Such as element is 'forbidden' to radiate under the conditions in terrestrial laboratories but can give forth light in the celestial laboratary, the sun, where in the inner corona are found high temperatures and minute pressures that cannot be reproduced by mechanical means.

"The 1930 coronal spectra show splendid details in the spectral lines at wave lengths of 5303 and 6774 angstrom units, a study of which will give important information on the motions in the inner corona of which as yet we know nothing."

CHICAGO GRAND JURY RAKES POLICE FORCE

Says It Has Always Been Adjunct of Political Faction in Power.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—The alleged alliance of police, politics and crime brought new grand jury attacks on law enforcing authorities today.

The October grand jury, in its final report, said that "instead of being a purely crime-detecting and apprehending agency, the police force has been, through the history of our city, the adjunct of whatever political faction happens to be in power.

"For many years Chicago has tolerated vice, and now the underworld and vice have it by the throat. For all this the public is responsible, for the public has allowed it to exist."

The scandal occasioned by the finding of a list compiled in the Detective Bureau naming gangsters scheduled to be arrested for vagrancy under the pillow of a Capone lieutenant "confirms beyond a reasonable doubt the general belief that there exists an alliance between some members of the Police Department and leaders of organized crime," the grand jurors added.

Claude Maddox, reputed gunman for the Al Capone gang, faced a charge of assault with intent to commit murder today in connection with the attempted assassination of Sergt. James McBride.

Maddox, Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne said, had been identified as one of the gangsters who shot and seriously wounded McBride last Thursday as he rode on a street car, presumably to prevent him from testifying in the murder trial of Jack White. White is accused of slaying Policeman Edward Pflaume five years ago.

A warrant signed by Sergt. McBride in a hospital was issued last night for Maddox, who, with James (Fur) Sammons, is under arrest. It was unofficially reported, however, that Sammons had not been identified as one of McBride's assailants.

A break in the ranks of Capone was seen by police when Frank Nitti, ranking captain in the combine, failed to raise a $50,000 bond and was forced to remain in jail.

Nitti is the first Capone lieutenant to spend a night in a cell for lack of bail money.

Nitti was arraigned before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. His attorney pleaded with the Judge to reduce a $50,000 bond fixed when Nitti was indicted last March for alleged evasions of income tax. The Judge refused.

THE SCARAB MURDER CASE

S. S. VAN DINE

CHAPTER XXXVI.

BLISS and Heath were heard returning up the stairs.

"Well, it's gone," the Sergeant informed us, as the two stepped into the room.

"No doubt taken with the dagger," Bliss supplemented.

"Suppose I send for a couple of the boys and give the house the once-over," Heath suggested.

Markham was becoming annoyed at Vance's vagueness.

"I suppose," he said, with a tinge of sarcasm, "you can tell us exactly where we can find the sheath.'"

"Yes, I rather think so." Vance spoke with thoughtful seriousness. "However, I'll verify my theory later. . . . In the meantime"—he addressed himself to Bliss—"I'd be greatly obliged if you'd remain in your room until we finish our investigation."

Bliss bowed in acquiescence.

"We're going to the drawing room for a while," Vance continued. "There's a little work to be done there."

He moved toward the hall, then stopped as if on sudden impulse and, going to the table, slipped the dagger into his pocket. Bliss closed the door after us, and we could hear the key turn in the lock. Markham and Heath and I started down the stairs, Vance bringing up the rear.

We had descended but a few steps when a calm, flat voice from the upper hall arrested us.

"Can I be of any assistance, effendi?"

The unexpected sound in that dim quiet house startled us, and we instinctively turned. At the head of the stairs leading to the third floor stood the shadowy figure of Hani, his flowing kaftan a dark mass against the palely lighted wall beyond.

"Oh, rather!" Vance answered cheerfully. "We were just repairin' to the drawing room to hold a little conversational seance. Do join us, Hani."

HANI joined us in the drawing room. He was very calm and dignified, and his inscrutable eyes rested impassively on Vance like those of an ancient Egyptian priest meditating before the shrine of Osiris.

"How do you happen to be up and about at this hour?" Vance asked casually. "Another attack of gastritis?"

"No, effendi." Hani spoke in slow, measured tones. "I rose when I heard you talking to Brush. I sleep with my door open always."

"Perhaps, then, you heard Sakhmet when she returned to the house tonight."

"Did Sakhmet return?" The Egyptian lifted his head slightly in mild interest.

"In a manner of speaking. . . . But she's a most inefficient deity. She bungled everything again."

"Are you sure she did not intentionally bungle things?" Despite the droning quality of Hani's voice, there was a significant note in it.

Vance regarded him for a moment. Then:

"Did you hear footsteps on the stairs or along the second-floor corridor shortly after midnight?"

The man shook his head slowly.

"I heard nothing. But I was asleep for at least an hour before you arrived; and the soft tread of footsteps on the deep carpet would scarcely have been sufficient to arouse me."

"Doctor Bliss himself," Vance explained, "came downstairs and telephoned to me. You did not hear him either?"

"The first sound I perceived was when you gentlemen came into the front hall and talked to Brush. Your voices, or perhaps the door opening, awakened me. Later I could hear your muffled tones in Doctor Bliss' bedroom, which is just below mine; but I could not distinguish anything that was said."

"And of course you were not aware that anyone turned off the light in the second-story hall round midnight."

"HAD I not been asleep I would certainly have noticed it, as the light shines dimly up the stairs into my room. But when I awoke the light was on as usual." Hani frowned slightly. "Who would have turned the hall light off at that hour?"

"I wonder. . . ." Vance did not take his eyes from the Egyptian. "Dr. Bliss has just told us that it was some one who had designs on his life."

"Ah!" The exclamation was like a sigh of relief. "But the attempt, I gather, was not successful."

"No. It was quite a fiasco. The technic, I might say, was both stupid and hazardous."

"It was not Sakhmet." Hani's pronouncement was almost sepulchral.

"Really, now!" Vance smiled slightly. "She is still reclinin', then, by the side of the great west wind of heaven. . . . I'm jolly glad to be able to rule her out. And since no occult force was at work, perhaps you can suggest who would have had a motive to cut the doctor's throat."

"There are many who would not weep if he were to quit this life; but I know of none who would take it upon himself to precipitate that departure."

Vance lighted a Regie and sat down.

"Why, Hani, did you imagine you might be of service to us?"

"Like you, effendi," came the soft reply, "I expected that something distressing, and perhaps violent, would happen in this house tonight. And when I heard you enter and go to Dr. Bliss' room, it occurred to me that the looked-for event had come to pass. So I waited on the upper landing until you came out."

"Most considerate and thoughtful of you," Vance murmured, and took several puffs on his cigarette. After a moment he asked: "If Mr. Salveter had emerged from his room tonight after you had gone to bed, would you have known of the fact?"

THE Egyptian hesitated, and his eyes contracted.

"I'm familiar with the arrangement."

"It does not seem probable that Mr. Salveter could have unlocked his door and come out without my being cognizant of it."

"It's possible, though, is it not?" Vance was insistent. "If you were asleep, and Mr. Salveter had good reason for not disturbing you, he might have emerged so cautiously that you would have slept on in complete ignorance of his act."

"It is barely possible," Hani admitted unwillingly. "But I am quite sure that he did not leave his room after retiring."

"Your wish, I fear, is father to your assurance," Vance sighed. "However, we sha'n't belabor the point."

Hani was watching Vance with lowering concern.

"Did Doctor Bliss suggest that Mr. Salveter left his room tonight?"

"Oh, to the contr'ry," Vance assured him. "The doctor said quite emphatically that any attempt to connect Mr. Salveter with the stealthy steps outside of his door at midnight, would be a grave error."

"Dr. Bliss is wholly correct," the Egyptian declared.

"And, yet, Hani, the doctor insisted that a would-be assassin was prowlin' about the house. Who else could it have been?"

"I cannot imagine." Hani appeared almost indifferent.

"You do not think that it could have been Mrs. Bliss?"

"Never!" The man's tone had become quickly animated. "Meryt-Amen would have had no reason to go into the hall. She has access to her husband's room through a communicating door"—

"So I observed a while ago—she joined our pour-parler in the doctor's room. And I must say, Hani, that she was most anxious for us to find the person who had made the attempt on her husband's life."

"Anxious—and sad, effendi." A new note crept into Hani's voice. "She does not yet understand the things that have happened today. But when she does"—

"We won't speculate along those lines now," Vance cut in brusquely. He reached in his pocket and drew out the golden dagger. "Did you ever see that?" He asked, holding the weapon toward the Egyptian.

THE man's eyes opened wide as he stared at the glittering, jeweled object. At first he appeared fascinated, but the next moment his face clouded, and the muscles of his jowls worked spasmodically. A smouldering anger had invaded him.

"Where did that Pharaonic dagger come from?" he asked, striving to control his emotion.

"It was brought from Egypt by Doctor Bliss," Vance told him.

Hani took the dagger and held it reverently under the table lamp.

"It could only have come from the tomb of Ai. Here on the crystal knob is faintly engraved the King's cartouche. Behold: Kheper-kheper-Re Iry-Maet"—

"Yes, yes. The last Pharaoh of the Eighteenth Dynasty. The doctor found the dagger during his excavations in the Valley of the Tombs of the Kings." Vance was watching the other intently. "You are quite positive you have never seen it before?"

Hani drew himself up proudly.

"Had I seen it, I would have reported it to my Government. It would no longer be in the possession of an alien desecrator, but in the country where it belongs, cared for by loving hands at Cairo. . . . Dr. Bliss did well to keep it hidden."

There was a bitter hatred in his words, but suddenly his manner changed.

"May I be permitted to ask when you first saw this royal dagger?"

"A few minutes ago," Vance answered. "It was projectin' from the headboard of the doctor's bed—just behind the place where his head had lain a second earlier."

"Was there no sheath to this dagger?" he asked.

"Oh, yes." There was a flicker in the corners of Vance's eyes. "Gold and cloisonne—though I haven't seen it. The fact is, Hani, we're deuced interested in the sheath. It's disappeared—lying perdu somewhere hereabouts. We're going to make a bit of search for it ere long."

HANI nodded his head understandingly.

"And if you find it, are you sure you'll know more than you do now?"

"It may at least verify my suspicions."

"The sheath would be an easy object to hide securely." Hani reminded him.

"I really don't anticipate any difficulty in putting my hands on it." Vance rose and confronted the man. "Could you perhaps suggest where we might best start our search?"

"No, effendi." Hani returned, after a perceptible hesitation. "Not at this moment. I would need time to think about it."

"Very well. Suppose you go to your room and indulge in some lamaic concentration. You're anything but helpful."

Hani handed the dagger back, and turned toward the hall.

"And be so good," Vance requested, "as to knock on Mr. Salveter's door and tell him we would like to see him here at once."

Hani bowed and disappeared.

"I don't like that bird," Heath grumbled, when the Egyptian was out of hearing. "He's too slippery. And he knows something he's not telling. I'd like to turn my boys loose on him with a piece of rubber hose—they'd make him come across. . . . I wouldn't be surprised, Mr. Vance, if he threw the dagger himself. Did you notice the way he held it, laying out flat in the palm of his hand with the point toward the fingers?—just like those knife-throwers in vaudeville."

"Oh, he might have been thinkin' caressingly of Doctor Bliss's trachea," Vance conceded. "However, the dagger episode doesn't worry me half as much as something that didn't happen tonight."

Blames a BLACK CAT For BAD LUCK in Love

Pola Negri Tells How She Spent a Fortune With Soothsayers in an Effort to Hold Husband She has Sued for Divorce.

By CORALIE VAN PAASSEN

POLA NEGRI.

PARIS, Oct. 25.

POLA NEGRI ascribes the wreck of her marriage to Prince Mdivani and the blasting of her romantic love with the late Rudolph Valentino to one and the same original cause: a black cat which ran across her path as she stepped off the liner that brought her to America's shores years ago. Nothing has happened since to break the streak of bad luck that began that day, she declared in her chateau at Malmaison-Rueil, where she is awaiting final formalities in the divorce action she has begun against the Georgian Prince, this time in earnest, she says.

The famous film diva admitted that she had been very superstitious all her life and that she still put great stock in horoscopes and the influence of stars and planets on human destiny. She is convinced that her own career was constantly influenced by occult forces and that the tragic course of her loves was foretold in a number of happenings which other people dismiss as childish superstitions.

The black cat above referred to served as an ample warning that the success she was to meet in the United States would be embittered with disappointments and great unhappiness.

"I knew the very moment I set foot on shore in America that tragedy was in store for me," she said. "And so it turned out to be in reality. When, subsequently, after my arrival in Hollywood, I found the studios simply swarming with black cats and Ernest Lubitsch and other directors laughing at what they called my silly apprehensions, a fear clutched my throat which never really left me all the years I was in America.

"I did all in my power to ward off the evil influences which were unchained against me or to break their power, but I never succeeded. I followed a rigid course of life. I never put my left foot out of bed first in the mornings when getting up. I took care never to walk under a ladder, which is hard enough in the studios. I wore dozens of magic amulets and bracelets. Nothing helped. Fate was inexorable, it seemed.

"I DID meet with success in my film work in America. But success isn't everything. I never was happy. It often seemed that I carried tragedy for every man whom I truly loved. Valentino died. Others turned away from me. When at last I thought that my luck would turn and that I had found my ideal in Mdivani, his heart suddenly grew cold and his love waned.

"I consulted soothsayers and magicians and I spent a fortune in America and Europe trying to obtain a secret formula to assure the love of men I also loved. Nothing helped. My destiny was to be one of tragedy and the world may believe me or not, but I believe that the first unhappy omen at the foot of the gang-plank in New York determined my whole life afterward.

"Some of the most famous men in the world, to whom I went for advice and counsel, felt unable to come to my rescue. Once I wrote to d'Annunzio for a remedy to break the spell. He was very kind and at once admitted the possibility of evil influences brooding over me. He sent me an amulet of monkey hair, the same as he always wears himself. But in my case it did not avail. Later I wrote to Anatole France. He sent me an Oriental dragon's tooth, which I wore around my neck for years. Still my luck didn't change, and never has."

Pola Negri intimated that in spite of the immense advance of modern science and enlightenment in general, Hollywood is the most superstition-ridden place on earth. In public, stars and directors try to laugh it off when taxed with belief in magic and occultism, but in private they all adhere to the ancient cults, she said.

BEGINNING with Charles Chaplin, she enumerated the superstitions of nearly all the prominent stars and directors with whom she had come in contact. Chaplin, she said, has never dared yet to discard the first pair of raggedy shoes and the battered bowler hat which he brought to America from England with him many years ago, although these articles are practically falling to pieces. He will not hear of replacing them with duplicates for fear of breaking his luck.

"People go crazy in Hollywood over a four-leafed clover," said Pola, "and everybody has his horseshoe which is supposed to bring good fortune. I am not alone in my superstitions. In the course of time I found out that Fedor Challapin, the great basso; Bill Tilden, the tennis player; Sybil Thorndike, the famous British actress, all have their magic beliefs and superstitions, although they wouldn't probably come out openly and admit it," she added.

HOW TO MAKE A SCREEN

THERE was a time when a screen was merely ornamental, more or less. Just another piece of furniture. You could look behind a screen in the '80's without being surreptitious about it, but nowadays, if the screen is in the living room, more likely than not it conceals a kitchenette, or it may even be that it is the kitchenette with pots and pans and skewers and things clinging to hooks on its "other" side. If the screen happens to be in the bedroom, peep behind it and the chances are you'll find yourself gazing into a bathroom, or quite as probably the screen forms the front wall of the living room. The point is, screens have become 50 per cent more useful than they are ornamental and the majority of them are both.

Beautiful screens are to be had ready made in the shops, but in case your pocketbook rebels at the price or you are more interested to make your own, here are some suggestions that will help.

If you will look for your frame in the kitchen departments of the stores you are bound to find just the right size and shape, though you may have to shop around a bit to do so. And if you should be unable to find precisely the desired sort of frame, ask for a clothes horse. Most of these "horses" come in wider panels than the regulation screen frames, although these, too, are available in a variety of shapes and sizes.

Wall paper, thin beaver board, Japanese rice paper, almost any of the imitation parchments are suitable for paneling the flat screen frames, but for the clothes horse frame the chintzes and cretonnes are rather easier to work with as they can be shirred or otherwise sewed to it. Not that the other materials are prohibitive. Quite the contrary. You merely provide yourself with tiny headless tacks, the very short ones, and use them not at all sparingly. See that the fabrics or the paper, whatever you are using, is cut a full inch longer at each end than the frame, thus enabling you to draw it securely about the rounds.

If you are inclined to make the screen, frame and all, yourself, any lumber yard will cut the pieces of wood for you to your measurements. You may make your frame in either of two ways. The first and more simple is to have the frame flat. Ask the lumber man to cut the pieces ready for dovetailing. That is, to cut the ends of each piece slantwise so that they fit perfectly and form perfectly tight corners. Your frame put together, you tack your material evenly right to the flat sides, using fancy headed tacks and making the tacking, if you like, a part of the decoration.

The other way of making the frame is to proceed as above, but instead of tacking the material on the flat side of the frame, you have an extra or inner frame made and the material is tacked to the main frame and the inner frame fitted over or, rather, into it. It may be, in fact it should be, that the inner frame and the outer fit so securely that the covering material is held fast and no tacks required.

There are so many attractive ways of decorating the frames and so many more of making decorative panels inexpensively that it is difficult to know what to mention specificially. It is rather a fad now to have the frame a part of the decorative scheme. That is, to allow the decoration of the paneling to run over onto the frame. This is particularly effective where the panels are broad, strangely enough. Also there is much use of stenciling with the wash done in gay colors.

Prints make beautiful screens. They are pasted on with exceeding care, preferably by the use of a broad brush, a diminutive of the type painters use, and then giving the whole panel a coat of shellac. Wall papers may be similarly treated, and if the patterns are painstakingly selected, the paper of good quality and the finishing done properly the results can hardly fail to be satisfactory.

Ferns That Grow Easily

FERNS are to play a part in indoor decorations this winter. Everyone who has a home has a weakness for them, although ferns are not by any means too easily raised and many persons have no luck at all with them. Such fern lovers would do well to confine their efforts to a certain few varieties that are hardy and require comparatively little attention.

Among these may be mentioned the asparagus plumosus or lace fern, which has a rapid, steady growth, exquisite foliage, and, when desired, makes a perfect table decoration. The asparagus sprengeri is another fern exceedingly well suited to pot culture and which demands, probably, less care than any other species. Its fronds are lovely. They are long and feathery and of a luscious, rich green. As a matter of fact, the fronds grow to a length of five or six feet in a single season.

Then there is the ostrich plume fern. This one created a sensation when it was intrdouced by a prominent horticulturist some years ago. It grows luxuriantly and with a singular grace and is one of the most vigorous of the whole fern family. Its fronds are so exquisitely shaped that, cut singly, they make quite the most attractive of all the fern table decorations and are much used in tall vases and as parts of shower bouquets.

The sword fern is well known, but the personli one is an improved culture of it. Rather like the ostrich fern, it has heavier fronds and a more upstanding growth.

Fried Green Tomatoes.

Take large, green tomatoes and cut in slices one-half inch thick, rejecting the end slices. Scald in salt water. Dredge with flour and slowly fry brown in hot butter. Sprinkle with pepper and salt. Some people prefer a little sugar. Serve on a heated platter. This prolongs the fried tomato season until late in the fall.

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

Inside the Pumpkin

JOHN and Peggy waited for the Little Black Clock at the end of the garden path as he had told them to do.

They waited and waited but they did not see the Clock. He was never late and they could not imagine what might have happened to him.

Suddenly John said to Peggy:

"I didn't notice that pumpkin there when we first got here, did you?"

"No, I didn't," said Peggy. "Isn't it an enormous one?"

"Let's look at it and see if there is a candle in it," said John.

"If there is we can light it and then we'll be all ready for the Little Black Clock."

"Have you any matches?" asked Peggy.

"No, I haven't," said John slowly. "The Clock said he would bring everything and that he was going to turn the time back one evening so we could have a Halloween party with him."

"I'd say it was all ready for the party," said Peggy, as she and John started over toward the pumpkin. "It has had its face cut out and it looks just like the most wonderful Jack O'Lantern in the world."

They had now reached the Jack O'Lantern pumpkin and were beginning to look at it when suddenly they noticed that someone was inside.

"Oh, so that's why you weren't here, or why we thought you weren't here," shouted John.

"Why, Little Black Clock, you were playing hide-and-seek," said Peggy.

The Little Black Clock got up out of the pumpkin where he had been hiding.

"My legs aren't very long," he said, "but they were beginning to get very cramped waiting for you two to find me.

"Now we must be off at once! Heigh-ho."

Ensemble Bath Curtains

The up-to-date bathroom has its shower curtains and window draperies made to match. They can be simply fashioned of waterproofed fabric of the chintz or cretonne type of silk. These rubberized materials have been recently perfected so that they are of really practical character. Many of them have amusing pictorial patterns or gay floral patterns and some of the silk styles are of lustrous plain texture in dainty pastel colors.

HEALTH

Pain Killers

THE so-called "pain killers" are no doubt among the most common of the self-administered drugs.

No one wants to suffer pain. Patients frequently come to the physician asking for something to take away the pain. The sufferer is more concerned with the pain than he is with its cause.

And yet, the biologic purpose of pain (if any of the body's functions may be said to have purpose) is to call attention to the fact that something is wrong in the body, and to motivate the correction of that wrong.

To kill pain, before a diagnosis has been made of the condition to which it points is to disregard a valuable warning signal.

The function and value of pain may best be appreciated in considering the so-called painless diseases. These diseases, in their early stages, cause very little or no pain, and the sufferer is therefore unaware of their presence. Bright's disease is relatively painless, so is tuberculosis, and certain forms of heart disease.

But cancer is the classical example. If cancer, in its onset, were as painful say, as a boil, then its early treatment would be more common and the results more gratifying.

While pain is usually a warning of something wrong in the body, there is no relation between the seriousness of the condition and the degree of pain felt.

Nor may the progress of the condition be judged by the increase or decrease of the pain. In one type of appendicitis a most critical development is associated with the sudden cessation of pain, the pain disappearing when the appendix bursts.

Pantry Shelf Showers

A pantry shelf shower is one greatly appreciated by the bride-to-be. Cans and jars of fruits, vegetables, jellies, preserves, jams and relishes can be included as well as small cooking utensils, pot holders, waxed paper and other small essentials for the pantry shelves.

MANY FLEE WHEN FIRE BREAKS OUT NEAR OIL GUSHER

GUARDSMEN WARN RESIDENTS AWAY

Stampede Occurs When Rumors of Danger Spread—Effort to Control Stream Under Way.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Nov. 1.—This city had a few brief moments of panic late today as fire swept through oil soaked grass a mile and a half from the uncontrolled No. 1 Stout oil gusher.

Firemen, oil field workers and National Guardsmen quenched the flames in less than an hour but not before panic had cleared residential districts in the danger zone near the wild well and rumors had swept through downtown crowds that the wild well was on fire.

Adding to the scare came the report that another great gusher near the Stout was tearing loose as sand cut at its conections. After the confusion had subsided it was learned the Champlin Refining Co.'s No. 1 Naden, 600 feet south of the Stout, and one of five wells it was proposed to open in an effort to relieve gas pressure at the rampant gusher, had cut its top mastergate. It was shut in immediately and new connections installed. The lower conections were holding.

Approximately 160 men, most of them on constant duty in the danger area, wielded shovels to beat out the blaze which ignited oil-saturated grass along the Canadian River channel, a mile and a half northeast of the Stout well. The Canadian River is covered in places with a film of inflammable oil.

Residents Hurry to Safety Zone.

Guardsmen ran through the streets when the fire began, blowing whistles and shouting to the residents to move out. Their efforts were needless, for already whole families, most of them Negroes, were sweeping children and scanty belongings into their arms and dashing from their homes. The wildest confusion reigned.

The cause of the fire is not known, although there was a report that it had started from a locomotive spark. Trains have been forbidden to enter the danger area without dousing boiler fires.

The rolling smoke clouds from the burning grass were visible for miles and the city's skyscraper tops, about a mile from the gusher, were covered with frightened office workers.

With fire equipment standing ready tonight in the area surrounding the Stout, 1900 feet of hose strung and every available man on duty, fire department officials were ready for any emergency.

In the streets where the gusher's roar and nauseous fumes crept into homes, uncooked suppers were eaten under the watchful eyes of National Guard patrols. Other residents who feared to remain at home were cared for at the nearby State Fair Grounds. Arrangements were made to provide for the needy and sick.

The geyser of oil has caused the abandonment of homes by 200 residents, the closing of six schools and the suspension of all automobile and railroad traffic in the district affected.

Since motor trucks were not permitted in the area, household goods of those who moved from the section were transported in wagons drawn over oil-slimed streets.

Efforts to Control Wild Well.

Meantime John Gordon, who conquered the Mary Sudik well after it had run wild 11 days directed the attempts to control the wild gusher.

The die nipple he has had constructed for the Morgan Petroleum Co., owners of the Stout well, is similar to that used to control the Mary Sudik. The connection consists of a nipple in which thread dies are set, to fit over the top of the six-inch casing from which the oil is pouring. Above the nipple are two master gate connections to which flow lines may be attached. The whole connection is about 45 feet long. It will be swung into place over the casing head with block and tackle, and as it is lowered the oil flow will circulate through it until it can be screwed into place and anchored. Once it is in place, the gates will be swung slowly shut.
